THE GARDENS OF MILAN.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.

I'm thinking to night of a blue eyed girl with golden, wavy hair,
With downy cheeks and coral lips, the fairest of the fair.
I see the Sunny South, and the heavens blue and bright,
The silver moon rise slowly, o'er the curtain of night.
Ah! never shall I forget that glorious Summer land,
As we wandered there together, in the Gardens of Milan.

I lived in your soft sweet smile, and breathed in the perfumed air;
Life then was one perpetual heaven, no misery, want or care.
Ah! what happiness then, as we sat by the scented trees,
And heard the mournful music of the ever rolling seas.
Heart to heart we pledged our vows, as I pressed your warm, soft hand,
On that beautiful night, ah! years ago, in the Gardens of Milan.

But now thy Spirit has sped to that far off promised home,
And left me here, to mourn thy loss, to live a life—alone.
For how can I love again, thou wert of myself a part,
And in thy spirit's flight thou'st taken away my heart.
Although 'tis years ago, and I'm now a white haired man,
I still breathe a prayer for the girl I loved, in the Gardens of Milan.

TYRONE POWER.

AFRICANUS AND THE ATHLETE

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY HENRY LLEWELLYN WILLIAMS.

I was reading from the paper, to the old circus man in the Kean's Head, the paragraph about the workman who leaped into the bear pit in the Paris Zoological Garden and saved a fallen infant.

"Yes, it is pluck, that is," he said; "but so much depends on the make of a man! Now, I've seen a man, finely built, but not half so big as we made it out on the bills, tackle a raging lion."

"I should like to hear that," I said, giving the waiter the signal he expected, to supply the veteran "Outman" with refreshments for an hour.

It's a long stretch back (he began), for I reckoned my life by days then. I was 'tached to the troupe of Kichenoff & Lecoq's—Samson Lee Cox he was, that organized the lion and dog fights in the old days that somebody else got the glory for, I'll be bound! I was sweeper, rope splicer, tent peg sharpener, meat scales for the animals, all that sort of 'prenticeship. I was dre'ffful fond of the show myself, and many's the cut with rope end and saddle strap I received for being on the stare when hurdles ought to be held up or balloons fetched out.

Thar was one of our heroes, one of our stars, that stuck to the family straight on all through South Europe, mocking at the fevers and the quarreltines, which they was wus than choleray with the sulphewcations—ugh!

We called him the Model Athlete, the Gypsum (Egyptian) Antinose (Antinour) and all that rot. He was handsome. Our Samson caved in at Messina, and so we sot him up. He was more supple than strong, but he could lift pretty tidy. Still we had to plug the weights with lighter stuff. It took the women folks though, because he was so perfect in shape. No whipping around that! He could have minted a pile by just sleeping on them steps in Rome whar the painter men picks up their patterns. You see, being so smoothly made, and with a smiling face, no one thought so much of him as of a strong man who scowls under shaggy brows, or balances a big head on a bull neck, or has very long arms, or some striking peculiarity. Bless you, if I could only pitch on a dog with an eagle nose, or an oysterich with two inches of neck, I would begin show life agen, and land here in three years outside with a fortune!

So he had to add to his trippertory. He put in a new scene of pantomime every place we showed in. Roman statoos, highergiown'ffies, Napoleon on the Alpine peaks, and a very good Napoleon he looked after Canova—that's a figger cutter once celebrated, I dassay you know, and the Indian warrior in five attitudes.

There was one star tableau of his that we liked best. A precident of the Della Crusca 'Cademy put him up to it, from some old pocket retrievers. It was called "The Numidian Gladiator Combats the African Lion in the Arena, and overcomes him with the thought of his wife and little ones in the desert home"! Pooty lines, ain't them 'ere, for a bill! But we did more by sound of trumpet and a short coat on that TOWER than by programmes. Only the priest, and maybe the Mayor's scribe and the schoolmaster, in most of them towns could read.

Signor Arion looked the part, I can tell you. First place, the costume was correct to a spangle. A Numidian shape, of black velvet, spangled with silver and trimmed with leopard skin; salmon tights, short, curly hair, as black as the velvet, and sandals. In his hand he carried a club, which he swung like a feather.

It was a rare, entertaining bit to fetch all the stablemen out with the entree to see it, even after a fifty of times. The music would begin growling, and hurry up to the ring with a clash of cymbals—that was the lion coming at the hunter.

The man would make for the centre pole as if it was a palm tree in the oasis of the desert, and spy the pretended brute. You couldn't count the dodges just as graceful as a snake's when the little itch newman is a-puzzling him to a fever. All of a sudden, out would spring the Numidian, there would would be one skelp with the murderous club that would make the tan fly, and that lion would be ruled "out." The applause was the cue for some one to rush out with a big lion skin, flop it out to the full extent and hallos in their "lingo": "This is the hide of the gigantic king of animals, which our model athlete slew in the desert." That was good for his recall, you bet!

It was a first class act.

There was another of the troupe that liked it full as well as me. She joined at Messina. A little ugly toad, that you would have scorned to waste a clod at on a country road, but of all the divils when she got on horseback! Well, no one under our flag ever see the mate—not even Mr. Cox, and he knew hoss better than bread or salt. Not that she did so much fancy or right out and out riding! Oh, no! but she would git more hearty applause for dodging a ribbon jump, or clinging to the mane when the bareback hoss left the hurdle, than another that next to broke her neck. It was the style, the fascinating dare devil style that knocked them.

"Well, some parties have a tremenjous cheek," said my mate—half an Englishman, who chummed with me. "Yes, that little sallow, dwarfed, slim shanked divil is making eyes at the Hercules."

I whistled. I'd seen the same incredible thing.

Then Carline told the rest of our discovery. And we all looked, and what was wus, we all laughed. She knew—just as good as a clairvoyante—what we laughed at. Her little beady eyes flashed like a lime light. Arter, the look she gave me, I never sot a cup down half empty any where whar she might come. (That's got me into the habit, to this day, of tossing off clean). Her very dog—a little japping poodle that stole the animals' meat, and got us feeders' blamed—he shared in her hate. I was bit for nothing, and Carline was gnawed when he was drunk on the ship taking us to Constantinople. All that little beast could do to injure he did.

Curious thing! Arion was the last to notice Signora Biondina's regard. But when he did, alligators and hyena chops, he took to her! He did!

She was a little spite when she found that lovely, handsome fellow warmed to her! He'd peep out to look at her, he'd slip on a coat and walk round behind the ring master and afore the clown when she was at her turn. And I saw her make believe slip many's the time—all for the pleasure to see him turn pale, open his arms and step one foot out ready to fling the hoss smack into the audience afore it should catch her on the "come round" and spile her beautiful face!

Our fust show at Constantinople was on a flat boat right among the furin' craft. We kept the animals out of the bill, except the utility hoss, as safe as a billiard table on anything as broad as he could stride. The hercules was a great go. The men of the Italian barque, Il Re Celeste, chucked up their red caps and wanted to illuminate in his honor. The captain feasted him aboard, which he wouldn't go until the proprietors and a couple of our ladies was included. You be sure that Signora Biondina counted one.

That show lifted us up. It got us the leave to put up tents on the edge of the foreign quarter. It soon got wind what a splendid man Hercules was; and the veiled eyes clustered at peepholes when he strolled through the dogs at the gates. The Sultan heard of him.

"He is a dog!" said he, when his women murmured a wish to see our moral and intellectual exhibition. "The Christian mountebank is a dog, and so was his grandfather before him, and the two would not dare to face a Turkish cat, let alone the lion africanus in my menagerie."

"Big Blusterer!" said little Biondina, when this was reported to her. "You tell the Grand Seignior that his lion is a mere crawler to our giant giaour, Escolino della Maggiovanza," by which she meant the top tip of Herculeses; "Tell him so, though he calls it high treason. I would beard him, for one."

She glanced over at the Signor. We were all at the table, brother to brother, as the furriners say. He bit his lip. We murmured. It was a shame for that little minx to goad on that beautiful man to throw away his head.

The Sultan was told of the sally. We guessed as much afterwards, as you will see.

We was sent for to give a show in the palace courtyard. The women were all behind the window lattices, in course, but we had a crowd of black men, yellow men, white and red—enough to massacre us and then devour the hosses. We did immense business in the three days before we was to appear. There was a whisper that the Eyetalian Hercules had insulted the lion of the Father of the Faithful, and that thickened the pack. There wasn't no cloud on his brow, though, to talk like them Orientals.

The Sultan and his court was well pleased with our troupe. In some things we sailed lengths ahead of any of the Arab beggars that he was like to see. We was pretty nigh the finish when the Big Bashaw waved his hand. Two of his slaves uncovered a stone pit at one side, and let into it a very fine African lion. I could see it had not been fed for a couple of days. It looked up at the crowd like a cat at a mouse that is in a trap, when you taunt her with it. The wall was deeply scored with his claws, he knew of old that it was next to no use trying to climb out. But wouldn't he have liked a pair of wings for about two minutes, that's all.

The Hercules was about to begin his first act. He had stepped forward to salute the Sultan in the Arab style, touching his heart, mouth and forehead with his hand. The lion roared hungrily.

La Signora's little dog gave a squeak of fear.

Some one—it never was me!—Carline I believed—had accidentally trundled the snappish brute over the plain edge of the pit. We rushed to it.

Of course the lion would gulp him down like a fly. Well, he would, but he hadn't catched him, and that made the difference. The dog alighted on his feet, and cut away to the furthest corner. He shivered as if he had come out of the water, but faced Africanus with a wary eye. The big scare had made a hero of him. Twice he dodged the lion's bounds, and the Sultan frowned the blackest at hearing the women laugh in the gallery.

Signora Biondina had recognised her ugly pet. Instead of lamenting it, for she never hoped to see it again, she poured out the hottest shower of abuse! All the vile wretches she could think of she called me—innocent me! and be hanged to her—if she would not have liked to hurl me into the pit to bring back her cur! But Arion finished his bow to the Sultan, reached the spot in four strides, said sharper than I had ever heard him speak to her! "Peace, child!" and, looping a silken awning rope that was handy, to a ring in the wall, lowered himself by the hands alone, cool as ever a man descended from the aerial bar—just under the lion's nose.

I never knew where I got the 'lectric shock from—but I saw and seized the club he had been performing with, and slid it over to him as neatly as Carline had tossed the dog. He caught it—seeing its shadow on the stones—before he heard my "Guarda a vous!"—with the left hand. The lion, startled as any sensible beast would be by the sudden arrival, drew back just to see if there was any more coming down. The little dog, no longer desperate, groveled along between man's the feet. He stooped, and, as a juggler flings a ball, catched the stupid by the scruff, and landed him in La Signora's lap.

The lion saw the prey escape him. He made a spring at the silk cord. Lor'! if he'd have caught it! Whew!

"Pull it up," said Arion, without a tremble in his voice, always sweeter than you'd think belonged to his bulk.

One of the black men did pull it up beyond the lion's reach. The Sultan quivered with some new kind of feeling. I fancy he felt the animal clawing at his top knot!

A silence fell like in church.

One man leant on his club, waiting for the lion to recover from his fall. Africanus shot fire out of his eyes—the mouse had gone, but a fine, fat rat remained in its stead. That was his idea of the thing. But he wasn't quite satisfied. He circled half round, trying to avoid his eyes.

Too hungry and vexed to stay long at this game, the brute marched before him once more, but sidewise this trip. It was a challenge.

"It's but a big cat!" said the Signora, frothing at the mouth, and before we knew it she had seized the cord and swung herself into the pit!

At that moment the big cat took the spring.

With a "My God!" Arion drew the little sarpint back with him, as the lion rushed blindly forward, and dashed against the wall a great deal harder than would naturally have happened to him. But, before our man could draw a long breath, the animal had turned and made for him.

The blood matted mane and hair made a horrible sight, and the moans of pain and anger combined did not reassure us. But our athlete stood his ground, for, beside himself, had he not a dearer one to protect?

Blows from the club did not seem to weaken Africanus, but the end was at hand. Close to the wall stood the Signora, not fearfully crouching, as most women folks would do, but with a dagger, taken from her hair, in one hand, she waited till the time came when she could stab the brute. As the combatants came nearer and nearer, she reached forward, and, with a strength which her slight frame did not seem capable of, she plunged the dagger into the lion's side.

The wounded animal, with a shriek that made our blood run cold, staggered and finally fell, dragging Arion with him. But the latter was quickly on his feet, and rolled the wounded animal over on his back, and held him there with his foot on his breastbone, the four paws quivering like a horse's that's fallen short in a steeplechase at a water jump, and, says he in the "lingo" that they all tumble to there:

"Lord of the Sun and Stars, a thousand ducats and I'll let your Africanus live."

The Sultan nodded. An interpreter cried:

"Yes!" and our hero and heroine were hauled up.

The lion got well. The dog died of the fright, and the Hercules married Biondina. I suppose the ducats set them at ease, for they gave up the ring. I was never invited to their house to see their brood of the handsomest children ever seen out of a picter, but Carline was! and he told me all about it. He said Biondina was as sweet tempered as a mother could be, only she would like to tear the man to pieces that shoved her dog to the lion. Carline must have said it was me.

JANE STUART.

Jane Stuart, the ingenue of W. H. Crane's Co., who has made so decided a hit as Josie Armstrong, in "The Senator," is a native of this city, and the daughter of Commissioner Maurice F. Holahan. She was born Aug. 9, 1871. Her professional experience, prior to joining Mr. Crane last September, covered a period of less than six weeks. It was during the commencement exercises held at Grammar School No. 36, in East Ninth Street, this city, five years ago, that her dramatic talent was detected. She was assigned a simple part in an ordinary school play, which she rendered so intelligently as to cause universal comment and surprise. Shortly afterwards she became a pupil of George Edgar, and had taken but four lessons. One day, the late George Fawcett Rowe, in company with Manager Wesley Sisson, visited Mr. Edgar, to ascertain if he had among his pupils a woman who could personate a girl fifteen years, who was to be the heroine of his new Japanese play, "The Lilly of Yeddo." I have no woman," responded Mr. Edgar, "who can play the part, but I have a fourteen year old school girl who can fill the bill." "Nonsense!" said the author, "There is no girl of that age, and particularly a girl still at her geography and arithmetic, to whom I would think of intrusting so important a role in the play." Mr. Edgar reiterated his belief that she could. The girl was sent for, and the manuscript of the part was handed her. When she finished reading, she was told to attend rehearsal the next day. Her parents were opposed, on account of her tender years, to the scheme, but finally agreed to permit her to appear for one week. Four days after the first rehearsal she appeared, on April 11, 1886, upon the stage of the Criterion Theatre, Brooklyn, as the Lilly of Yeddo. Her performance astonished everyone who witnessed it. It was the first time she ever stood in the glare of the footlights before a public audience, yet she exhibited the grace and confidence of a tried actress. There was no awkwardness, no embarrassment, no self consciousness. She seemed utterly oblivious to everything save the woe and love of the sweet, trusting Japanese maid whom she portrayed, and at once achieved an instantaneous and marvelous triumph. At the close of the week's engagement she returned to the Ninth Street School to continue her studies. During the Fall of 1887, "Baron Rudolph," by Bronson Howard, was to be produced at the Fourteenth Street Theatre. Considerable difficulty was experienced to find an ingenue to play Ernestine. Several well known actresses had been engaged and rejected. It was finally decided by Charles Frohman to send for Jane Stuart, who was still at school. She appeared at rehearsal the next day, and, after reading a single sentence of the part, was at once accepted by Mr. Frohman and Mr. Howard. She played during the four weeks which covered the New York engagement, and made a positive hit. An effort was made to secure her services for the entire season, but her parents refused the offer. The following year she was requested to play the role of Sylvaine De Serene, in Miss Morton's new play, "Helene," produced at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, April 30, 1888. Once more Miss Stuart made a very favorable impression. She never appeared again upon the stage until she joined Mr. Crane's present company. Jane Stuart is of slender figure, and is endowed with pleasing, mobile features. She possesses an exquisite voice, so clear and distinct that every word she utters can be heard in any part of the theatre. Her professional career, up to this time, gives assurance that another star is to be added to the American galaxy She has been re-engaged by Mr. Crane for next season.

BUSH STREET THEATRE.—"Zigzag," under the management of John P. Slocum, opened last night for two weeks. The popularity of the house insured a large audience, but the company, headed by Frankie Kemble, made a most atrocious failure. Tierney and Wayne and Alf. BIG BUSINESS RULES.

Boston Theatres Crowded on the Opening Night of the Week.

[Special Dispatch to The New York Clipper.]

BOSTON, April 22.—Splendid weather and nearly every house crowded was the rule last night. Richard Mansfield's "Richard III." at the Boston Theatre, called out one of the largest audiences of the season, and the star received a thundering ovation. His conception and rendition of the character differ materially from what Hubbites have been accustomed to, but he received emphatic favor, especially in the wooing scene with Lady Anne, which is a marvel of subtle acting and polished villainy..... The second week of "The Prince and the Pauper" opened big at the Hollis..... "Held by the Enemy," at the Grand Opera House, was finely staged and well acted, and drew an audience that filled the house..... "All the Comforts of a Home," at the Museum, had the same old story. There is no let up in the drawing power..... "The Beggar Student," at the Tremont, pulled in many dollars, and was splendidly rendered..... "The Gondoliers," at the Globe, continues the reigning favorite comic opera, as is shown by the heavy attendance..... H. Wallick's "Sam Houston," at the Howard, was finely staged and acted, and scored a pronounced hit..... Keith's Bijou, Austin & Stone's, Pilling's World's Museum and the Nickelodeon all did a great business..... Manager Lothrop has made a hit with the lady skaters and the drama, "A Wife's Honor."..... Frank Daniels' Co. opened with "Little Puck" at some house up town.

GOOD THINGS GALORE.

Chicagoians Cannot Complain About Lack of New Attractions.

[Special Dispatch to The New York Clipper.]

CHICAGO, April 22.—Chicago last night inaugurated a brilliant season of German opera, with "Tannhauser," at the Auditorium. Mary Shaw's debut as a star at McVicker's and the Kendals in "The Iron Master" at Hooley's, brought out three of the best and gayest audiences of the entire season. The novelty and marked success of this trio was Miss Shaw's performance. The honest purpose, emotional force and moral plot of Oskar Blumenthal's "A Drop of Poison," and the fine capabilities of Miss Shaw, supported by a company of whom Charles Kent, H. B. Conway and S. E. Springer deserve more than passing mention combined to make a debut that the new star may well be proud of. The cast of "Tannhauser" included a number of artists already known to Chicago, and society was out in full force and made a brilliant night of it..... The Kendals had an overflowing house, and were ardently welcomed back..... "The Fakir" wasn't recognized as a Chicago production, so changed is it. Sunday night it opened to a densely packed house, which became very enthusiastic over it..... Marie Prescott and R. D. MacLean at the Clark Street Theatre, Cleveland's Minstrels at the Windsor and Pat Rooney at the People's also had big openings..... The lesser shows of the week start out with good prospects..... About two years ago, Duncan B. Harrison obtained judgment against H. E. Dixey for $2,200 on a note which Mr. Dixey had given him. It appears that the money had been lost at cards in the South, and Mr. Dixey repudiated the debt, but judgment was given against him. The judgment was never satisfied, and on 21 James E. Purnell, acting for Mr. Harrison, issued an execution against Mr. Dixey for $2,236.80. It is said that Mr. Dixey now claims the note is a forgery.

MILWAUKIANS PAY HOMAGE.

Large Audiences Greet Booth and Modjeska, "The Fairies' Well," Etc.

[Special Dispatch to The New York Clipper.]

MILWAUKEE, April 22.—J. C. Stewart's "Fat Men's Club" came for two performances Sunday, at the Grand, to fair patronage..... Booth and Modjeska had the largest house of the season last night, "S. R. O." being at a premium. The orchestra was compelled to play on stage..... At the Bijou, "The Fairies' Well" met with a rousing reception, the audience being large and friendly..... May Bretonne commenced her week at the Standard Sunday to good sized house. The attendance last night was only of fair proportions. Managers Miller & Nicolai, of the standard, have secured a five years' lease of the Grand Opera House, Omaha, from May 1, 1890. Mr. Nicolai assumes the management, while Mr. Miller retains the management of the Standard here.

ST. LOUIS NEWS.

"Monta, of Montana," Originally and Successfully Done—Other Notes.

[Special Dispatch to The New York Clipper.]

ST. LOUIS, April 22.—Sunday was too fine a day for people to look for pleasure indoors, and the matinees were not so crowded as usual. "Under the Lash" drew a good attendance to the Standard..... "The Two Orphans" was given at the Grand to a top heavy house at night..... W. J. Scanlan had a good house at the Olympic..... The new melodrama by Walter Fletcher and George Hoey, entitled "Monta, of Montana," was presented for the first time on any stage at the Sunday matinee to good house at Pope's, and ran quite smoothly. Monta is a waif whose identity is uncertain. When a babe her parents were massacred by the Indians, and the officer in command of the United States forces adopted her. She is a free, open handed, outspoken, devil may care girl, a child of nature and like no one but herself. A rich widow from the East meets Monta and desires to adopt and marry her to her son, a good for nothing dude. But Monta loves another, and the ambitious widow and her magnificent youth get left. There is the usual villian who is out for personal interests and who makes a bold front, but is finally unsuccessful. The duel scene in the last act is one which excited the audience to cheering, and the plucky waif kills her man after an exciting encounter. Josie Loane is handsome and clever, and does full justice to the part. The support was fair..... The People's closed this week.

ILLINOIS.

Chicago.—The week in the theatrical world was not so profitable as had been anticipated, chiefly owing to a large number of society people taking part in the Komoi series of national dances and tableaux in costume, presented at the Auditorium, for the benefit of several charitable institutions of the city. The Metropolitan Opera Co., of New York, presenting at the Auditorium "Tannhauser," "William Tell," "Die Meistersinger, "The Jewess," and "Lohengrin," for the first of a three weeks' engagement, will be apt to interfere with theatrical patronage again this week. The prospects for the German opera season are very flattering, and the advance sale is larger than was expected.

MCVICKER'S.—Mary Shaw will begin her career as a star 21 in an English version of a well known comedy drama in German, by Oskar Blumenthal, entitled "A Drop of Poison." In the company are such excellent actors as H. B. Conway, Charles Kent and Charles A. Smiley. Marie Wainwright comes 28. Ernst Possart makes his farewell appearance 20, in "King Lear." Sunday night, 27, Sarasate and D'Albert make their final appearances, assisted by Mme. Bertha Marx.

HOOLEY'S.—W. J. Scanlan, in "Myles Aroon," had big houses all last week. Mr. and Mrs. Kendal began 21 a return engagement of two weeks. Friel's Swedish Dramatic Co. give a single performance Sunday, 20.

CHICAGO OPERA HOUSE.—"The Seven Ages" is drawing excellent houses, and will have a longer run than was anticipated. It is now probable that "The Gondoliers" will not be brought here 21, as was at one time intended. Instead of three weeks, H. E. Dixey will probably play four.

COLUMBIA.—The Boston Ideals closed a fortnight's engagement 20. Patronage was only moderate. The house will remain closed for the remainder of the week, in order to do some necessary cleaning up, and on 27 R. L. Downing will open a two weeks' engagement.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Herrmann's Trans-Atlantiques continued to draw big houses up to their very last performance. "The Fakir," originally produced at this house, and since rewritten and remodeled, opens 20. Rhea 27.

HAYMARKET.—R. L. Downing had three big houses and no poor ones last week. G. C. Staley, in "A Royal Pass," which has won some favor at South Side theatres earlier in the season, opens 20. "The Twelve Temptations" 27.

H. R. JACOBS' ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—Oliver Byron closes 20 one of his usual big engagements in "Across the Continent," and "A Bunch of Keys" opens 21. Florence Bindley 28.

WINDSOR.—Cleveland's Minstrels, with Hughey Dougherty and Billy Emerson, open 20. Patti Rosa 27. Lizzie Evans closed 19 to fair patronage.

JACOBS' THEATRE.—R. D. MacLean and Marie Prescott open 21. "A Bunch of Keys" closed 20.

HAVLIN'S.—Lizzie Evans, in "The Buckeye" and "Our Angel," for the week beginning with Sunday, 20, matinee. "The Streets of New York" played last week to the usual crowded houses at Havlin's for this kind of drama.

PEOPLE'S.—Pat Rooney, in "Pat's Wardrobe," week of 21. Effie Ellsler, in "Egypt," had a profitable week, and was well received, as she always is in Chicago.

CRITERION.—"Town Lots" opens 20. "The Wages of Sin" closed 19 to good houses.

LYCEUM.—Cawthorn's "Little Nugget" Co. open 21. The "Kindergarten" Co. played to good business all last week.

STANDARD.—William Horton's "Horse and Horse," by a company including William R. Ogden, Jessie West, Beatrix Hamilton and Messrs. Bristow and Bradley, opens 20. "The Shanty Queen" had a good week. "Tom Shawyer" 27.

OLYMPIC.—Harry Williams' Co., which includes Haines and Vidocq, Palles and Cussick, Charles Diamond, Thatchawana and Orne, Mowatt, Testo and Onri, Lawler and Thornton, Pearl Ardine, Larry and Lizzie Smith, and Retlaw and Alton, played to a big week's business.

KOHL & MIDDLETON'S DIME MUSEUMS.—South Side: A troupe of Sieigh Bell Ringers, Alden's Living Statues in Theatre No. 1, Gardner Bros.' Trio in No. 2 and Aldrich & Kingsley's Stars in No. 3. West Side: "Centaur," the living horse man; Mitchell & Loraine's Comedy Co. presenting "Uncle Ginger" in No 1; Alex. Wilson's Royal Comiques in No. 2, and Schweigerling's Fantoche in No. 3.

KOEN MUSEE.—The Steens in mind reading feats and exposes of mediums, Master Eddie Abbott, boy magician, and Paul Olah's Hungarian Orchestra continues to draw good business.

CHAT.—The National Swedish Ladies' Concert Co. will make their farewell appearances in this city at the Lincoln Turner Hall, Lake View, 22, and at Liberty Hall, South Chicago, 23..... Mrs. Frank Leslie's Western lecture tour, under the management of H. B. Thearle and Fred Pelham, of Chicago, opens in Chicago early in the Fall..... Dr. Hans Von Bulow's series of four recitals, at Central Music Hall, have been an artistic and financial success..... The Grand Opera House management has about concluded arrangements for a season of comic opera revivals this Summer.

Decatur.—At the Powers Grand, Newton Beers' "Enoch Arden," April 14, failed to draw. Charlotte Thompson played to a poor house 18. "The Twelve Temptations" come 23, Effie Elisler 24, Booth and Modjeska 26..... Ki Kepley left 17 to join Bartine's Circus at Montpelier, Ind.

Danville.—At the Grand Opera House, "Under the Lash" came April 12 to good business. The New York Athenæum Co. came week of 14 to fair business. Booked: "The Kindergarten" 23, "Over the Garden Wall" 26, "Among the Pines" May 1, Janauschek 2, "Horse and Horse" 7.

MICHIGAN.

Detroit.—At Miner's Grand, "The Shanty Queen" comes April 21-26, "Will o' the Wisp" 28-May 3. R. D. MacLean and Marie Prescott drew good houses.

DETROIT OPERA HOUSE.—Sol Smith Russell comes April 21-23, the Boston Ideals 24-26. This will close the season for this house. The Booth-Modjeska engagement, the first half of last week, was a success. The Emma Juch Opera Co., with the addition of Edward Scovel in the cast, was a pronounced hit, and at a high tariff rate for admission the capacity of the house was tested, making the week the record breaker of the season.

WHITNEY'S GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—This week, "We, Us & Co." Next week, Gus Hill's World of Novelties. Last week C. E. Verner played to the usual run of patronage.

WONDERLAND THEATRE AND MUSEE.—Arrivals: Curio hall—Hop o' My Thumb, Mme. Taylor and daughter, Marie, the Lucas and Punch and Williams Stage—Lucier and Archmere, the Allynes, Frank Clayton and Sertentinello.

Grand Rapids.—At Power's Grand Opera House, "The Two Sisters" comes April 22, 23. The Swedish Ladies' Concert 15 attracted a small house. Booth and Modjeska 19 packed the house, prices ranging from $1 to $3. There are very few bookings for May, and the season will probably close early.

REDMOND'S GRAND.—"One of the Bravest" April 21-26. Ida Van Cortlandt's second week closed 19 to good business. "We, Us & Co." comes 28-May 3.

SMITH'S OPERA HOUSE.—Opening April 21: Ashley and Hill, Nettie Crowell, Misner and Clark, the Everetts, McCale and Daniels, Lulu Chapman, Madge Porter, Lillie Howard, Laura Jackson, William O'Day and James F. Green. Business is fair.

Boston Ideals come 22, with a matinee 23, playing the evening performance at Bay City. "The Two Sisters" 25, C. E. Verner 26, Ida Van Cortland week of 28..... At Bordwell's Winter Garden, week of 21: James and Lillie Rose, Mons. Gagnier, White and Wilkes, Millie Bernetta, Billy Baker, Bertina Leslie and the stock. Business is good.

Kalamazoo.—At the Academy of Music, Stetson's "U. T. C." came April 14 to "S. R. O." Coming: "One of the Bravest" 19..... At the Grand, Willoughby's Family Museum Co. 21 and week.

He declared that with the present lax jury laws, which allow saloons to openly violate the law, the theatres should be allowed to run. He also put a stop to the fees of the bond sharks who were waxing fat off the arrested actors.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Attractions: Charles Constantine, Hewlett and Carroll and Lewis.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Washington.—At the New National Theatre, Wilson Barrett comes April 21-26. Aug. Daly's Co. drew audiences which tested the capacity of the house at every performance, at advanced prices. "Natural Gas" 28-May 3.

ALBAUGH'S GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—The Carleton Opera Co. April 21-26. The rendition of "Nanon" by the Carleton Co. during their initial week of Summer opera met with fair success. The strong attraction at the National, however, militated somewhat against big houses elsewhere. "Dorothy" 28-May 3.

HARRIS' BIJOU THEATRE.—"Bootles' Baby" April 21-26. "Shadows of a Great City" had satisfactory business 14-19. "Little Nugget" comes 28-May 5.

KERNAN'S NEW THEATRE.—Rose Hill's Co. April 21-26. The Henry Burlesque Co. played an excellent engagement 14-19. Metropolitan Specialty Co. 28-May 5.

LINCOLN MUSIC HALL.—The University of Pennsylvania Banjo and Glee Club, for the benefit of the Washington Hospital for Foundlings April 25, is the only announcement for the present week. The story of "Ben Hur" was beautifully illustrated 17 by tableaux interspersed with readings of extracts from Gen. Wallace's book. The characters were taken by some of our best citizens, who lent their aid to swell the coffers of the National Homœopathic Hospital. The audience was a large and distinguished one, and in response to popular demand the entertainment was repeated 18.

GLOBE THEATRE.—Cafe license or not, this house seems to be making money, week of 14-19 being one of the largest in the history of the house. The people on this week: Dan Leavitt, Edward and Caroline De Haas, Sailor Stanley, Timmons and McCloud, Frank Wagner and Wm. Hart, Nettie Fields, Clark and Eddie Gibbs, John J. Christian and Lou Edwards.

NOTES.—The only house running here at present at standard prices is the National.—even higher prices prevailed during the Daly's' engagement last week—and the prices at Albaugh's, Harris' and Kernan's are 25, 50 and 75 cents, while at the Globe 10, 20 and 30 cents is charged. Barnum's Circus is booked for May 14, 15 ..... It is reported here that the large plot of ground at the corner of New York Avenue and Fourteenth Street, until lately used as a bicycle school, will be transformed into an immense amphitheatre, capable of seating 4,000 people. The plan is to accommodate any attraction that may present itself, from a circus to a vaudeville entertainment. The necessity of such a place does not hardly seem to exist here, and it is extremely doubtful that such an enterprise would pay. At the same time, it is understood that the parties having the thing under consideration are amply able to risk a considerable amount in the venture; but this, like the project of erecting a new theatre on Twelfth Street, mentioned in a recent letter, may "die a borning."

UTAH.

Salt Lake City.—At the Salt Lake Theatre, N. C. Goodwin Jr. drew large audiences April 9, 10, "A Night Off" and "An Arabian Night" 16, 17 ..... At the Grand Opera House, "Zigzag" played 11, 12, to fair business. "Alone in London" comes 21, 22, 23. "Fantasma" 24, 25, 26, James O'Neill 28, 29, 30.

CONNECTICUT.

New Haven.—Entertainments by local talent supersede the professionals somewhat this week. The Hyperion offers no theatrical attraction until April 26, when Margaret Mather plays afternoon and evening. "The Corsair" drew well 14, and disbanded for the season. Marie Hubert Frohman played to a large house at a Grand Army benefit 17. "Bootles' Baby" did a fair business 18, 19.

PROCTOR'S OPERA HOUSE.—"Mr. Barnes of New York" comes 22, 23, McKee Rankin 24. "Little Lord Fauntleroy" drew fair houses 14-16, as did R. B. Mantell 18, "The Stepping Stone" 19.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Bellwood's Burlesque Co. 21-23, "Peck's Bad Boy" 22-26. Edwin Arden did a good business 14-16. "Guilty Without Crime" 17-19. Lilly Clay's Colossal Gaiety Co. 28-30. J. B. Polk May 1-3.

DELEVAN OPERA HOUSE, MERIDEN.—"Around the World in Eighty Days" April 21, 22. Margaret Mather 23. Gilmore's Band drew a large house afternoon of 15. "Mugg's Landing" drew lightly 16, "Upside Down" did fairly 17, as did "Bootles' Baby" 18. Bellwood's Burlesque and Novelty Co. did a large business 19.

NOTES.—Frederic Bryton did a good business at the Sterling, Birmingham, 19. "Muggs' Landing" drew lightly 17. "Upside Down" drew well 16 ..... George W. Thomas, of "Barred Out," sprained his knee while driving into a box during the performance at the Grand 16. ..... One of the portieres was destroyed by fire during the production of "Muggs' Landing" at the Sterling 17. ..... Edwin Arden closed his season in "Barred Out" 19. On June 1 he opens in New York with his new play, "Ragglan's Way."

Emma Abbott's Opera Co. ..... At Foot Guard Armory, Gilmore's Band packed this place April 15 ..... At Allyn Hall, "McCarthy's Mishaps" had fair houses. Allyn Hall was leased by Mark Madison, sold to bail from Saginaw, Mich., last week, and "McCarthy's Mishaps" was his first attraction. He failed to pay any of his help, orchestra or attaches, so they had him arrested after the performance 19. He did not have any money to pay with, but promised to pay Monday morning. He has not been seen since Saturday night. He had contracted with the Howard Manufacturing Co. for chairs, and had the hall repainted. He had also made arrangements with the plumber to have gas fixtures placed over the entrance, and cut quite a dash around town telling what he was going to do. He not only failed to pay his bills, but borrowed money from the proprietor of the hall and others ..... Prof. Carpenter had fair attendance at Unity Hall last week.

THE NEW YORK STAGE.

White's Varieties (Concluded).

Frank S. Chanfrau was the first dramatic manager to open it, Oct. 18, 1852. He received from Christy a weekly salary of $100, and 25 per cent. of the receipts when he acted. It was at this time that his acquaintance began with Miss Albertine. In the company were John ("that rascal Jack") Dunn, A. H. ("Dolly") Davenport, Jerry Merrifield, Keeler, Miss Albertine, Rose Merrifield, Miss Isherwood, Mr. and Mrs. France, William R. Floyd and others.

Mme. Albertine had a checkered career. Her right name was Hannah Manchester, and she was born at the Stone Bridge, Tiverton, R. I., in 1831. Her debut was at Augusta, Me., as Sophia in "The Rendezvous," during the season of 1846-7, but she soon adopted the art of dancing, and Pauline Desjardins was her instructress. When F. S. Chanfrau appeared at the Olympic Theatre, Washington, D. C., Albertine was engaged to support him. Her next appearance was at the Arch Street Theatre, Philadelphia, as leading support to the elder Booth. This was in March, 1850. She traveled with F. S. Chanfrau for six seasons, commencing in the Fall of 1850. In California she not only played Lize to Chanfrau's Mose, but such characters as Clarisse Delville, in "Satan in Paris," and Dot, in "The Cricket on the Hearth," and danced to the great delight of old "Forty-niners." In 1852 they returned to New York, and at Astor Place Opera House drew all Gotham to witness their companion pictures of the "Bowery B'hoy and His Gal." In 1857, Albertine severed her engagement wi h Mr. Chanfrau, and returned to California, starring there for two years with increasing popularity, when she was induced to accept an engagement to go to Australia with G. V. Brooke. While acting at Ballarat she caught a cold, which turned into the colonial fever. She recovered and commenced to dance, but became so blind that she could scarcely see the footlights, and was compelled to quit the stage. She was treated for her eyes for one year, without receiving any benefit. At last, driven by poverty—all her jewelry and clothes having been parted with—she went into the Benevolent Asylum in Ballarat, where she learned to sew, knit and read. She wrote to America to her friends, but never received any reply. For years she was considered dead by all who knew her in this country, such a report having been printed in the Australian papers and copied in various American papers. After having been in that country for fifteen years, a letter was received here from Stuart O'Brien, of which the following is a copy:

BALLARAT, VICTORIA, AUSTRALIA, Jan. 11, 1875.

In visiting the Benevolent Asylum in this city, I discovered a poor American lady, formerly a member of the profession, whose sad case at once enlisted my sympathies, and I take the liberty of calling the attention of my professional brothers and sisters in America, through your valuable journal, to a most worthy object of charity. I was introduced to a blind inmate, who, I was astonished to discover, was a Mme. Albertine, who, some years ago, I saw in the Celeste style of drama here, and thought her very good. She is a native of Boston, Mass., and came to Australia thirteen years ago, playing in all the theatres. Through illness the poor woman became totally blind some seven years ago, and has been for a long time an inmate of this benevolent institution. She is about forty years of age, and of a most sensitive nature. Her only object now is to get back to her native place, where she would be among her own people. I do think this a case in which all members of our profession should unite in providing for her future, and as far as is in my power I will do all I can to forward her to her friends. The expense of sending her to Boston would be about two hundred and fifty dollars. Frank Chanfrau will remember the lady well, and will doubtless aid her. She was the original Lize in "A Glance at New York," and was known as Miss Albertine. Need I say more to the members of my profession in America? She is a poor, afflicted, sightless woman, and an American by birth. Yours truly.

STUART O'BRIEN, Theatre Royal, Melbourne.

This was the first intimation her friends had of her existence. Through the extraordinary kindness of Mr. O'Brien, Mr. Adams, American Consul, and Commander Chandler, who went 160 miles into the interior of Australia to Ballarat to take her on board his ship, she reached America. Just before her arrival home her brother in law received the following communication:

THEATRE ROYAL, MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA, March 10, 1875.

SIR—Your sister in law, Mme. Albertine, for some years quite blind, and an inmate of one of our institutions, left for New York per United States ship of war Swatara, having had a passage generously granted her by Commander Ralph Chandler. The ship will arrive in New York about the end of May next, and she desired me to write to you as to her reception on her arrival. She also suggested that I should ask you to write to Bessie and Susan, Manchester. I shall be most happy to hear from you of her safe arrival at New York, and that there is some hope of the restoration of her sight.

I am, sir, your obedient servant, STUART O'BRIEN.

To WILLIAM CANNON, New Bedford, Mass.

The Swatara arrived here with Albertina on board June 1, 1875, and for a brief period she resided at Hoboken, N. J., after which she went to New Bedford, Mass., where she remained up to her death with her sister, Mrs. Cannon. Before going to Australia she was a regular member of the Dramatic Fund, paying her dues annually, and up to the announcement of her death her dues were paid regularly and faithfully by Frank Chanfrau, who was a director of the Fund. As soon as it was known that she was still alive her name was put back on the list on condition that her back dues ($175) were paid, which was done by S. L. M. Barlow, Barney McAuley, J. H. McVicker and Chanfrau. These were the only ones that contributed one cent. Frank Chanfrau says he tried for three months to raise the money. She died Oct. 6, 1889, at the residence of her sister, Mrs. William C. Cannon, at New Bedford, Mass.

In February, 1853, this house was remodeled and opened as the

with regular dramatic performances. James Pilgrim, the author-actor, was the manager, who commenced operations 25, with a small stock company. "The Serious Family" was acted March 2, with Mr. Robinson as Aminadab Sleek. Also, in "The Serious Family," "A Husband at Sight," Miss Albertine as Catherine; a dance by Miss Sophie followed, after which Miss Mitchell played Joseph, in "The Young Scamp." The prices of admission were: Boxes and parquet, 25 cents; second tier, 12½ cents.

John R. Scott commenced an engagement March 16. He appeared as Sir Giles Overreach, in "A New Way to Pay Old Debts," followed 17 by "The Stranger," with Mrs. Masen as the Countess; 18, "Virginius," on which occasion M. W. Leffingwell made his bow in the farce, "P. P., or The Man and the Tiger;" 19, "Don Cæsar de Bazan;" 21, Scott as Luke Fielding, in "The Willow Copse;" 26, "Rob Roy," for his benefit, and Miss Mitchell played Jack Sheppard; 28, "Richard III;" 30, Michael, in "The Adopted Child;" 31, "Richelieu;" April 2, "Damon and Pythias," and "Wallace;" 4, the new drama "Eveleen Wilson," a dramatization by Mr. Pilgrim, from the story of that name. John R. Scott closed his engagement April 16. "The Momentous Question" was acted 18, with J. M. Cooke as Robert Shelly, Miss Mitchell as Rachael Ryland. "Eveleen Wilson" followed, with Pilgrim, Robinson, Miss Mitchell and Mrs. Masen in the principal characters, and the evening's entertainment closed with "The Boys of Saratoga," Julia Pelby playing Caroline Grantley. 20, Mrs. H. P. Grattan acted Lady Randolph in "Douglas." May 9 was the anniversary of the N. Y. Dramatic Society, and the performance given here consisted of "The Merchant of Venice"—Harry Seymour as Shylock, Miss Grey as Portia and Kate Hunter as Nerissa—"The Review," with Welsh Edwards and Fanny Osborne in the principal characters; Dutch readings by Sam Glenn, and the farce, "My Wife's Second Floor."

The next manager was Charles R. Thorne, who opened Aug. 1, with "The Poor Soldier," "The Child of the Regiment" and "The Lady and the Devil." The company included Julia Pelby, Delia Norval, (who was murdered at Windsor Locks, Ct.); Rose May, Allen, Mesdames C. R. Thorne, Brunton (formerly Helen Matthews), Barnett, Monell, Lewis, Mestayer, Brunton, John Winans, A. L. Vincent, Odell, Harry Seymour, Tom Wemyss, Holmes, J. B. Wright (stage manager). Mr. Thorne took a benefit Sept. 3, when the following bill was presented: "The Limerick Boy," cast as follows:

Paddy Miles.....James Pilgrim	Coates.....Weaver
Mrs. Fidget.....Mrs. Monell	Remden.....Odell

A dance by Miss L. Folle was given, after which came "Michael Earl," cast as follows: Michael Earl, Harry Watkins; Phillip D'Arville, Griffiths; David Gillihower, Weaver; Andrew, Holmes; Jackson, Thomas; Dame Stapleton, Mrs. Monell; Julia Spring, Julia Pelby; Stephen Gerard, Vincent; Miles, Seymour; Bates, Odell; Mary, Miss Allen. Jeremiah Clip.....Goodall	Podge.....Griffiths
Jane Chatterly.....	Twitter.....Holmes
Mrs. C. R. Thorne	Mrs. Twitter.....Miss Allen
Mrs. Rattleton...Miss Pelby

The performance closed with "The Ourang Outang."

George Lea bought this house from Charley White in 1854, and ran it for a few months as a novelty theatre, after which he sold it to a German by the name of Herrmann, and it became a German theatre until Jan. 1, 1855. It was then closed, and on March 11, 1855, was sold at auction. It was soon after converted into stores.

The Old Stuyvesant, located at 663 Broadway, opposite Bond Street, was afterwards variously known as Academy Hall, Donaldson Opera House and Mozart Hall. Mons. L. Poznanski appeared here in concert Dec. 20, 1852. R. H. Sliter, the clog dancer, appeared Sept. 11, 1852. John E. Owens opened here July 25, 1853, for the Summer season, with his polyphonic, myriographic monologue, founded on his ascent of Mont Blanc. Sept. 28, there was exhibited here what was considered a wonderful curiosity—Cornelius Vroman, aged 57 years, a native of Monroe County, N. Y., who had been in apparent, pleasant and profound sleep for five years. The following was the advertisement: "He may be said to vegetate only; his power of appreciating is at zero; he is in circulation and nerve power, below the oyster or the turtle, barely swallowing when food is put into his mouth. His pulse ranges from fifty to ninety, and his sensation is almost nothing. Pins and needles may be stuck into his flesh, and he evinces no feeling. The temperature of his body cannot be usually over 60 degrees." Several physicians' certificates were published to the effect that there was no deception in the case. Perham's "Seven Mile Mirror" opened here Oct. 31, 1853. Sam S. Sanford's Opera Troupe opened here Aug. 28, 1854. Perham's Burlesque Opera Troupe opened here Oct. 16, 1854, in the Rabbie Family's comic pantomime (burlesque), "Sam Patch," arranged by Edwin Marden, being a burlesque on the Ravel Family. Closed Jan. 5, 1855, for two months. This same troupe returned in March, and remained until July. The next occupants were Christy's Minstrels, who commenced Dec. 10 and continued twelve nights. E. H. Pierce, J. B. Donniker, Ben Mallory, J. W. Raynor, Lewis Mauns, W. P. Collins, N. W. Gould, T. Christian, H. Huntington, S. Condit, Jos. Murphy. It was opened as

Donaldson's Opera House

Dec. 24. Tom Thumb and Dr. Valentine appeared here April 28, 1856.

Mme. Anna De La Grange gave a concert here Nov. 10, 1857, for the benefit of Henrietta Simon. It was opened as by Fox & Curran July 16, 1860, as a variety theatre. Charley White opened here Aug. 27. J. H. Ogden, the English comic singer, made his American debut Sept. 3. Marietta Ravel, the tight rope dancer (now the wife of Martin Hanley), the Carlo Family, Cool Burgess and Kate Pennoyer were added to the company Oct. 22. David Braham was the musical director. Adah Isaacs Menken appeared Dec. 17 as a singer and dancer. George Christy's Minstrels commenced a Summer season June 10, 1861, the principals of which were George Christy, Cool White, George Fox, Ed. Haslam, W. Marks, J. A. Herman, W. Wrightman, J. Bayley, T. McNally, J. Clairville, F. Cardella, J. Kelk, F. Boniface, Blanque, Lynes and Masters Bobby and Leon. Fox & Sharpley's Minstrels took possession of the hall Oct. 7, and remained for three weeks. In this company were Sam Sharpley and Dave Reed. They were succeeded 28 by Hooley's Minstrels, Hooley & Griffin, proprietors, who remained until May, 1862, during which time G. W. H. Griffin, Charles Fox, Billy Gray, Melville, Marlowe, Reed, Childs, J. C. Reeves, Rollin Howard, Asche, McNally, R. M. Hooley, Morley, Currie and Smitze appeared. In May, 1862, the Allegha-nians appeared.

Franconi's Hippodrome.

During the Winter of 1852-3 there was formed a syndicate of showmen (eight Americans), including Avery Smith, Richard Sands, Titus Sr. and Seth B. Howes, for the purpose of introducing the hippodrome to America. Corporal Thompson's lot, situated at the northwest corner of Twenty-third Street and Broadway (now occupied by the Fifth Avenue Hotel)—also once known as a hostelrie, a sort of stopping place for turfmen and other sportive gentlemen—was secured, and a large structure erected. Although at that time the location was out of town, it was considered the most convenient. It was a little yellow wooden house, originally built as a country residence by Christopher Mildeberger. At the time referred to, fast trotting horses and light wagons were very popular, and Corporal Thompson's house was a favorite stopping place for the gilded youth, the fast men and the better class of sporting characters of the period. The land belonged to the Howland estate. It did not bring in much income, and when Monnot made an offer for the property, his proposition was accepted. The little yellow house soon disappeared to make room for the Hippodrome, which was such an attraction, where the sports of the Roman circus, the chariot races and gladiatorial contests and other performances, of which Mr. Barnum has of late years had so much to say, were anticipated for the entertainment of the curiosity seekers of that period. The structure was built of brick walls, two stories high, while the auditorium was covered with a tin roof, the inside of the walls being covered with canvas. The first exhibition was given May 2, 1853. The people were Mme. Franconi, Henry Franconi, Mme. Chiarini, Les Freres Siegrist, Mme. Siegrist, Sylvester, Mme. Ricard, Mlle. Mason, Angelina, Caroline Vidal, Leontine Geilhard, Adeline Pigett, Eugenie Maria, Mons. Ferdinand Maria, Eugenie Cerf, Mons. Mason, Mons. and Master Nicolo. H. Franconi was director of hippodrome, J. C. Adams leader of band, Thomas Coates conductor of orchestra. The prices of admission were: Boxes, 50cts.; reserved seats, $1; pit, 25cts.; season tickets, $50. Long before the initial performance commenced the sale of tickets was stopped, and many thousand were disappointed in obtaining admission. The immense amphitheatre was crowded in every part by an audience of 4,000, which was the capacity of the place. The circle was 700ft. in circumference. Franconi's Hippodrome was conducted in a style of novelty unknown in equestrian performances. It was a vast amphitheatre, having no stage, but enclosing a stradium, over which were run chariot races, and upon which other exciting displays were made. The Siegrist Brothers introduced in this city trapeze and La Perche acts, and claim to be the first to have done them in America; but Mons. La Thorne, the celebrated athlete, and stage manager at 444 Broadway for a long time, did the La Perche about one week previous to the Siegrist's appearance. The contortionist, Mons. Deverne, and the Sylvester Family, in the spiral globe act (for the first time in America), were also seen. Franconi introduced his performing manege and race horses and racing ostriches. The latter were driven in harness and were rode under saddle by small boys around the race track. There were male and female characters, racing camels, elephants, reindeers, etc. The stag hunt was done with horses and hounds, leaping barricades and ditches (the ditches were filled with water, twelve feet wide). James M. Nixon was manager of the performance; he also did an act with two boys, on a platform on wheels, while being driven around the ring. Each performance commenced with "The Field of the Cloth of Gold." In the tournament with knights on horseback, they did a combat with battle axes and spears, finishing the act with one horse and rider supposed to be killed. The horse was a large one, broken to fall and feign dead; he allowed himself to be rolled over and over on a platform on wheels, drawn by a pair of horses around the track. He remained motionless, not moving a muscle. The entertainment was continued for about three weeks, when the American artists, with their horses, together with Chiarini and his performing horses, started for a Summer tour. They showed at Boston in the Public Garden Fourth of July week.

J. A. Dumbolton took a benefit Aug. 12, 1853, on which occasion a trotting match took place between Lady Suffolk, entered by Hiram Woodruff, and Mac, entered by William Whelan. The first season closed Nov. 26, 1853, and the party went to Boston. The second season opened June 26, 1854. The Fifth Avenue Hotel was built and finally completed in 1859.

AMONG THE PLAYERS EVERYWHERE.

— The next meeting of the Grand Lodge, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, fixed for the second week in July, will probably not be held at Cleveland, though that city is the place named. When at its last meeting in this city the lodge, on motion of C. B. Squires, of Cleveland, voted to hold the coming meeting in that city, the fact was overlooked that, being organized under a special charter granted by the State of New York, the lodge cannot legally transact business outside the limits of this State. A member of the lodge, having arrived at this conclusion, has engaged Lawyer Louis C. Waehner to institute proceedings in the Supreme Court to enjoin it from meeting in Cleveland. Mr. Waehner will apply for an injunction some time during the present week, and will show by his papers that any act of the Grand Lodge performed at Cleveland could not be sustained if attacked, and he will ask the court to enjoin Grand Secretary A. C. Moreland from taking the seal of the lodge out of the State. The Exalted Grand Ruler, Simon Quiplan, of Chicago, could extricate the lodge from the predicament by calling the meeting in this city, but it is believed by the persons moving in the matter that he would not be disposed to do so without a judicial decision on the question raised. If the court grants the injunction, and Mr. Quinlan then refuses to call the meeting for New York, he may be compelled by mandamus to issue the call. It is not anticipated, however, that mandamus proceedings will be necessary.

— John F. Bragg, the well known pioneer manager in the lecture and lyceum field on the Pacific Coast, starts North in a few days with a strong concert company. Mr. Bragg, who has successfully handled Charles Dickens, George W. Cable, Bill Nye, and, in fact, all the stars in the lecture field, is arranging for a course of lectures for the coming season, which he will give in twenty or more of the principal cities on the coast. He will take out the best talent obtainable, and, while the venture is a new departure, it will undoubtedly be a successful one, as the people West of the Rockies only ask for an opportunity to patronize celebrated men and women of the East. Mr. Bragg is a hard worker, and those who go to the coast under his management will find everything possible done to insure their success.

— Marie Hubert Frohman has just purchased a new play, entitled "The Witch." It is said to border on tragedy, and she will assume the heroine's part when the piece is brought out in this city, early next Autumn. Notwithstanding the impression that there are other plays of this name, the copyright authorities at Washington have officially decided to the contrary. The action of the play converns the fortunes of a young girl—a second Evangeline—left a child to the training and protection of a Catholic priest. She lives, surrounded by savages, at a mission in the forest, near Salem, and in witchcraft days, when innocent girls were burned at the stake by Puritan fanatics. Among the characters are a brave young man and an Indian who keeps guard over the heroine in the absence of the priest. When she is about to enter a convent, there is a terrible struggle between love and duty. Later she is seized by the authorities of Salem and accused of witchcraft, and from prison she is led forth amid insults and brutality to be burned alive. The fire has already been kindled, and the flames are rising around her, when the faithful priest suddenly appears and declares her innocence. With the aid of the young lover she is rescued, and it is then ascertained that the Judge who sentenced her to be burned is her own father. In one of the scenes the quaint old life of the Puritans in Salem is vividly portrayed, showing how men and women are put into the "stocks" and publicly degraded for kissing and making love on the Sabbath.

She was to return it in a specified time if she did not like it. The play came back, and since then the ladies were able to sell it. They read in THE CLIPPER a description of "Natasqua," which Miss Doree claims is a translation from the French, and they immediately agreed that it was their play without any "probable, possible shadow of doubt—no possible doubt whatever." Mrs. Henderson and Mrs. Estwan intend to protect the rights of the buyer of their play, and will apply for an injunction restraining Miss Doree from producing it in the future.

MANAGER SAM T. JACK and M. B. Leavitt have amicably arranged matters, whereby Manager Jack has the exclusive rights to the trade mark of Lilly Clay, the matter having been arranged April 19. Manager Jack is now busy getting everything in readiness for his two troupes for the coming season, both of which will be larger and more comprehensive than anything this energetic and wide-awake manager has ever attempted. Each company will tour the country in special palace cars, and there is no reason in the world why both troupes should not do an immense business and give great financial results to their clever manager. His ideas are most comprehensive and liberal, and the engagements already made show that his companies will be composed of notable performers. The costuming will be expensive, and the best workmen are now at work on extensive wardrobes for the two shows. Rosenfeld, is entitled "The Song of the Steepie," and will be so arranged as to be made available for the concert, variety or minstrel stage. A peculiar feature of the melody will be its adaptability for orchestral instrumentation, and its vocal accompaniment, which will introduce chimes of the Easter, Christmas and wedding bells. Editor W. J. Arkell will issue the song with a handsomely engraved illustration of its text in the above named journal shortly.

SAM JONES, the evangelist, thinks he has just cause for complaint against Bert Davis, agent of Geo. Wilson's Minstrels. Davis struck Aberdeen, Miss., last week, where his company were booked to appear, and when he discovered that the opposition would be the celebrated "Georgia Cracker," Sam Jones, who, not being satisfied with the population of Aberdeen to draw from, had made arrangements to run excursion trains from every city within a radius of a hundred miles. Davis thought he saw a good point to work. He had all the principal towns billed for his minstrels and every town programmed with flaming dodgers reading: "Wilson's Excursion to Aberdeen, Miss. One fare round trip to see Geo. Wilson," etc. As the railroad excursions had all been arranged by the Rev. Sam, he felt quite aggrieved when he discovered what the minstrel man had done, and on his opening night proceeded to deal personally with the young man of "gall." The result is that Davis does not stand as well in the estimation of the Aberdeenites as he did; but the work was done, and the "traveling actors" reaped the benefit of the evangelist's efforts.

SOME NEW PRODUCTIONS.

Plot and Cast of Wilson Barrett's New Play; "What Women Will Do."

The first American production of Wilson Barrett's new play, "What Women Will Do," by Jerome K. Jerome and Addison Bright, occurred at the Park Theatre, Philadelphia, April 17. Under the title of "Ruth, or Woman's Faith," it was originally acted, for copyright purposes, March 20, at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, Eng. The play is divided into a prologue and three acts, and the scene shifts from the wilds of Australia to rural England. The hero is an outlaw and murderer, who, after causing misery for everyone else in the play, dies picturesquely, with a confession on his lips. In the prologue Dr. Millett is examining the body of a strange man in the log hut or liquor store of Christopher Raynham in Australia. Raynham and the Doctor go out to get restoratives, when Dr. Eric Stanleigh enters, and, thinking the sick man is poisoned, administers an antidote which he himself has discovered. Raynham returns and finds the sick man alone. He at once proceeds to rob him, and takes his belt, which is heavy with gold. The man, however, revives and Raynham chokes him. At this moment an old chum named Eustace Linton bursts in to see Raynham, who barely has time to hide his stolen treasure. Linton is fleeing from justice, being wanted for the murder of a naval officer at Adelaide. The two murderers at once conceive the idea of disguising Linton as the dead man, which is quickly done, and Raynham swears that the dead man is Eustace Linton when the officers come in search of him. Dr. Millett then returns, and is surprised to find the man dead. He examines the glass which contains the antidote, and declares that the man has been poisoned. Suspicion is at once thrown off Raynham and thrown upon Dr. Stanleigh, who, however, has left for parts unknown. The scene then shifts to England, where Raynham is living in luxury under the name of Herbert Denning, and he is young Dr. Eric's rival for the hand of his cousin, Ruth. The young lady favors the doctor, and Denning is seeking revenge when Doctor Eric tells him his experience in Australia with a dying man, to whom he administered an antidote for poison. Denning at once goes to Ruth, and declares he will denounce her lover as a murderer unless she consents to marry him, and the poor girl agrees. Ruth refuses to marry Eric, and declines to give any reason. Subsequently Denning and Stanleigh quarrel, and fight a duel. Denning is mortally wounded, and dies after being nursed by Ruth and Eric. He has, however, previously confessed his crime, and the lovers are made happy. The cast: Herbert Denning, Wilson Barrett; Dr. Eric Stanleigh, Cooper Cliffe; Eustace Linton, Austin Melford; Sam Skerrow, George Barrett; Inspector Jaike, Stafford Smith; Kinvett, W. Belmore; Dr. Millett, Edward Irwin; Keighley, A. E. Field; Mr. Mervyn, T. W. Percival; Mr. Jansen, Murray Carson; Mrs. Mackett, Alice Cooke; Betsy, Bessie Carlyon; Caryl Muir, Lillie Belmore; Ruth Mervyn, Mary Eastlake.

"Die Nachbarinnen."

This three act farcial comedy (in German), adapted by Hans Ritter from the French of MM. Chivot and Duru, was seen for the first time in America April 17, at the Amberg Theatre, this city. In its original form it had a long run at the Nouveautes Theatre, Paris. The plot involves a secret door, connecting two suites of rooms in a Paris lodging house. This door is very useful to two woman who hire these apartments. One of them moves away rather suddenly, and her apartment is rented by M. Dupotard, who has come to town to make arrangements for the marriage of his daughter, Laura, to Celestin, nephew of an old friend. Dupotard is ignorant, innocent and self-important, Mme. Dupotard is amazingly ingenuous and talkative, and the secret door opens and shuts continually. The best character in the piece is an extraordinary Russian Prince, Sergius. Of course the lightness of touch, the airy grace and crisp, staccato speech of French players are required to bring forth all the possibilities of such a play; but the broad fun and noisy earnestness of Mr. Amberg's players satisfy the habitues of his theatre better than the art of Coquelin would.

"Percy Pendragon."

Rosina Vokes introduced two comediettas, new to New Yorkers, at Daly's Theatre, April 14. The first was "Percy Pendragon," from H. J. Byron's "Married in Haste," and was done for the first time in this country at the Lee Avenue Academy, Williamsburg, N. Y., April 12. The little comedy passes quickly, and concerns itself with the relations of a young married couple, both husband and wife artists, to a wealthy and eccentric uncle, to whose wishes the heedless nephew had given too little thought. The uncle's obduracy is melted with amazing and indeed incredible rapidity by the charms and graces of his nephew's bride. This trifle has some neat turns and lively bits, but is chiefly enjoyable from the fine acting of Felix Morris as the uncle, and the bewitching eyes of Emily Bancker, who takes the part of the niece by marriage.

"Wig and Gown."

F. W. Sidney is the author of "Wig and Gown," the second comedietta, in which the scene is laid in a barrister's chambers in the Temple. This piece was first acted in America, at the New Market Theatre, St. Paul, Dec. 21, 1889. The maiden of the barrister's heart and troth enter these chambers in the absence of the tenant, dons the barrister's wig and gown, is mistaken for a young man and is thus enabled to overhear a conversation between the returning barrister and a friend of his, concerning yachts and dogs with feminine names. The true purport of their words she goes far wide of. Hence result some passing clouds of anger, and a little rain of tears with the sunshine suddenly breaking.

SHOW NEWS FROM OVER THE OCEAN.

HENRY IRVING'S forthcoming production of a new stage version of "The Bride of Lammermoor" seems to be the principal theatrical topic in London. The last play on that subject produced there was Charles Fechter's version, made for him by Palgrave Simpson, which was not a direct dramatization of Scott, but an adaptation of a French play by M. Ducauge, "La Fiancee de Lammermoor." This was acted at the Lyceum Theatre in 1865. The French piece was written for Frederic Lemaitre in 1828. A version of it, probably Simpson's, was presented in this city Dec. 10, 1866, at the Olympic Theatre. George Jordan was Edgar. The play failed here.

"NIXIE," Mrs. F. H. Burnett's new play, has been "slated" by the London critics. Mrs. Oscar Beringer's production of "The Prince and the Pauper" has also been coolly received, though Little Vera Beringer is praised in the title roles.

NEW YORK CITY.

Review of the Week.—The event of the week approaching nearest to novelty was found in the special performance at PALMER'S, Thursday afternoon, April 17, of "The Gondoliers," by the Francis Wilson Co. After considerable negotiation, in which D'Oyly Carte's permission was the final settlement, Mr. Wilson brought his extensive troupe over from Philadelphia on a fast train Thursday forenoon, arriving in time to reach the theatre shortly before one o'clock P. M. The full orchestra and costumes were carried, and accompanying the singers came Managers Samuel F. Nixon and J. Fred Zimmerman, of Philadelphia; A. H. Canby, of Mr. Wilson's staff, and others. A number of Quaker City admirers of Mr. Wilson also came over to see him triumph. The house was practically sold several days before the performance, and the audience was of brilliant makeup, ladies predominating, however. The scenery used in the Carte production of the opera was placed at Mr. Wilson's disposal, and but for a delay in the arrival of the costumes the performance would have started promptly at one o'clock, the advertised hour. As it was, it was nearer 1:30 before the curtain ascended on the opening chorus. It had been confidently expected that Mr. Wilson and his people would win a success here, and there was no disappointment. They sang the rather dull work with far more vim and vigor of attack than had characterized the Carte company's performance, infusing new life into its too quiet humor, and rounding out the dull moments as much as possible. The chorus was especially effective, being composed of fresh faces, and comely ones in most cases. Mr. Wilson's Giuseppe was by far the most comical portrayal that character has yet had, and yet it was not "gagged" or padded in an unpardonable degree. An interpolated lullaby in the first act was the most important liberty taken with the music, while the text was handled with far more respect and fidelity than had been looked for. It was much to Mr. Wilson's credit that he could provoke laughter with so slender opportunities. Marie Jansen's Tessa, Laura Moore's Gianetta and Elma Delaro's Duchess were praiseworthy characterizations, and Miss Delaro was notably successful. The orchestra was capitally handled by Sig. De Novellis. Encores were numerous, and at the close Mr. Wilson was forced to make a speech of thanks. We append the cast to complete the record: Guiseppe Palmieri, Francis Wilson; Marco Palmieri, Hubert Wilke; The Duke of Plazo-Toro, Chas. Plunkett; Luiz, Thos. H. Persse; Don Alhambra Del Bolero, H. Macdonough; Antonio, Geo. H. Carr; Francesco, James Glisson; Giorgio, B. F. Joslyn; Annibale, Richard Guise; Ricardo, F. W. Steiger; Gianetta, Laura Moore; Fianetta, Lucile Garcean; Vittoria, Jessie Quigley; Guila, Ida Eissing; Duchess of Plazo-Toro, Elma Delaro; Casilda, Nettie Lyford; Inez, Effie Chamberlain; Tessa, Marie Jansen. Contadine—Laura Wybie, Jenny Pierce, Frankie Sherwood, Marie Kellogg, Minnie Eckard, Celia Eissing, Florence Kelly, Lulu Farrance, Clara Allen, Nellie Chamberlain, Phillippi Abbiatti, Estelle Botsford, Addie Plunkett, Evie Evans, Annie Black etc. Gondoliers—A. Amadea, Ed. Fritchie, Geo. Fielding, H. Hoffman, John Hobbs, H. Ledbury, G. Pullmann, Chas. Segelini, Frank Struvey, F. W. Steiger, Chas. Stultz, Gus Eissing, T. Wood, H. J. West. After the performance, at 4 o'clock, the company at once took carriages to the ferry, and made the trip to Philadelphia without delay, arriving in ample time to give their regular evening performance at the Broad Street Theatre. The visit here had been a pleasant one to all concerned. It had incidentally advertised Mr. Wilson and his production, and it had furnished an interesting comparison between the Carte performance and that of the Wilson troupe; but, though it had clearly emphasized the strength and value of Mr. Wilson's personal popularity, it had not, by any means, demonstrated that the public verdict was in error when it was pronounced against "The Gondoliers." .....The week of Italian opera at the METROPOLITAN turned out brilliantly. On 14 Patti reappeared, her throat difficulty having been cured. She was heard in "Romeo and Juliet," and the house would have been packed had there not been some doubt as to her appearance. Sig. Ravelli was an excellent Romeo. On 15, Mme. Albani, Mlle. Bauermeister, Mme. Fabbri and Sigs. Ravelli, Del Puente and others sang "Rigoletto" to a moderately large audience. "The Barber of Seville," 16, brought forth Patti again, this time to a crowded audience, and in her most gracious mood. The cast included Sigs. Perugini, Carbone, Bieletto, Del Puente and Marcassa, and Mlle. Bauermeister. The performance was spirited and thoroughly enjoyable. On 18 Mme. Albani made her last appearance, singing admirably in "Les Huguenots," to a well filled auditorium. The week ended notably with a matinee, 19, of "Lucia di Lammermoor," Patti drawing her usual throng of devoted admirers. This ended the regularly arranged season of the company, but Mr. Abbey has prevailed upon the diva to sing three times this week, as recompense for the disappointment caused by her illness. She will, therefore, be heard twice in this city and once (21) at Philadelphia. Richard Hawkins, one of the stage hands at the Metropolitan, while arranging the scenery for the last act of "Rigoletto," 15, was painfully hurt about the body. He and a score of others were putting up the building known in the opera as the inn. Hawkins was at work on the platform inside the canvas building, when the supports gave way, and he fell with a crash, which was heard by many people in the audience. Physicians who were in the house were summoned, and after an examination found that, though the injured man had no bones broken, he was badly shaken up and bruised. He was sent home in a carriage.....Rosina Vokes' annual engagement at DALY'S had an auspicious inaugural, her first week, closing 19, having been productive of good sized and generally fashionable audiences. Her new comedies, "Percy Pendragon" and "Wig and Gown," were quite well received. Elsewhere we make mention of their plots, and give the record of their first performance in this country. Miss Vokes has the valuable assistance of a well trained and perfectly harmonious company. A brighter entertainment than that presented by her is not often praised by metropolitan playgoers. ....."The Charity Ball" at the LYCEUM, "The Old Homestead" at the ACADEMY, "The County Fair" at the UNION SQUARE, "The Knights of Tyburn" at NIBLO'S, "Money Mad" at the STANDARD, "The Senator" at he STAR, "Aunt Jack" and "A Man of the World" at the MADISON SQUARE, "The City Directory" at the BIJOU, "Natural Gas" at the FIFTH AVENUE, "The Gondoliers" (D'Oyly Carte's Co.) at PALMER'S, "The Grand Duchess" at the CASINO, "A Long Lane" at the FOURTEENTH STREET and "Shenandoah" at PROCTOR'S TWENTY-THIRD STREET were the unchanged attractions last week. The run of "The Gondoliers" at Palmer's closed night of 19, having lasted at that house since Feb. 19. The prior stay of the Carte Co. at the Park had covered only five weeks. The failure of the Carte production in this city was amply indicated in our columns early in the run. All attempts to avert it failed, and the troupe closed wisely and not too soon. They will go back to England this week. Esther Palliser, of the Carte Co., left to join the Stetson "Gondolier" forces early in the week, occasioning a vigorous protest from Manager Palmer. Henrietta Crosman, late of Aug. Daly's Co., is again a member of the Lyceum stock, and has joined the cast of "The Charity Ball." "The Knights of Tyburn" closed prematurely at Niblo's 19, having lasted only two of the four weeks planned. Its failure is thus conceded, though it seems to be destined for the road. Richard F. Carroll, of the Casino Co., met with a painful accident on 4. At his entrance in the first act of "The Grand Duchess" he fell with his leg bent under his body, and strained the muscles so that it has been difficult ever since for him to move about. He went through with his part, but it was played 15 by Edgar Smith. Alice Harrison reappeared in "The City Directory" 14. Katherine Gray, who recently left Aug. Daly's Co., made her first appearance in "Shenandoah" 14, and Odette Tyler on that date took Lilla Vane's place as Gertrude Ellingham. "Shenandoah's" run at Proctor's ended brilliantly night of April 21, when Gen. Sherman, Gen. George Sheridan and other military notables occupied the boxes and lent eclat to the occasion. As a novelty, there were double and triple relays of characters for this farewell performance, as follow: Lilla Vane and Odette Tyler as Gertrude; Wilton Lackaye, Frank Burbeck and George Osborne as General Haverhill; Alice Haines and Nannette Comstock as Jennie Buckthorne, and Morton Selten and R. A. Roberts as Capt. Heartsease. Margery and Col. Ellingham also had double personalities. Over one hundred men appeared in the military display. The strong play had been on the boards of Proctor's since Oct. 21 last, and most of the time it had drawn very profitable houses. The company on Sunday, April 20, left direct for San Francisco. "A Long Lane" closed a three weeks' engagement at the Fourteenth Street April 19. Between the acts of "Money Mad," at the Standard, Saturday night, 19, Steele Mackaye, author of the play, made a speech explaining that Manager Hill desired the audience to cast ballots on passing out of the theatre as to whether the old negress' prayer should be retained in the drama, inasmuch as the incident and the prayer had been criticised as being sacreligious. Ballots were furnished for the purpose, and only twenty-four voted to discontinue the prayer. The votes in favor of the prayer were several hundred in number..... Week stands closed 19 were as follow: "The Burglar" at the PARK, "The Great Metropolis" (closing its tour) at the GRAND OPERA HOUSE, C. D. McCall's "Master and Man" Co. at the WINDSOR "Hands Across the Sea" at the PEOPLE'S, J. K. Emmet at the HARLEM OPERA HOUSE, Gray & Stephens' Co. at JACOBS' THIRD AVENUE and "Ten Nights in a Barroom" at the HARLEM COMIQUE. Little Lillian Rainford played Editha in "The Burglar" one night, having studied the part but two days and had but one rehearsal. She played it well, and without a break.....DOCKSTADER'S and POOLE'S remained with closed doors, though at the latter house there were lively preparations for this week's reopening under the new management, as elsewhere detailed..... Hebrew performances continued at PILLING'S, the THALIA and NEW LONDON.....At the AMBERG, there were repetitions of "Die Jagd Nach dem Gluck" part of the week, with Herr Streitmann as the star. On 17, for August Walter's benefit, "Die Nachbarinnen" and "Im Puppenladen" were done, and were also seen 18 and 19. "Die Nachbarinnin" is from the French, and was here seen for the first time in this country. Its plot and the record of its original performance appear in another column. Following was the cast at the Amberg: Dupotard, Herr Walter; Trigandier, Herr Rank; Furst Sergius Bibinoff, Herr Haack; Ein Herr mit der Brille, Herr Friese Jr.; Celestin Boussignac, Herr Ottbert; Rastabadas, Herr Sinnkold; Madame Dupolard, Fraulein Schmitz; Laura, Fraulein Burg; Theodorine, Fraulein Lietener; Claire du Haut-Pavois, Fraulein Kuhn; Eulalie, Fraulein Bella; Leonie, Fraulein Von Varndal. The audience 17 was large and demonstrative, and the farce may be credited with a fair degree of success. Several wreaths and bouquets were presented to the beneficiary.....The first week of the Barnum & Bailey Circus at the POLO GROUNDS drew big crowds, as had been expected.....At the BROADWAY, the Duff Opera Co. closed their engagement of three weeks on 19, having sung "The Pirates of Penzance" 14-19.

BROADWAY THEATRE.—The London Gaiety Co. returned to this house Monday night, April 21, reviving "Faust Up to Date" before a large and cordial audience. Florence St. John, E. J. Lonnen, the quartet of graceful dancers and the other favorites were warmly greeted. New songs and comedy interpolations have somewhat improved the burlesque itself. The company stay two weeks, this being their farewell engagement in New York. On May 5 the De Wolf Hopper Opera Co. open their long season at the Broadway, producing "Castles in the Air" for the first time.

IN the Court of Common Pleas, April 18, Judge Allen, with consent of counsel on both sides, entered an order directing Richard Mansfield to return to A. C. Gunter the manuscript and all copies, stage directions, the score and prompt books of the play, "Prince Karl, or the Dutch Courier," and enjoined him from producing the play, or any similar play, under any title. Mr. Gunter claimed that the contract between Mr. Mansfield and himself had expired.

SUNDAY EVENING DIVERSIONS.—At the Casino the following appeared in concert night of April 20: Mlle. Marie Pettigiani, Mlle. M. Bauermeister, Mlle. Guerrina, Mme. Fabbri, Sig. Enrico Vicini, Sig. Agostino Carbone, Sig. Franco Novara, Mons. A. Guille and Sig. Luigi Arditti, conductor. It was the last concert of these members of the Patti Opera Co., and the house was crowded.....The benefit for the Treasurers' Club of America was held at the Broadway 20. The programme was so long that the performance was not out till midnight. Among those who appeared were Ed. and Frank Witmark, F. F. Mackay, A. O. Duncan, Helen Russell, Dore Bros., Ada C. Hilliard, Isabelle Urquhart, E. J. Rice, Frederic Solomon, Wilton Lackaye, Maggie Cline, little Johnnie McKever, Lottie Gilson, little Gertie Boswell, Geneva Ingersoll, Master Lubin, Queen Vassar, Isabelle Evesson. Miss Evesson made her debut as a vocalist, but was not at all successful. The hits were scored by Maggie Cline, Lottie Gilson and Helen Russell. Among the disappointments were the Kernells, E. J. Henley, Celie Ellis, Frank Bush and others. The audience was large, and the encores were numerous.

DORIS' MUSEUM.—It is now the intention of Manager Doris to keep this house open all Summer. The business now being done was never so large, and there is no reason why, with no opposition in this part of the city, the experiment should not result profitably. For this week a quintet of musical artists, the Five Casolins (mandolin players), have been engaged, in conjunction with some sterling museum attractions, prominent of which are Mme. Myers (bearded lady) and Nero (card expert). Aggie Zolute (Albino) is also a new attraction. In the theatorium is an "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Co., headed by Kate Partington.

MINER'S EIGHTH AVENUE THEATRE.—The Howard Burlesque Co., headed by May Howard, is the attraction here this week. The troupe contains some clever singers and dancers among its female list of entertainers, while Harry Morris, of the male cast, is acknowledged as an extremely funny comedian. This company, upon a previous occasion here, played to a succession of large houses. Next week, a house company.

C. J. ABUD, London partner of the International Amusement Agency, of which Marcus R. Mayer is the American end, arrived in this city April 20. Mr. Abud will be here only a week, when he will return to London, but in that time he has plenty to keep him busy. In the first place, he must arrange for the coming of the London Gaiety Co., which was seen here last season. It will open at the Broadway Theatre in November, with two new burlesques, "Carmen" and "Joan d'Arc," the latter written by Fred Leslie. Leslie, Nelly Farren, Sylla Grey and Letty Lind will be in the cast. Mr. Abud also has to prepare the way for N. C. Goodwin Jr.'s Co., which will open at the London Gaiety Theatre in June. He also has to go to Boston to witness a performance of "The Prince and Pauper," and perchance pick up some ideas for the London presentation. On his way back he will stop at Hartford to talk to Mark Twain, the author of the book. Legal complications, such as were met with here, and in which Mark Twain was defeated, have been hinted at as threatening the London presentation, and Mr. Abud wants this set straight.

BIJOU THEATRE.—"The City Directory" entered its eleventh week here April 21. Business continues quite good.

"THE STEPTOE STONE," presented by one of Sydney Rosenfeld's three companies, opened at Palmer's April 21, for a stay of two weeks, Mr. Rosenfeld having hired the house. The piece has now been seen on the stages of three Broadway theatres, and still has not been able to put an honest success to its credit. From the fifty people who have appeared in the drama at different times, Mr. Rosenfeld has selected fifteen of the best for this engagement. They are Ida Vernon, Ida Waterman, Beatric Moreland, Adeline Stanhope, May Haines, Kate Osterle, Sally Williams, Marguerite Fields, Gustavus Levick, John A. Lane, Howell Hensell, Samuel Edwards, Harry Mills, Sidney Bowkett and Frank Russell. The play is given with the same scenery and accessories used at the Standard. It will be followed at Palmer's by the first New York performance of "The Editor," by Klaw & Erlanger's Co., with Louis Aldrich as the star.

ALTHOUGH the regular engagement and season of the Patti Opera Co., at the Metropolitan, closed April 19, Manager Abbey arranged with Patti to give both "Linda di Chamounix" and "La Traviata," which the diva, owing to her cold, did not sing week before last. "Linda," therefore, will be sung 23, and "La Traviata" 25, as the actual farewell. On 21 Patti and the company sang at Philadelphia, as our letter from that city tells.

"THE BLUE OFFICER," adapted from the French, is to be done at the Madison Square week of April 28, preceding the engagement of Richard Mansfield, who opens his Summer season there May 5. The new piece is to be acted by Henry Lee, Marie Burroughs, Rose Eytinge, Louise Ialfe, Geo. Osborne, Henry Holland, C. Dade, Chas. Evans and others. The adapter is announced as "Ary Eclaw."

"THE SENATOR" was acted for the one hundredth consecutive time at the Star April 22. It will run easily with profit until May 10, when it leaves for San Francisco. M. B. Curtis and Lewis Morrison follow at the Star in the first New York performance of "The Shatchen."

STANDARD THEATRE.—"Money Mad," Steele Mackaye's ultra-sensational drama, continues here. Manager Hill still has confidence in it, and time alone will tell how good or bad a prophet he is. Nothing is said about a change of attraction, at any rate.

DAVID I. THOMPSON, head usher at the Metropolitan Opera House, received a present April 16 of a fine hunting case gold watch, handsomely engraved, from the attaches of the house.

THE annual benefit of New York Lodge No. 1, B. P. O. E., at the Union Square, has been postponed, as the Actors' Fund has selected the same date (April 24) for its benefit.

AT THE UNION SQUARE, "The County Fair" and Neil Burgess are yet potent, as the large audiences amply indicate. But the time for their departure is drawing nigh.

GAIETY MUSEUM.—Business is said to be satisfactory, and the management has no cause for complaint. This week's bill: Curio hall—Oklahoma Frank and Wild Burt's cowboys and cowgirls, Silvester Delsilva (East India fire eater), Maida (albino), Campbell's Punch and Judy, Mysterious Parisian closet, Prof. Goddine (magician), Mme. Martini (palmist) and the lady boxers, in the theatre—"Muldoon's Picnic," introducing Thos. Butler, Chas. F. De Forrest, Wally De Forrest, John Walters, Wm. Keating (stage manager), Miss Butler, Kitty Randolph and Little Daisy Martin.

MONROE & RICE'S "MY AUNT BRIDGET" Co. opened a week's engagement at the Windsor April 21, to a large house. The first Bowery performance of the lively farce was greeted with boisterous approval. Next week, J. A. Herne's "Hearts of Oak."

ALEXANDER SALVINI, assisted by the company which supported his father in the latter's recent tour here, opened at Niblo's Garden April 21, for a week, during which he will present "A Child of Napies," "Don Cæsar de Bazan" and "Romeo and Juliet." This is Mr. Salvini's first regular starring tour, by the way. He is under the management of Wesley Sisson. Due May 5, Imre and Bolossy Kiraly's "Around the World." Ullie Akerstrom comes to Niblo's May 12.

DALY'S THEATRE.—Rosina Vokes' second week at this house opened April 21 to good attendance. There was no change from last week's programme, "Percy Pendragon," "Wig and Gown," and "A Double Lesson" being agreeably retained.

At the close of the Lyceum's regular season, with "The Charity Ball," about May 15, W. H. Gillette will put on a revival of "The Private Secretary" for four weeks, having rented the theatre for that purpose.

JUDGE TRUAX granted two attachments April 18 against the property of Philip W. Goatcher, the scenic artist, whose sudden departure for Europe, 15, created surprise among his friends. His flight was due, as he himself said, to financial and family troubles. The suit he brought against his wife for absolute divorce at White Plains resulted in her favor. He had announced that he would never live with her again, or support or pay alimony to her, and said that if the suit went against him he would go to Australia and begin anew. One of the attachments was in favor of John H. Young, his former partner, for $900, and the other for $1,500, in favor of his attorneys, Walter S. Poor and James King Duffy, for professional services. On 14, at the office of his attorneys, a plan for a settlement of Mr. Goatcher's affairs was entered into, the papers were partly executed, and Mr. Goatcher said that he was going to Philadelphia to complete a contract, and that he would be gone only a few days. From Philadelphia he telegraphed for a state room on the Wyoming, and came here on the morning she sailed. Mr. Poor says that while Mr. Goatcher's divorce suit was pending he heard him say that he would get the children and go to Australia. Mr. Young says that the copartnership between himself and Mr. Goatcher was dissolved 14 by mutual consent, and certain moneys due the firm were set apart for the payment of the creditors. Since that time, however, Mr. Goatcher collected all the money without his authority or knowledge, and appropriated it to his own use. The only property Mr. Goatcher had in this State was some personal property and a small piece of real estate, which is in litigation. The personal property which was in the studio, 44 West Thirtieth Street, consisted of a large and valuable collection of art books, pictures, publications, sketches, designs and statues. John W. Blackman, who has charge of the studio, says that on 18 Mr. Goatcher's brother took all the property out of the studio.

JOSEPH P. REYNOLDS, business manager of the Fifth Avenue Theatre, will have the score with Newark, Detectives Kemp and Hayes took him from the bleaching boards. They escorted him down town to the West Thirtieth Street station. He was charged by J. Barton Key, the manager, with stealing two umbrellas, worth $25. Mr. Clarke is a member of the Five A's. At the club house at 43 West Twenty-eighth Street for some time past the disappearance of umbrellas has been a painful subject. One of the umbrellas borrowed, and not returned, was designed by the actor athletes as a present to James Corbett. Mr. Clarke was at once expelled from the club as soon as there was an opportunity to take action. He is not an actor, it is said, and there was a protest against his admission in the first place. He has been property man for Francis Wilson's and other companies, and was admitted to the club because he was a good athlete. He left Mr. Wilson's Co. some time ago, and charges were made against him of failing to return money borrowed from members of the company. He is also charged with keeping money intrusted to him for the Five A's. Mr. Clarke said he must have been drunk when he took the umbrellas.

THIS is the last week of "Natural Gas" at the Fifth Avenue, and the termination, also, of Eugene Tompkins' lease of the Fifth Avenue. H. C. Miner takes possession on May 1. There will be a special matinee trial, 23, of "A Mighty Power," a play announced as by Frank Rothschild Jr. Henry Lee, Minnie Seligman, Jas. L. Edwards, Thos. Joyce, Chas. Dade, H. Liston, May Hampton, Frank Barrows, Harry Gwynette and others will appear in it.

PROF. OSCAR R. GLEASON continues to draw good audiences at the Seventh Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street building. On April 28 he is to tackle the most vicious horse he has yet attempted to subdue. The arrangements were completed by Manager Behrens 21.

TONY PASTOR'S THEATRE.—Harry and John Kernell are prime favorites everywhere, and it is not to be wondered at that this cosy house was filled on Monday night, April 21, with the admirers of this clever duo and the vaudeville favorites of the remainder of the company, the full list of which is as follows: The Roger Bros., Ella Wesner, Geyer and Lord, Binns and Burns, Thos. O'Brien, Alexandra Dagmar, Chas. and Lotta Fremont, Weber and Fields, W. H. Newcomb and Mohamed. The Rentz-Santley Co. is announced for the week of 28, the Friday matinee being underscored for the benefit of Managers Abe and Ben Leavitt.

H. R. JACOBS' THIRD AVENUE THEATRE.—"Passion's Slave" is ever attractive to a certain class of playgoers, and its luridness and heroics please them to a large degree. The two performances given of the play Monday, April 21, attracted large audiences, that in the evening being the better house of the two. The piece is adequately cast and produced, and individual successes were prominent. "The Two Johns" is underlined for the week of 28.

A NEW TOPICAL DUET, entitled "I Should Say So" was introduced in "The City Directory," at the Bijou, April 21, by Alice Harrison and Charley Reed. It was written for Manager John Russell by Harry S. Blake.

FOURTEENTH STREET THEATRE.—"A Brass Monkey" is back in the city once more, and opened for a week Monday night, April 21, the house being well filled. With the exceptions of George F. Marion as Jonah, Reta Gough as Faith and Alice Evans as Virginia Bright, the cast is mainly the same as when the farce was last seen in the city. Mr. Marion's Jonah is a finished piece of acting, and his well known abilities show themselves to every advantage. He is no stranger to white face roles; in fact, such roles have predominated in his stage career. His Jonah is a success, and his conscientious impersonation is all that can be desired. The specialties introduced by him, though familiar to us, are amusing, and caught the audience in fine style on Monday night. Reta Gough's vocalisms are well known here, and they received just recognition. Alice Evans is as piquantly pretty as ever, and did all possible with her small part. The work of the others of the cast has been frequently reviewed, and calls for no further comment than that they did nicely in their respective roles. "My Aunt Bridget" is underlined for the week of 28.

MINER'S BOWERY THEATRE.—A well filled house were well entertained Monday night, April 21, by the following well known and popular vaudevillers: Girard and Earle, La Strange, the Starr Sisters, Louise De Luist, Rosina, Albert and Bennie Lamont, Baker, Jones, Manning and Davis, John A. Coleman, Prof. H. J. Campbell, John H. Hammond, the American Four and John Whitman. Austin's Australians are underlined for 28 and week.

LONDON THEATRE.—Two well filled houses was the result of the business done at the two performances on Monday, April 21, that of the evening being much the larger of the two, and the Rentz-Santley Co. once more received much applause for their specialty and burlesque endeavors. Maude Beverly, Booker and Leigh, Frank Lester, Lillie May Hall and Victoria Vokes, Harry Le Clair and Ward and Vokes furnished the entertaining specialties. The burlesque and first part showed up shapeliness galore, and the comedians furnished plenty of fun. Lester and Williams' Co. is underscored for the week of 28.

HARRY KENNEDY'S THEATRE.—This is the new name of the Comedy (formerly Poole's) on East Eighth Street. Under its fresh title, it opened April 21, as a straight vaudeville house, and, judging from the size of the audience on the opening night, it appears to have at last fallen into the groove to which it belongs. With such a list of people as appeared on Monday, the house should make money now, if it ever will. Mr. Kennedy took hold of the theatre less than two weeks ago, and he can justly claim the title of "hustler." The "S. R. O." sign was out before the curtain went up 21, and as each act was presented the applause was deafening. The people had evidently attended to make the most of an excellent programme and give encouragement to the new manager, who was plucky enough to risk his time and money in an endeavor to bring the house to the front rank of New York's vaudeville theatres. The bill opened with the Mackleys—Fred and Jennie—in their sketch, "Poor Joe's Luck." As poor Joe, Jennie made a big impression. She played and looked the boy to perfection. Mr. Mackley's specialty, "Sullivan vs. Sylvester," although pretty old and well worn, gained much applause. Marco and Reto, justly styled the serpents, took the house by storm, twisting and bending themselves into almost inconceivable shapes. Fred Roberts, the Garnellas, Maggie Cline, Harry Kennedy, the Acme Four, Jennie Yeamans, the Tissots and the Two American Macs are too well known to need any comment, the mention of their names being sufficient. That they made hits goes without saying. The fate of the house will be watched very carefully by managers, some of whom look at the venture with a critical and incredulous eye, although Mr. Kennedy feels sanguine of success. The theatre has been thoroughly fumigated. The other alterations are not yet completed.

PARK THEATRE.—Daniel Sully introduced H. Grattan Donnelly's comedy drama, "The Millionaire," to New Yorkers, April 21, at the Park, and succeeded in bringing out the "Standing Room Only" sign. It was an extremely friendly audience, and, to those versed in theatrical doings, it partook much of a professional character. There were several rows of standees in the rear of the orchestra. The boxes were filled with managers, stars, leading people and men about town, while in the body of the house were many actors and actresses, who exercised considerable discretion in bestowing applause. As to the play, in its present shape, little can be said in praise. The plot is good, and, if strictly adhered to, could be made successful; but there are two undercurrents running through it which spoil the original story. Strictly speaking, the piece has three separate and distinct plots, while one is sufficient for most authors to introduce at one time. The stolen locket and the package of love letters have nothing to do with "The Millionaire," and could be eliminated without injuring the interest of the play. Judicious revision is needed, and this the piece will undoubtedly receive before the week is finished. In making the stride from farce-comedy, Mr. Donnelly found the chasm too broad for him to cross at one bold jump, and he has fallen short. With smaller and slower steps he may, in time, gain the point at which he aims. The character of James O'Brien is in a new line for Mr. Sully, and, although he did quite well with the material afforded him, he did not realize his brightest hopes, albeit he deserves much credit for the undertaking. In the third act he appears in the disguise of a railroad laborer. The laying of a railroad track on the stage, in full view of the audience, is indeed a novelty, and was duly appreciated, being a true picture of the manner of doing such work. This act is indeed the strongest of the piece, while the fourth, and last, is decidedly weak, and needs rewriting. The plot appeared in THE CLIPPER of April 12, the piece having received its initial presentation at the Temple Opera House, Elizabeth, N. J., on that date. The cast: Jason Fleece, F. F. Mackay; Lorillard Lenox, J. P. Connelly; Jason Fleece, Baron Steinberger, Max Arnold; Joseph Brandt, Frank E. Jamison; Frank Thomson Roberts, Milton Roblee; Sampson Sharp, Frank Allen; Con Maguire; Kerrigan, Phil McFarland; Filip Pierotta, Con Lynch; Benson, Geo. Richter; John, Thomas Ward; Laura Lenox, Louise A. Sully; Cicely Fleece, Carrie Radcliffe; Hortense, Marion Earle; Ames O'Brien, Daniel Sully. There is plenty of room for improvement in this cast. Max Arnold was, perhaps, the most commendable. Executive staff: Proprietor, Daniel Sully; business manager, Chas. Osgood; stage manager, F. F. Mackay; assistant stage manager, Frank Jamison; musical director, Fred White; scenic artist, Otto Armbruster; stage mechanicians, C. Godwin: properties, Fred Richter; treasurer, T. F. Hopkins. The piece will remain at the Park until May 3, after which date, so Manager Dunlevy informs us, the house will be rented for the Summer season. Mr. Dunlevy himself will shortly make a sea voyage to California, via the Isthmus. His physician has counseled him to take a change of air.

PROCTOR'S TWENTY-THIRD STREET THEATRE.—Stuart Robson's first New York appearance as a star single, and the revival before a Metropolitan audience of "The Henrietta," drew a crowded house to this theatre April 21. Mr. Robson was greeted with the utmost cordiality, and gave his usual excellently droll performance of Bertie Vanalstyne. His new company were heartily encouraged. Frank Mordaunt made a capital hit as the elder Vanalstyne, and May Waldron's Mrs. Opdyke was thoroughly amusing. The cast otherwise was quite competent, as will be seen by the assignment of characters: Nicholas Vanalstyne, Frank Mordaunt; Dr. Parke Wainwright, James E. Wilson; Nicholas Vanalstyne Jr., Edward J. Ratcliffe; Bertie Vanalstyne, Stuart Robson; Lord Arthur Trelawney, J. B. Hollis; the Rev. Dr. Murray Illiton, George Woodward; Watson Flint, Revel Germaine; Musgrave, John L. Wooderson; Mrs. Cornelia Opdyke, May Waldron; Rose Vanalstyne, Eugenie Lindeman; Agnes, Katherine Florence; Lady Mary Trelawney, Helen Mar. In the lobby during the performance there was exhibited a handsome floral horseshoe. A card attached to it read: "To Stuart Robson, from his old friend and partner, 'Senator' Crane." Mr. Robson's engagement is for a month only, and it is likely that "The Henrietta" will be played all that time. The company is under the management of W. R. Hayden, with Lee Townsend as press agent.

MASTER IRVING PINOVER, a youthful Shakesperian reader, made his city debut at Hardman Hall April 21, before an audience of admiring friends.

PEOPLE'S THEATRE.—"Guilty Without Crime," a dramatization in five acts of Mrs. M. E. Braddon's well known novel, "Aurora Floyd," by Vad de Nois and C. Young, received its first city presentation evening of April 22 at this house, with Dore Davidson and his wife, Ramie Austen, in the two leading roles. A very friendly and good sized audience was in attendance, but the drama was a deal too gloomy to permit any great amount of cordial demonstration. The plot of the piece has already been fully outlined in THE CLIPPER, and there have been no appreciable changes since the first production of the drama last Fall, at Proctor's Opera House, Lancaster, Pa. The drama is almost entirely destitute of any comedy element. A few bright moments were injected into it by the vocal efforts of H. B. Harkins in the role of James, a servant. The lines of the piece offered no excuse for the interpolation of comic songs, but amid the lengthy and gruesome monotony of crime and persecution, it was a very refreshing and acceptable relief, indeed. The audience showed their appreciation by repeated recalls. Dore Davidson gave a very careful, intelligent and peculiar portraiture of the demented Tom. His Scotch accent was generally good, and his facial contortions reminded one of the hideous Mr. Hyde. As a rough, uncouth villian, his action and appearance were intensely vivid and picturesque. Ramie Austen, a pretty, graceful blonde, with blue eyes and a well built figure, enacted the role of the persecuted Stella very well, but she lacked pathos at the more serious moments. She seemed at times to place her chief reliance upon heavy respirations, which now and then became almost painful by their deepness and frequency. Yet her voice was clear and strong, and sometimes rather musical, so that this one depressing fault may be said to be due rather to affectation than to any bronchial troubles. Rene Perselle as Francis Primrose fitted her part exactly. She proved the best of "false friends," and her methods were pleasantly precise and commendable. Charles M. Hayne's Hebraic accent was quite correct, and he added as much comedy to the role of Isaac Plunskey as his meagre lines afforded. Sir Ralph Waldren was earnestly and agreeably portrayed by Ernest Foster, and the others of the cast acted as well and as acceptably as the several incongruities of the play would allow. The cast: Ramie Austen, Dore Davidson, Ernest Foster, T. B. Thornton, Frank Kemble, Chas. M. Hayne, H. B. Harkins, W. S. Hockstra, Geo. Mason and Rene Perselle. The staff includes Clark & Co., managers; Phil C. Brayton, advance representative, and A. G. Williams, treasurer. Next week, Robert Mantell in "Monbars."

Harlem.—At Hammerstein's Opera House, the regular season will close May 3. On 5 Manager Hammerstein inaugurates a season of comic opera, opening with Conreid's Opera Co., in "The King's Fool," and, if business warrants it, he will continue to produce several well known operas during the Summer, having made arrangements to have the house cooled by artificial means. J. K. Emmet played to the best houses seen here in some time. Rose Coghlan opened to a very good house April 21. Next week, "Held by the Enemy."

OLYMPIC THEATRE.—This house is beginning to recover from the effect of Barnum & Bailey's Circus opening. The early part of last week business was good, falling off towards the middle, but fully making up for the latter half, necessitating the "S. R. O." sign being brought out. The Lilly Clay Burlesque Co. opened to a crowded house 21, meeting with one of the best receptions ever received by a burlesque company here. Next week, Lester & Allen's Co.

HARLEM MUSEUM.—Manager Toovey was very busy the past week, making arrangements for the production of "La Mascotte" and "The Mikado" by the A. E. Wilson Comic Opera Co. This being a new departure, he has deserving of credit. The cast includes A. E. Wilson, Harry Dooley, W. H. Conklin, Kittie Devere, Marion Latelle, Clara La Rose, Blanche Stevens and Helene Beatrice. The curio hall this week has O. B. O. the Mysterious, the Venetian Troubadours, Herman, Howard and Travis, Magic (Gypsy wonder), Tamassa Luke and Prof. Lyon's Punch and Judy.

DORIS' HARLEM MUSEUM.—Taking everything into consideration, business the past week was good. Curio hall —The Wakefield Bros. (mesmerists), Mme. Petty (long haired woman), Prof. E. T. Johnson and his cabinet, Isaac Simmons (spotted man), Whale Oil Gus, Emma Schiller (skeleton) and Barney O'Toole (chimpanzee). Stage—Whippler Twins, Jennie Pickert, Lottie Holmes, Williams and Morris and Harry Allen.

THE week the Comique has "The Road to Tyburn, or the Life of Jack Sheppard."

NEW YORK STATE.

Brooklyn.—This city was pretty fair fishing ground for amusement caterers last week, the bait offered being tempting and the resultant catch of paying quantity. The attractions this week are strong and calculated to display good drawing power. The season is fast nearing its end, as some of the houses have named an early date for their finals, the Criterion having closed its doors as a professional house April 19. Blessed with fine weather, the opening houses 21 should have been large, but, except in one or two instances, this much desired condition was not realized.

PARK THEATRE.—Fanny Davenport opened 21 for a week of "La Tosca." Whether our people have tired of the play, or discountenanced the theme, I do not know, but the fact remains that the house, while fair, was not what I expected to see. Julia Marlowe closed a successful week 19. Miss Marlowe's popularity among the ladies was made manifest by the largely attended matinees, the audiences at which were composed nearly entirely of the gentler sex. Next week, "Mr. Barnes of New York."

CRITERION.—The season, professionally, at this house was brought to a close 19, when the Standard Opera Co. sang "Pinafore" for the last time. Hereafter the house will be run on the same plan as the Academy of Music, this city. The house will be let to visiting shows and amateur societies, and will be altered so as to make it possible to cover the parquet with a dancing floor in case amateur societies wish to hold a reception after the performance. Probably the last professional performance at the house this season will be the benefit which will be tendered to Business Manager George E. Gouge on May 3, when Gustave Frohman will present Marie Hubert Frohman in "King Rene's Daughter," "Snow Bound" and "False Charms."

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—This week sees another first Brooklyn presentation of "Spider and Fly," and classed as a pantomimic extravaganza. Its first fourfain rose 21, to an attendance that was not a hope builder. Daniel Sully's new play, "The Millionaire," finished a satisfactory week 19. Chas. A. Gardner follows 28.

H. R. JACOBS' BROOKLYN THEATRE.—Minnie Oscar Gray and W. T. Stephens, with their sagacious canines, are favorites at this house, and their appearance was sufficient to draw a fair audience 21, when they presented "The Old Oaken Bucket." Will substitute "Saved From the Storm" 24. Dowling and Hasson wound up their week 19 with fair results. "Passion's Slave" 28.

HYDE & BEHMAN'S THEATRE.—Tony Pastor's Co. pays a visit to our city this week. That Mr. Pastor's name is a magnet here, as well as in his own bailiwick, was shown by the turn out that welcomed him 21. The house company played last week was a strong one, and pulled in many dollars.

GAIETY.—The crowded house drawn by Fashion's Ideal Frolicues, 21, shows that variety is what goes with the patrons of this theatre, and any decided departure from that line results in a falling of patronage. The company supporting the euphonious title is under the management of John Hammond, and is made up of the two American Macs, Essie Graham, the Poppers, Annie Girard, Millie Olive, Bertha Foy, Ella Carlington, Mabel Hudson, Gus Mills, Louise Montrose, J. C. Medway, Lottie Gilson, Maynard and Mendoza, John Lynch and Hammond's Magic Mirror. "She" was a moderate success last week.

ZIFF'S CASINO.—Manager Gebhart's album this week contains Neiman, Fred Russell, T. J. Heffron, Twilight Quartet, Nannie Russell and Minnie Schult.

AMPHION.—A large audience witnessed the opening of Barry and Fay's engagement 21. The story of "McKenna's Flirtation" was told here before about two years ago, but the people flocked to hear it as though this was its first presentation. Margaret Mather closed a big week 19. Jefferson and Florence May 2 and 3.

LEE AVENUE ACADEMY.—E. H. Sothern opened to a good house April 21 in "Lord Chumley." The latter part of the week he will put on "The Highest Bidder." "A Midnight Bell" played to packed houses. Annie Pixley comes 28.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE.—Maj. Burke and other vaudevillers opened 21 to a crowded house. The company is made up of Dot Pullman, Blanche Sherwood, the Woashaner Bros., Capitola Forrest, Will H. Mack, Mlle. Staccione, the Brothers Staccione, Fanny and Roger Midgly, and Lillie Western. Last week's business was good. Coming 28, Ransone and Radcliffe in "Across the Atlantic."

BROOKLYN LYCEUM.—Treasurer Byrnes, of Jacobs' Hoboken Theatre, has come over to take Asa R. Waterman's position of manager. "The World Against Her" opened a week's engagement 21. Gray & Stephens' Co. 28.

GRAND.—"A Broken Life" is the attraction this week. The olio includes Cleflin and Ella Fay. Business seems to have come with the pleasant weather. Ethel Tucker will be given a benefit afternoon and evening 25.

NOTES.—On the night of 19, Manager Asa R. Waterman, of Jacobs' Lyceum Theatre, played the principal part in a tragedy in real life, far more dreadful than anything ever seen at his playhouse. In company with a Mrs. Peter Doran, Mr. Waterman left the theatre at the close of the performance, and, when a short distance away, was accosted by the woman's husband, who objected to Mr. Waterman's paying attentions to his wife. Words followed, and the theatrical manager claims that Mr. Doran struck him, and in self defence he drew a revolver and shot the husband through the back. The wounded man expired almost instantly, and his slayer was locked up. It is claimed by some that Mr. Waterman showed no evidence of having been knocked down, while, on the other hand, his friends say his cheek was cut on the inside, and claim to have evidence in support of the self-defense theory. The coroner's inquest is down for 22, when the true facts of the case will probably be brought out. The woman in the case is a stepdaughter of Chief Usher Patterson of the Lee Avenue Academy, who has lost his position through the notoriety brought about by the tragedy. There were several eye witnesses to the scene. Mr. Waterman's friends explain the way that the husband was shot in the back was that in making a blow at the Lyceum's manager, he swung partly around, and was then that the fatal shot was fired. The attaches of the Lyceum Theatre held a meeting at the close of the performance 21, for the purpose of raising funds towards defraying the expense of the defense. It is claimed that Mr. Jacobs has contributed $100 towards that fund. At the theatre, Monday night, it was claimed that when the case comes to trial, Mr. Waterman will be able to prove that Peter Doran had made threats no later than a week ago. Mr. Waterman's friends at the theatre are determined to stand by him in his hour of need. Mr. Waterman is the husband of Florence Sherwood, whose family are well known in the profession. Their daughter, little Gracie Waterman, appeared in this city a few weeks ago as Lenny, in Effie Ellsler's play, "The Governess." She is a bright child and a capable little actress..... Something of a scare occurred among the occupants of the galleries at the Park Theatre evening of 15, occasioned by a very perceptible vibration caused by the extra rapid running of a heavy printing press in an adjoining building. Quiet was restored after a number of timid ones had left the house..... The Brooklyn National League Baseball Club occupied the boxes at the Brooklyn Theatre 17. The boxes were tastefully decorated in their honor..... Manager Joseph J. Held, of the Brooklyn Theatre, will be the manager of H. R. Jacobs' Hoboken Theatre next season..... Larry Howard's benefit at the Lee Avenue Academy will be given May 13..... The Lee Avenue Academy will close its fourth season May 10.

Buffalo.—Last week's amusements here possessed a highly musical flavor, and the outcome was excellent. Music is still in the air, as will be seen by the chronicles below. Joseph Murphy's stay at the Academy was, perhaps, the most successful he has ever played in this town, full houses ruling. The Lyceum was filled nine times to welcome C. T. Ellis.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—Annie Pixley April 21, 22, 23, M. R. Curtis and Lewis Morrison 24, 25, 26, "Little Lord Fauntleroy" 28, 29, 30. Kate Castleton May 1, 2, 3. Joseph Murphy departed April 19.

Edward Bell, of the Madison Square stock, began his career with this organization, and through his influence Manager Palmer gave his permission to present the first named play..... Zip (the what is it), Ashbury Ben and the Acris have joined W. L. Main's Circus..... Bella Verna (Mrs. Bingham) has recovered from a severe illness..... Chas. E. It was a benefit to Troy Lodge, B. P. O. E. The play went smoothly, but was disappointing. It is a regular mixture of burlesque, light comedy and melodrama, which won't wear, in my opinion. Frank Mayo had fair houses 17, 18, 19.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Gillett's World of Wheels 21 and week. The Louise Dempsey Co. had several full houses week ending 19. Plans for the enlargement of the house are completed.

Gorman's Minstrels, April 2, had a full house. C. A. Gardner, 10, drew a large and well pleased audience. Grau's Opera Co., 11, had a fair house. "The Two Johns" comes 23, and has a large advance sale. "Capt. Swift" 28, "The Charity Ball" May 3, Sol Smith Russell 8.

Yonkers.—"Kajanka" came April 17 to a large audience. "Little Lord Fauntleroy" comes 26. Manager Bright's benefit May 14 promises to be a big success. Seats are selling rapidly, and a large house is assured. "Natural Gas" will be the attraction..... Yonkers has a population of nearly 40,000, yet we only have about one show a week. The town is large enough to do better. Another thing needed here is a variety house. We have the people to support one, and the man who is first to venture will make money.

Bloomington.—At the Durley Theatre, the Muldoon-Kilrain Co. drew lightly April 14. The Bloomington Dramatic Club repeated "A Scrap of Paper" 18 for the benefit of Wither's Library, packing the house. Charlotte Thompson received fair patronage 19. Coming: "A Hole in the Ground" 21, John S. Murphy 24, "The Twelve Temptations" 25, Effie Ellsler 26..... Gus Rudolphson left 16 to join Forepaugh's Band.

Oneida.—The Katonka Medicine Co. occupied the Monroe Opera House last week. Chas. L. Davis comes 25..... The Devereau Opera House was burned 20. The loss is estimated at $6,000. The insurance is about $4,000. The Opera House was built and has been in use since 1858, and is considered quite a loss to our town.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Philadelphia.—Last week was fairly prosperous all around, and for the current week a favorable outlook is assured by the strength of the attractions. The chief event is the only appearance in the city this season of Patti, who sang at the Academy of Music afternoon of April 21, in "Lakme."

CHESTNUT STREET OPERA HOUSE.—The opening of the annual engagement of Aug. Daly's Co., which occurred 21, is one of the local theatrical events of the season, and the heavy advance sale left but few seats to be had for the first sight here of "The Great Uknown." Stuart Robson gave "The Henrietta" to crowded houses last week. Mrs. E. V. Churchill-Jodrell, the new English star, makes her local debut May 5.

CHESTNUT STREET THEATRE.—The third week of the successful engagement of Aronson's Casino Opera Co. began April 21 with a revival of "Nadjy." "The Drum Major," which was taken off 19, was well liked and proved a profitable drawing card. A revival of "Erminie," 28, will wind up the opera season at the Chestnut. Mary Shaw, in "A Drop of Poison," comes May 5.

BROAD STREET THEATRE.—"The Gondoliers" entered the last of its eight weeks' run April 21. Up to the present the run has been attended with considerable success. An attraction that can hold out for two months in this city, which is not much given to sustaining protracted theatrical runs, is assured of a favorable reception elsewhere. Arrangements have been completed with Francis Wilson and his company to continue the engagement until May 3, and the week beginning April 28 will be devoted to a revival of "The Oolah." The house will probably close its regular season May 3. George Holland and an amateur company will occupy the theatre 6, with a performance of "School for Scandal." Later than that there is no announcement until May 19, when W. S. Moore will inaugurate a supplementary season, with the production, for the first time on any stage, of the new opera, "Amina, or the Shah's Bride." Stage Manager W. H. Daly is hard at work on the preliminary details. Among those engaged for the production is Elma Delaro.

ARCH STREET THEATRE.—C. A. Gardner, a star who is gaining unstinted popularity with the patrons of Manager Holland's house, began a week April 21. "Spider and Fly," which was first seen here last week, drew excellent houses. Due 28, "A Hole in the Ground."

WALNUT STREET THEATRE.—Louis Aldrich's new play, "The Editor," was given for the first time in this city 21. Frank Daniels played last week to the limit of the house. A novelty, supplied by "The Shatchen," comes 28.

PARK THEATRE.—With "Article 47" Clara Morris began 21 an interesting repertory, and judging from the large advance sale which preceded the engagement she will not suffer from lack of patronage. Wilson Barrett's visit, which terminated 19, was a succession of crowded houses. The event of the week was the production 17, for the first time in this country, of a new play, "What Women Will Do." As to the merit of the play, the plot and cast of which are given in another column, the critics are at variance, but the concensus of opinion is that, barring a tendency to indulge in too much talk, the authors have succeeded in building an entertaining play on lines of the conventional melodramatic order. If there is nothing original in the play there is nothing objectionable, and, whatever may be the verdict as to the dramatic excellence of the work, it came in for a reception that left no doubt as to its popular success. "Little Lord Fauntleroy" 28.

NATIONAL THEATRE.—"Shadows of a Great City" began a week 21. Louis James wound up a week of Shakespearian performances 19, meeting with appreciation in the substantial form of large receipts. Due 28, "Devil's Mine."

CENTRAL THEATRE.—Forrester's Burlesque Co. opened a week 21. The Howard Burlesque Co was accorded its usual share of prosperity last week. Due 28, Harry Kernell's Co.

CARNCROSS' OPERA HOUSE.—The last week but one of the season at this house began 21 with a bill strengthened by the introduction of new local burlesque and a change of feature in the olio. A continuance of crowded houses makes one wonder why Manager Carncross has decided to close.

FOREPAUGH'S THEATRE.—Webster & Brady's "She" started a week 21. "The Golden Giant" drew large houses last week. Joseph and Alice Keane comes 28 in "Fair Play."

KENSINGTON THEATRE.—In place of "The World," which was last week announced by Manager Hickey, the Leonzo Bros. opened 21 in "Brother Against Brother," and will fill in the week with "May's Devotion." "True Irish Hearts" did well last week. Due 28, "The Boy Tramp."

STANDARD THEATRE.—"The Streets of New York" was staged 21. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" displayed surprising vitality in the way of drawing powers last week. "Only a Farmer's Daughter" 28.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Bennett & Moulton's Opera Co. opened a week 21. "The World Against Her" was well treated last week. Due 28, "Guilty Without Crime."

Fenton, Davenport Brothers, Pauline and Lewis Braham, and Edward and Caroline De Haas. The Gaiety Opera Co. tops the bill with a revival of "Boccaccio." Last week's business was large.

NINTH AND ARCH MUSEUM.—Little Midget Maggie is the novelty secured by Manager Bradenburg this week. The other features are numerous and attractive, and deserving of a repetition of the large attendance of last week. In the theatre, "Our Professer" is presented by the Museum Co.

CONTINENTAL THEATRE.—Martin Hayden returned 21, for a week. Bennett & Moulton's Opera Co. did a good business last week. Nattie Vickers 28.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—When this house is reopened May 5, with the Emma Juch Opera Co., the patrons will find a new theatre. With the exception of the four walls everything is new will strike CAMDEN May 1. The refusal of the Pennsylvania Railroad to make any reduction in excursion rates will affect the out of town patronage.

Every seat in the house was filled and the boxes were occupied. Kate Castleton's engagement, 17, closed the regular season.....A ten cent circus is performing this week on Cross and Markham Streets.....'The Seven Sisters" is on the boards of the Comique this week. This theatre is having varied experiences. It has shut down on Sunday night performances, and a society recently formed in the city to elevate the moral standard made charges against the character of entertainments. The police investigated, but no fault could be found with the programme. Hiram Robbins has sold out his interest in the institution to Chas. E. Crockett.

Strasilipka, of the Grand Opera House, Oshkosh, and his attorney, A. H. Goss, were in the city 17, having brought suit for damages against Manager G. H. Richards, of "A Base Hit" Co. Mr. Strasilipka sues Mr. Richards for a non fulfillment of a contract to appear at his theatre the past season. Mr. Richards claims that he canceled the contract for the reason that Mr. Strasilipka did not live up to his agreement, which prohibited the playing of any comedy company at the Oshkosh Theatre within a specified time previous to the appearance of "A Base Hit" Co. Mr. Richards claims that within the time named Mr. Strasilipka played "The Burglar," "Held by the Enemy" and Mrs. George S. Knight. Mr. Strasilipka here makes a fine point. He claims neither of those plays is a comedy, but a melodrama, and that because of this he could play them without violating his contract with Mr. Richards. The case will be decided 21.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston.—A week of glorious weather stimulated the amusement appetites of Boston theatregoers, and they availed themselves of it in the most pronounced manner. In fact, last week proved a perfect bonanza to the managers, who, naturally, wear smiling faces at the financial results. It is safe to say that the Boston Theatre skimmed the cream in the matter of money, the German Opera drawing crowded and most fashionable audiences, and those, too, at increased prices. Stetson's "Gondoliers" Co. likewise drew well at the Globe, and Manager Morkhill informed me that the week's business had been excellent. The same can be said of the Museum, Tremont, Hollis, Grand Opera, Keith's Bijou, Lothrop's Grand Museum and (of course) the dime shows. This week bids fair to equal its predecessor—a consummation most devoutly wished for by every manager in town.

BOSTON THEATRE.—Richard Mansfield's return engagement in this city began on Monday night, April 21, under the management of John Stetson. The bill Monday and Tuesday nights was "Richard III," a character in the rendition of which this talented actor has become famous. The support is equal to the task in every instance, the scenic and mechanical effects are both historically correct and grand, and the production is perfect in its entirety. Wednesday and Thursday nights, "A Parisian Romance;" Friday night and Saturday matinee, "The Frenchman," and Saturday night, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." Mr. Mansfield stays two weeks. May 5 we are promised Sims' and Pettitt's "The Silver Falls," for the first time in America. The German Opera Co. closed a big two weeks April 19.

TREMONT THEATRE.—The closing week of the McCaull Opera Co. at the Tremont opened with "The Beggar Student," than which no production of its class has enjoyed greater popularity here. The cast includes Marion Manola, Annie Myers, Carrie Benton, Josephine Knapp, De Wolf Hopper, Eugene Oudin, Jeff De Angelis, H. A. Cripps, Edmund Stanley and others, the production being under the direction of Herr Adolph Nowak. The opera will run through the week, followed by "Aunt Jack" 28. "Clover" finished its fourth week 19.

GLOBE THEATRE.—No wonder that John Stetson looks smiling and happy. He certainly has good cause therefor, in that his elegant house has been crowded at every performance of "The Gondoliers" during the past week, and Manager Morkhill informs me that the advance sales are very large. The setting of the opera is simply magnificent, and the stage appointments are such as have never before been supplied for this class of productions. Monday began the second week of this piece. Esther Palliser, late of the D'Oyly Carte Co., has been secured by Manager Stetson, and she will remain with his company during the entire run of "The Gondoliers," that promises to be an extended one.

BOSTON MUSEUM.—"All the Comforts of Home" began its third month 21, and bids fair to continue its jolly career for an indefinite period. Its power of attraction is certainly very strong, and that the theatregoing public appreciate a good thing when it is presented to them is evident by the very large attendance at every performance. The piece has gained much in humor and brightness, and its presentation develops from first to last pure, wholesome and unadulterated fun in abundance.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.—The opening of the second, and last week but one, of "The Prince and the Pauper," was marked by patronage of the most substantial and satisfactory nature. The piece has caught the public favor in the most unequivocal manner, and little Elsie Leslie has endeared herself, to, and found a warm place in, the hearts of thousands who have witnessed her charmingly artistic impersonations. She is, indeed, a juvenile prodigy, and that there is a brilliant future for this talented child is assured. The remainder of the company deserve words of commendation.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—W. H. Gillette's "Held by the Enemy" was brought out at the Grand on Monday night, 21. Since its last production here it has been materially changed, and very much for the better; the war pictures are more vivid and truthful than ever, the dialogue is brighter and more sparkling, and the scenic effects are all that the most exacting could require. Since last year there have been a number of changes in the cast, among the new faces being Joline Butler, E. J. McCullough, Will Mandeville and Kate Denin Wilson, whose impersonation of Rachael McCreery is a fine piece of work, while Minnie Dupree—as she did last year—won the hearty commendation of her audience. Due 28, "The Paymaster." "The Stowaway" closed a good week 19.

HOWARD ATHENÆUM.—James H. Wallick began an engagement of one week 21, appearing for the first time here in "Sam Houston." The drama was written by Wm. Young, a newspaper man, and the story—as the title indicates—is founded on the early history of Texas and its final liberation from Mexican rule. Mr. Wallick has an excellent company, including T. J. Grady, Harold Linson, Josie F. and Gracie Fox, and the support is in accordance. Altogether, Mr. Wallick has with him nearly one hundred people, a troupe of trained horses, and a donkey who does almost everything but talk. Week of 28, "Spider and Fly." Tony Pastor's Co. closed 19 to enormous business.

GAIETY AND BIJOU.—The programme arranged for his patrons this week by Manager Keith found immediate and emphatic favor from crowded audiences. And a most excellent entertainment does he provide. It opens with an eccentric sketch by Leslie and Collins, followed by Peasly and Irving, Harlan and Rollinson, Madden and Callahan, the Goldens, Dan Reagan, Bob and Kittie Emmett, Murphy and McGonigle, Tom and Henrietta Murray, Webster Bros., Charles Phillips and Mae Bailou. The queer Lonsdale Kinetoscope is still a powerful attraction, and the success of the exhibition has been very remarkable. Manager Keith has also in readiness a number of attractions which will be presented shortly, prominent among them being a genuine Japanese village, imported for exhibition purposes solely, and which met with much favor in New York and the South.

AUSTIN & STONE'S MUSEUM.—Managers Stone & Shaw are determined that their well won reputation as being among the very best providers of low priced but attractive entertainments in this city shall not depreciate, at least not at present, surely, for this week they put on a rattling fine bill. In the lecture hall are seen Jule, the European marvel, who uses roller skates on the ceiling, head downward; Johanna Wholfarth, female Samson; W. H. Smith, with a 7ft. 9in. beard; J m and Annie, Fiji Islanders; Sir Marcus Proctor, musical novelties, and many other features. On the auditorium stage: Annie Raymond, J. Tierney, Greve and Adams, Mason and Earle, Murphy and Cross, Kennette and Williams, Fox and Ward, Matthews and Harris, the Saunders, Colter and Gray and Bertha Welch.

PILLING'S WORLD'S MUSEUM.—Patrons of this popular house were gratified this week by the return of the favorite, W. F. Denny, who appears in a new musical comedy, "The Charity Concert," in which he sustains the leading role. In the specialty bill are Molloy and Mack, Lotta and Maginley, McDowell and Stevens, Jessie Graham, Gus Carmanelli and Pilling's Comedy Co., including Byrne, Chace, Fern, Phyllis Allen and the Nelson Sisters. Manager Pilling is at present engaged in making very extensive improvements in the immense upper hall of his house, and when completed the house will be one of the best of its class in this city. He is also engaged in the novel work of embellishing the Museum with life size and life like wax figures of all possible characters, which are made in the house by his own workers. Mr. Pilling is confident that in three months he will have the largest and finest collection of wax figures in this country. In the lobby are two wax figures of Sullivan and Kilrain, in a regular ring, stripped to the waist and in position for their fighting attitudes, that attract thousands daily.

AUSTIN'S NICKELODEON.—Manager Austin presents an entire change of bill this week, both in the curio hall and the theatre. In the former the list is headed by Big Eliza, her first appearance here; the tallest feature is George Shields, the giant cowboy; the Fiji Princess Jibnossianaka; Capt. Hennian, saver of many lives; Otto Papper, Fontana, magician; Condon's painting, "The Battle of the Roanoke;" the Japanese village, and many other features and new specialties are in the two vaudeville companies, which include Heider and Bowers, Fielding and Walker, the Ventinis, Edward E. Evans, Wesley B. Norris, Frank Granger, Ella Granville, Julia Redmond, Sam Cole, Geo. Leslie, Woodson and Frye, Willie Burns and the Austin Co.

GRAND MUSEUM.—Manager Lothrop is constantly presenting his thousands of patrons weekly with something out of the usual run of amusement features. Last week, and for some time previous, he had on the track in the natatorium a dozen of young women, contending in a walking match. This week the novel feature will be a six day skating (roller) match between female representatives of England, Ireland, Scotland, France, Germany and Russia, and, from the manner in which they still maintain, the contest promises to be exciting. On the stage is presented the drama of Russian life, "A Wife's Honor," with J. Gordon Edwards and Stella Ainsworth in the principal roles, and in addition there is an olio in which appear Sam and Mrs. Lucas, Fernando Fleury, Burt Hawkins, Leonzo, James H. Jennings, Jerome (snake man) and C. M. Ernest. Sunday night concerts are the rule here.

UNDER THE WHITE TENTS.

THE FOREPAUGH SHOW.—The twenty-eighth season of the Forepaugh Show opened afternoon of April 19, at Philadelphia, with one of the grandest and best performances ever seen under canvas. A tremendous crowd, including many city officials and local celebrities, was in attendance, and the fifty-nine events of the programme were received with hearty and deserved applause. Under the proprietorship of James E. Cooper and the management of Adam Forepaugh Jr. and John A. Forepaugh, the show, always great, is this season more imposing than ever. The performance commenced with a grand entree of all the principal features in the circus and Wild West shows. The realistic attack on the Deadwood coach by the band of fifty Indians followed, and notable among the numerous specialties depicting life in the West was the excellent exhibition of shooting by Capt. A. H. Bogardus and his three sons, Peter, Edward and Henry. The climax of the Wild West portion of the show was reached in the stirring representation of the famous and bloody battle between the United States troops, led by Gen. Custer, and the band of bloodthirsty Sioux, under the leadership of Sitting Bull. Part two of the lengthy programme comprises the act of the educated troupe of broncbos, manœuvred by P. Clancy; the famous rope walking horse, Biondin, introduced by P. Meagher; the eight Russian stallions, directed by Adam Forepaugh Jr.; Brazil and Alton, and Jazendorfer and Ashton, in trapeze specialties; Beatty and Nedo, in roller skating act; Kelly and Ashby, in their burlesque athletic sketch; Pickett and Primrose, Cornallas, ladders, and Josie Ashton, in horizontal bar and flying ring specialties; skating, by the Powers Family; feats of strength, by Herr Jazendorfer, and a daring slack wire performance, by Kitty Harbeck; Eddie Riveys, in his acrobatic tight rope act; Cornalla Bros., in gymnastic feats; Dunbar and Vernon, in an acrobatic exhibition; Capt. Engelbrecht, with his dancing puppies, and Mlle. Tournor's daring feats on the flying trapeze. Part three consisted of an exciting hippodrome race, followed by a long series of different kind of races, all of which received the loud applause of the spectators. The crowning event of the performance was an exhibition by Adam Forepaugh Jr., who drove forty horses around the ring. As he made his appearance standing on the back of the two hindmost horses, Mr. Forepaugh was greeted with deafening applause as he gracefully rode around the ring. With the above strong programme the local success of the Forepaugh Circus is assured. The show remains at Philadelphia until 26.

D. Amend, Burt Ransom, the Mandeville Sisters, Prof. F. Hoffmann and his latest novelty, Hypnota. Denny Stirk, of Stirk and Zeno, while fixing his trapeze rigging April 15, slipped, and, falling to the ground, injured himself so badly that he was unable to appear for the remainder of the week. A decision was rendered last week by Judge Barrett in Supreme Court, Chambers, this city, refusing to grant the application by the Fire Department to restrain Barnum & Bailey from giving circus performances at the old Polo Ground. He holds that as the tent is already completed the statute as to the completion of unlawful structures does not apply. Such an injunction, he adds, should only be granted in the very clearest case, where actual danger from fire is suggested. Business last week was very large, though we had one unexpectedly cool day, Saturday, 19. Still, the tents were full at both performances on that day. R. F. Hamilton is working the metropolitan press "to the Queen's." We stay in town until May 3, opening 5 at Brooklyn.

NOTES FROM HEFFRON'S GREAT EASTERN CIRCUS.—We opened our season at Jacksonville, Fla., April 7. The following is our staff: M. S. Sarles, general manager; Wm. H. Cass, general agent, and John Melvin, equestrian director. We have a 120ft. round top, with two 50ft. middle pieces, and travel by rail. DANIEL TRAVER, for the past fourteen years connected with Sig. Sawtelle's enterprises, was married April 14, at Syracuse, N. Y., to Addie Smith.

DOTTIE PULLMAN goes with Sawtelle's Show this season. C. R. De Wolfe and J. W. Swafford have begun advance operations for the show.

NOTES FROM THE T. K. BURK SHOW.—This show, which has been Wintering at South Lebanon, O., reopened there April 19, after a thorough refitting and enlargement. It has new cars, wagons, wardrobes and one of the finest band chariots on the road. A new 110ft. round top, with two 50ft. middle pieces, is now used. D. F. Davis is doing the railroad contracting, and Ralph Peckham has charge of advertising car No. 1, with sixteen men.

THE circus companies visiting Kentucky this season are under many obligations to Capt. Smith Cook, the Kentucky giant, who is now doorkeeper of the House of Representatives, Kentucky Legislature. He has had defeated a law making it a fine of $50 for any circus not exhibiting everything they advertise. Capt. Cook has left the business and entered into politics, but it has not made him lose his love for the circus people.

IRWIN BROS.' ALLIED SHOWS open the season at Buffalo, N. Y., May 20. The show will travel by boat, everything being new. The people: Alax Wilson, Trebor, Chas. Debor, Steve Meaney, Fred Paul, Chas. Addresses or whereabouts not given. All in quest of such should write to those whom they seek, in care of THE CLIPPER Post Office. All letters will be advertised one week, gratis. If the route of any theatrical company is sought, refer to our list or routes on another page. We cannot send routes by mail or telegraph.

THEATRICAL.

W. S. H., Beaver Falls.—There is such a manager, but we do not care to vouch for his responsibility. That is clearly beyond the province of this department. All we can do is to advise caution on your part.

J. G. K., Anderson.—1. She was not his daughter, and she died Aug. 5, 1886. 2. Nov. 27, 1875. 3. No. 4. Over 16 and less than 17 years old. 5. No, we don't.

MRS. M., West Philadelphia.—See the notice below this.

JENNIE EVANS.—This actress is informed that her mother is in sore distress at not having heard from her.

A. J. BUCKLEY.—This property man, late of "The Twelve Temptations," is earnestly sought after by J. L. Campbell, of 1,455 Fletcher Street, Chicago, who writes us that Mr. Buckley's aged mother is ill and in financial straits. The case seems to be an urgent one.

C. R., Detroit.—On page 64 of THE CLIPPER ANNUAL for 1890 you will find the fastest time for such a trip accurately stated.

E. J., West Bay City.—Advertise in THE CLIPPER, making known your qualifications, experience, references, etc.

C. L. K., Danbury.—Write to Harding, the music publisher, Bowery, this city. He will doubtless be glad to give you all the information he possesses as to that song.

ATHOL, Mass.—See the notice at the head of this column, and address him as there advised.

AMATEUR.—1. As those dancers have never competed for prizes or for glory, we cannot pronounce upon their respective merits. Viewing them as performers, it is entirely a matter of individual opinion as to which is the cleverer. We do not care to express ours in this department. 2. See the notice at the head of this column.

T. J. C., Toronto.—You refer to F. F. Mackay. See the notice at the head of this column.

"INQUISITIVE."—1. There is such an actor. See the notice at the head of this column. 2. See his route on another page, and then consult the letter of our correspondent in the city named. He will not be in your city for a number of months.

S. G. E., Uniontown.—1. That play can probably be procured through French & Son. 2. He did sell librettos, translated and in the original.

F. AND G., Topeka.—Such an act has been done. We have seen two Japs do it in this city.

S. AND C., Newark.—We do not discuss the private affairs of professionals. If you consider this query a pertinent one, why not write to those managers and ask them? 2. Robert Manchester can be addressed in our care. 3. See our advertising rates at the head of this column.

W. MCE.—That troupe has closed its season, and most of the members have returned to this city.

C. E. S., Philadelphia.—He is the same actor.

T. L. S., Chicago.—See the notice at the head of this column.

"INQUISITIVE."—As an answer to all four of your queries, see the notice at the head of this column. That rule is imperative.

C. H. D. & CO.—We haven't it. See the notice at the head of this column.

C. R. I.—May 29, 1875.

H. E., Wellsboro.—"A Celebrated Case" is from "Une Cause Celebre," a four act French emotional drama by MM. D'Ennery and Cormon. It was first acted in America Jan. 23, 1878, at the Union Square Theatre, this city.

H. E. D., Anaconda.—If you refer strictly to troupes playing in theatres, opera houses, etc., we would say about five hundred.

D. M., New Haven.—The play, "Virginius, or the Liberation of Rome," is one of the earlier works of Sheridan Knowles, and was first acted in New York Sept. 25, 1820, at the Anthony Street Theatre. It is founded upon incidents in Roman history.

BATON ROUGE.—Prof. P. Wallace is playing Western museums. He sends for his letters regularly.

MANAGER, Danville.—The card would cost three dollars for each insertion.

C. A. D., Marshalltown.—It was received in season, but was crowded out.

W. E. A.—1. Price, $45. 2. Two or three weeks after the receipt of the photograph.

G. V. R., Elmira.—1. See Ring answers. 2. See Baseball answers. 3. We do not reveal the ages of actresses in this department of THE CLIPPER.

W. F. L.—1. That play is the work of the late George H. Boker, and is the private property of Lawrence Barrett, to whom you should write. 2 and 3. We do not care to make invidious distinctions, and so you must excuse us from expressing our opinion. There are a number of bright Americans who can dramatize a story for you. Why not apply to the newly formed Society of American Dramatic Authors, in care of the Actors' Fund?

C. H. C., Philadelphia.—See the notice at the head of this column.

J. X.—You are certainly eligible to be classed as a professional, but your duties have been so far apart that we hesitate to apply a term to them.

ARGUMENT.—In THE CLIPPER ANNUAL for 1889 (not 1890) you will find a digest of the copyright laws, covering the point you refer to.

S. C. Lawrencebargh.—See the notice at the head of this column. Whenever we receive their route we publish it.

DR. CHARLIE.—She is not the sister of Arthur Dunn. His sister is Jennie Dunn, wife of Ezra F. Kendall.

CARDS.

E. K. K., Washington.—There is no difference between a royal flush and a straight flush. A straight, or royal, or sequence flush, when recognized in play, invariably beats four aces and a fifth card.

A. G., Baltimore.—1. B's hand is dead. It would have been a misdeal had he discovered the surplus prior to raising or looking at his hand. 2. He loses his ante.

E. H., Hartland.—1. A player cannot assist his partner, unless it has been specially agreed to play the "assisting" game. At euchre, properly played, only the player who assumes the responsibility of the trump, either by ordering it up, making it, or voluntarily taking it up, can go alone. 2. He must deal the same number, or "regularly," all around.

L. P. F.—It was a false opening, the penalty for which, as well as the disposition of the pot, you must mutually agree upon. Generally, the player opening falsely is required to pay a certain penalty (in proportion to the "ante" of the game), which is added to the original pot, the total to be then played for again. Various circles adopt different methods in such emergencies. It would be rather an injustice to assign the pot to the first man, under the circumstances.

S. AND W.—1. No. C is out of that round. The age alone possesses that liberty. 2. The nine.

MERIDEN, Meriden.—He can count but two—for the euchre. B was the only player who could go alone and profit by it.

CRIBBAGE, Newark.—In 5, 6, 7, 8, 7 there is no run for the seven played as the last card.

ROXBURY, Roxbury.—The player "splitting" openers is not compelled to announce his breaking of a pair. By simply placing his discard face downward, in its proper position in the discard pile, he will legally follow all true poker principles. By conforming to this rule, if any dispute should afterward arise, the discard pile, correctly made, will settle all doubts.

ENOCH, Pittsburg.—A could not go alone after being assisted (not "ordered up") by his partner, unless it had been specially agreed to play in that puerile way. See reply to "E. H., Hartland."

CAIR, Fort Wayne.—In the last played cards 1, 6, 2, 3, there is a run of three.

P. A. J., Pottsdam.—If C discovered the extra card prior to picking up or looking at his hand, it is a misdeal; otherwise his hand is dead and C is out of that round.

P. W. G., Cortland.—You can have two builds on the board "at the same time," provided you hold the necessary cards to take both piles.

H. B., San Luis Obispo.—B cannot make a sweep by using the tray on the board. He cannot legally build from the board, as described.

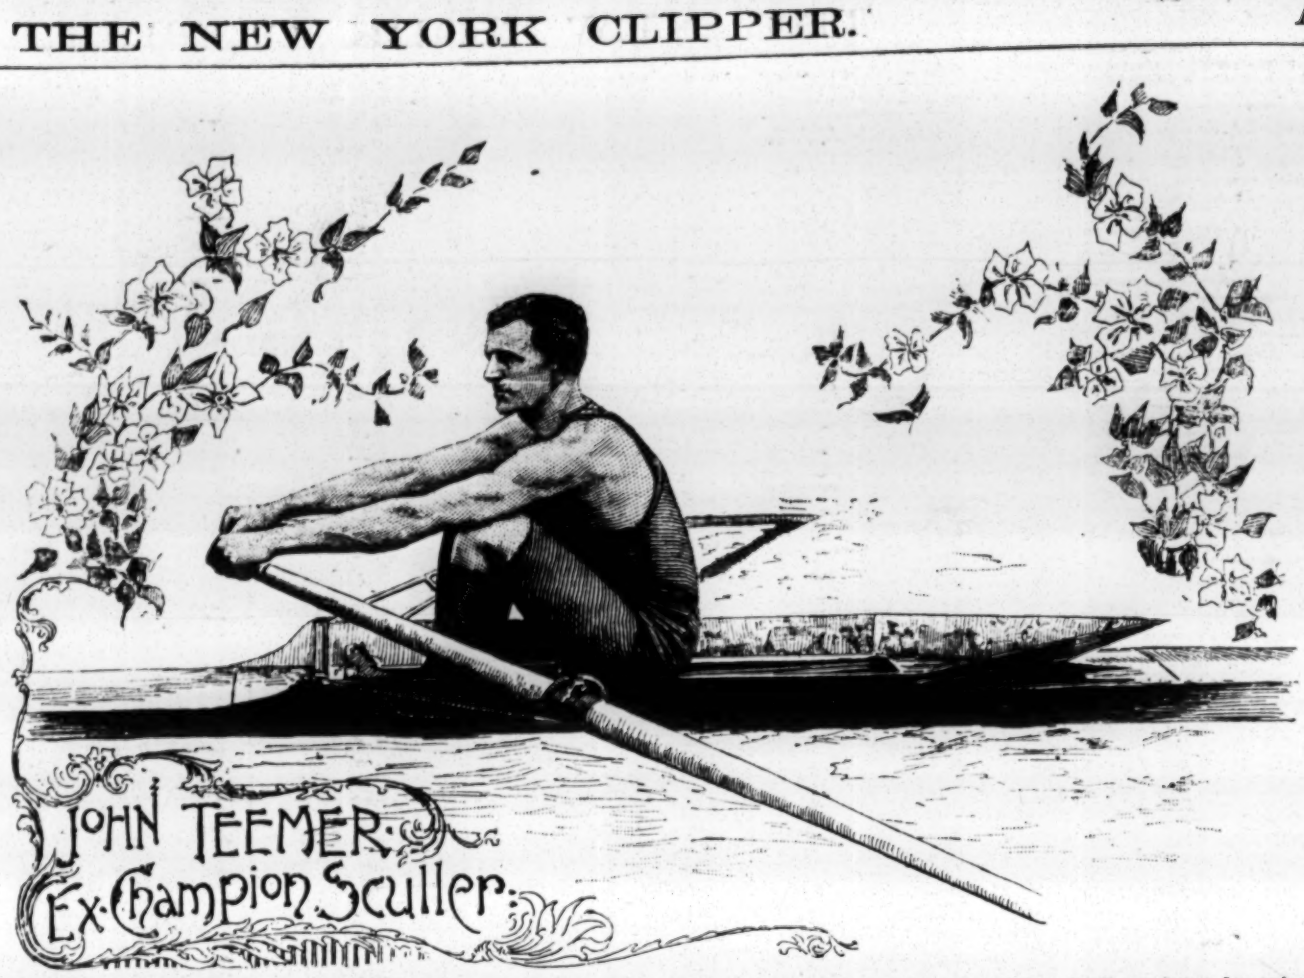
ST. BOTOLPH CLUB.—A was right in his claim. B could not raise A's combination in the manner stated. He must use a card from his hand. See reply to "H. B., San Luis Obispo."

BASEBALL, CRICKET, ETC.

W. H. H.—The men are debarred from playing on or against any teams claiming protection under the National Agreement.

H. J., Jersey City.—It was a fair ball. The rule you have reference to says the ball must be batted directly to the ground.

C. V.—Keefe, while pitching for the Mets struck out eighteen of the Columbus players in two games played July 4, 1883, at Columbus, O.



We present herewith an excellent likeness of the ex-champion sculler of America, John Teemer, who won the title three times, and who is the only sculler born in the United States who has held the position since Hanlan wrested it from Eph. Morris in 1878. Teemer was born at McKeesport, Pa., on July 8, 1864, and has resided there ever since. He stands 5ft. 8½ in. in height, and weighs in condition about 162lb. Although he began racing in 1881, it was not till two years later that he became known to the general public, his early contests being confined to home waters. During his career he has been a principal in the following matches: Beat John Powers, $200, three miles, in working boat, McKeesport, in 1881; beat Ed. Moniger, $400, three miles, Braddock, Pa., 1882; beaten by Ross Riorson, $500, three miles, his boat capsizing at the turn, Braddock, Pa., 1882; beaten by Haberfield, $600, two miles, Wheeling, W. Va., 1882; beat Peter H. Conley, $2,000, three miles, turn, in 20m. 9½s., Pullman, Ill., May 30, 1884; beat P. H. Conley again, $2,000, five miles, turn, in 34m. 10s., Lake Sebago, Me., July 7, 1884; beat Wallace Ross, $2,000, five miles, three turns, Teemer being on scratch and Ross having 5s. start, Point of Pines, Mass., Sept. 29, 1884; beaten by J. G. Gaudaur (5s. start), $1,000, three miles, turn, after rowing a dead heat at the first attempt, Teemer's boat being damaged when they rowed over, Creve Couer Lake, near St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 26, 1884; beat Ed. Hanlan, championship of America and $2,000, three miles, turn, in 21m. 13s., Albany, N. Y., Oct. 24, 1885; beat Wallace Ross, three miles, turn, Oak Point, N. Y. City, May 31, 1886; beat Ed. Hanlan again, championship of America and $2,000, course short of three miles, in 19m. 26s., Toronto, Ont., Aug. 13, 1887; beat J. G. Gaudaur, championship of America and $2,000, three miles, turn, in 20m. 28⅘s., Lake Maranacook, Me., Oct. 28, 1887; beaten by William O'Connor, championship of America and $2,000, three miles, turn, in 20m. 33s., Washington, D. C., Nov. 24, 1888; rowed a match race with J. G. Gaudaur, $1,000, about three miles, Gaudaur finishing first, but foul was claimed, and the stakes drawn, McKeesport, Sept. 13, 1889. This is the last occasion on which the subject of our sketch figured publicly in a race. He has also been a participant in numerous regattas, the principal of which we enumerate: Won first prize, beating J. G. Gaudaur, A. Hamm, G. H. Hosmer and others, Conneaut Lake, Pa., July 15, 1884; won first prize, beating J. G. Gaudaur and others, New Orleans, La., May, 1885; second to Gaudaur, Pittsburg, Pa., July, 1885; beaten by William Beach, champion of the world, in the final heat of international scullers' race on the Thames, Eng., and taking second prize, Aug. 30-Sept. 1, 1886; won consolation race, beating W. East Jr. and others, London, Eng., Oct. 9, 1886; with Al. Hamm, won international double scull regatta, Thames River, Eng., Oct. 30, 1886; won first prize, four miles, beating Al. Hamm and others, Lake Quinsigamond, Mass., July 14, 1887; won first prize, less than three miles, three turns, beating Hamm, George Lee and others, Saratoga Lake, N. Y., Sept. 1, 1887; won first prize, three miles, Hamm second and George Bubear third, Watkins, N. Y., Sept. 6, 7, 1887; won first prize, Hamm second, Lee third and Ross fourth, McKeesport, Pa., Sept. 17, 1887; won first prize, Hamm second, Hosmer third, Cayuga Lake, N. Y., July 12, 1888; won first prize, beating Hosmer, Ten Eyck and others, Canarsie, L. I., July 21, 1888; won first prize, Hamm second, Ten Eyck third, Hosmer fourth, Onondaga Lake, N. Y., July 23, 1888. Teemer has been taking exercise on the waters of the Monongahela River, at his home, and, we understand, intends to take an active part in the rowing events which will take place throughout the country during the season of 1890. Should William O'Connor succeed in his laudable effort to win the championship of the world and bring it back to American waters, there is little doubt that Teemer will be the first to make an effort to secure the coveted prize.

E. C. W., New Haven.—We answered your question correctly last week. Players have asked for and received advance money when signing contracts, but their salaries begin April 1.

J. F. B., Buffalo.—See Reach's "American Association Guide" for this year.

A. H. P., Rumney, N. H.—1. They are brothers. 2. Johnny is in business at St. Louis. 3. A letter directed to him care of this office will reach him. 4. Yes. 5. When we last heard of him he resided at Brooklyn. 6. He is playing with the Metropolitans of this city.

A. D., Brooklyn.—1. It was organized in September, 1880, in this city. 2. Yes, on the old Union Grounds. 3. No. He is living out on Long Island. 4. He is still manager of the Baltimore Club, which is now in the Atlantic Association.

G. V. R., Elmira.—We do not know their ages. Write to them, and you may probably obtain the information you desire.

BILLIARDS, POOL, ETC.

C. E. M., Waupen.—It is impossible to decide correctly as to the percentage of odds in a discount at billiards. We have never known two players, amateur or professional, who agreed upon this point.

G. H. L., Lynn.—The player in pyramid pool who pockets the white or playing ball on a stroke must return to the table all balls made on such a play, and also forfeit a ball from his rack or score.

TURF.

WAGER, Topeka.—A thoroughbred horse is one whose ancestors trace back in a direct line to the Arab Barb and Turkish horses imported into England in the seventeenth century. It is a big mistake to imagine that all running horses are thoroughbreds.

J. AND S.—That is largely a matter of opinion, and we do not care to express ours in this column. The estimation in which they are held by leading turfmen, which may be safely taken as a criterion, is shown by the value placed on their respective services, as represented by salaries paid.

S. F.—See answer to J. and S.

T. H. J., Washington.—A loses the scratching of Fitzroy not having any bearing on the bet, as A had still five horses from which to get three winners.

G. M.—The English Derby of 1865 was won by the Count De Lagrange's Gladiateur, by Monarque, ridden by H. Grimshaw.

S. E. W.—1. Several horses have trotted twenty miles in an hour, including Captain McGowan, Jack Stewart, Trustee and Controller. 2. The following horses have trotted one mile in 2:45 or better: Maud S., Jay-Eye-See, St. Julien, Maxy Cobb, Rarus, Phallas, Clingstone, Goldsmith Maid, Trinket, Hopeful, Sunol, Axtell, Harry Wilkes and Lula. 3. See Miscellaneous Answers.

ATHLETIC.

H. J. B., Scranton.—Make application to the Board of Managers of the Amateur Athletic Union, through the secretary of that body, James E. Sullivan, P. O. Box 611, New York City.

J. D. D.—It was on Nov. 9, 1888, that Steve Brodie was stated to have jumped from the bridge over the Hudson River at Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

RING.

P. C.—John P., alias "Patsy" Reardon was born in 1837, and his record is as follows: Beat Lass, near Cardiff, July 11, 1859; beat Smith of Brighton, Jan. 24, 1860; fought a draw with Jack Rooke, May 1, 1860; draw with Shipp, April 2, 3, 1861; draw with George King, March 25, 1862; beat Bob Travers (the black), July 15, 16, 1862; beat Jim Dillon, Dec. 9, 1862; draw with Jack Rooke, Nov. 24, 1863. He arrived in New York from England on Jan. 22, 1868, and died in St. Louis, Mo., of consumption, Feb. 27, 1871. He did not fight Mike Madden.

J. L. C., Wellsboro.—Bill Poole was fatally shot at Stanwix Hall, in this city, opposite where the Metropolitan Hotel now stands, between 12 o'clock, midnight, and 1 A. M. on Feb. 25, 1855. He died on March 8, and was buried on March 11.

G. H. E., Montreal.—John L. Sullivan "bested" Alf. Greenfield in glove contests in this city and Boston, on Nov. 18, 1884, and Jan. 12, 1885, respectively. The former setto was stopped in the second round, the police interfering, and in the third round of the second encounter Greenfield was knocked down twice.

MISCELLANEOUS.

W. B. MCA. JR., Caldwell.—Write to the President of the Board of Trade, Chicago, Ill. He will no doubt give you the desired information.

SUBSCRIBER, Birmingham.—A was right in his claim. The debt would be legally considered canceled. The "coppers" were as good legal tenders as bills, silver dollars or any other "coin of the realm."

M. O. L., St. Joseph.—Write to D. L. Scott Browne, 251 West Fourteenth Street, this city.

BUFFALO, Buffalo.—"A bets B that the amateurs will beat the professionals. The game results in a tie. Who wins the bet?"..... B wins.

FREE TRADE, Cincinnati.—1. A is in his thirty-seventh year. We cannot give a decision, simply because you failed to state the most important point of the wager, viz.: What it was that B bet. 2. It depends entirely upon the conditions of the wager. A man can sometimes win on a "sure thing."

S. E. W.—1 and 2. See Turf answers. 3. That is largely a matter of critical opinion. As the best of experts have long disagreed, we do not deem it fair to set ourself on record as promulgating an opinion which would, obviously, be that of one individual. Your own might be just as wise. We deal unhesitatingly with matters of fact, but we are not too assertive in matters of opinion.

R. E. P., Leadville.—1 Cleveland's plurality was 62,683. 2. No answers by mail or telegraph.

R. S. C., Cohoes.—E wins.

Max, the property of a Cincinnati fancier, and Newport Jack, belonging in Newport, Ky., fought for $400 a side at the latter place on April 15. Both dogs were game, but neither is much of a punisher, and, after a contest that occupied five hours and twenty-six minutes, little fighting being done during the last hour because the animals were completely exhausted, the referee declared it a draw.

Julius Rhinehart was alleged to have been killed during a fight over the result of a battle during a cocking main between Auburn and Rochester birds near Rochester, N. Y., April 13.

When the box containing the bulldog Dimple, valued at $1,500 and the bull terrier Diamond King, valued at $300, arrived at the dog show at Buffalo, N. Y., April 15, it was found that both of the animals were dead. They were shipped in a close box, with a few auger holes, which did not afford sufficient ventilation, and the poor dogs had gnawed away a portion of the box in the effort to get air.

CHESS.

To Correspondents.

H. P. BOUTELLE, Cleveland.—There is nothing to prevent mate on the move, as you describe your end game; please diagram the position.

DR. FOX, Rumney, N. H.—1. The Queen, originally. 2. The point described is not a bar to future castling. 3. It must immediately be named some piece (not a King), regardless of what still remains on the board. Procure Steinitz's Modern Chess Instructor, Part I, $1.50. P. O. Box 2,937, this city. 4. Neither; it is a drawn game.

B. S. BARRETT, Burlington, Vt.—Thank you for the attention.

BRO. SCHUBERT.—Our intentions were good, anyhow.

W. G. WILLARD.—Did the shot, we aimed at you, hit?

WE HAVE an especial pleasure in noting the advent of two more handsome columns in our glorious American "Chess Colonnade," both from able and experienced hands. The News, of Birmingham, the "Magic City" of Alabama, under the charge of S. M. Joseph; and now The Earth, of Burlington, Vt., edited by B. S. Barrett. This, for the first time we believe, adds our Green Mountain neighbor to the list of chess giving States. Both are excellent, pushing columns, bound to prosper, we sincerely believe.

31. Q-home (c)	P-Q R 4	62. Q-K B 3	B × P, wins.

(a) 11. Kt to K 2 at once, was much better.

(b) We believe that P to R 4, with a view to opening the K B file, was sound, and that Black would have been first in the field with his Rooks.

(c) [The move suggested by Mr. S. is impossible, but the rest of the note is a propos]; e. g.: We can see no reason for the elaborate defence of the Q's side which White now prepares, nor why he should not have pressed the K's side attack which his previous movements indicated. 31. K to his 2, followed by P to K B 4 here and at later points were, we believe, suitable to the nature of his position.

(d) Black, too, seems to feel his way in the wrong direction, and owing to this move has to waste a lot of time to protect Q R P, which he might have advanced to R 5 bringing about a position similar in almost all respects to the obtained on the 38th move.

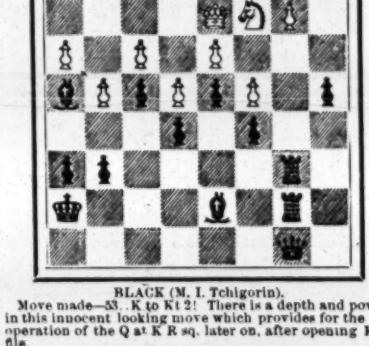
(e) There is lack of Mr. Gunsberg's usual decision in this game; several of his manœuvres are useless and aimless.

(f) Black assumes the offensive on the K's side; as usual, his plans are deep laid and carried out with the utmost energy.

(*) White never recovers from this strategical error that allows a beautifully conceived assault on the K's wing. He has nothing better than 51. Kt to Kt 2, to prevent B to R 5, which, as will be seen, was of the greatest importance.

(a) [For only one position we select this]:

WHITE (I. Gunsberg).



BLACK (M. I. Tchigorin).

Move made—53. K to Kt 2! There is a depth and power in this innocent looking move which provides for the co operation of the Q at K R sq. later on, after opening K R file.

(g) The object of Black's 53. is now apparent:

59. K to Kt 2 (if)	Q R × P!	61. K to Kt 3	Q to R 7 +
60. K × Q R	Q-R sq +	62. K-B 3	B x P +, wins.

(*) [Pinching, pinchinger, pinchingest. That may not be gilt edged grammar, but, forsooth George! all this is gilt edged chess, so far above praise that no eulogy can be charged up to hyperbole.] A game which, with the exception of some indifferent play in the middle, has been managed on the part of Herr Tchigorin with a masterly skill and ingenuity of the highest order.

LA STRATEGIE comes with a clear addition of sixteen pages to its last number. La S. gives a detailed resume of the great second French correspondence tourney, under the patronage of Jules Grevy, then President of France. This splendid tournament commenced in September, 1887, with eighteen entrants, each to play two games with every other; the first prize being a grand Sevres vase, given by President Grevy. Thirteen fought it out to the end, now just reported. The vase was won by M. Najotte, of Paris, with a score of 23½ to ½, out of 24. M. Preti may well felicitate the victor on this "marvelous victory." Second prize, M. Duc, of Paris, 21 Vols. of La Strategie (1867-88), score, 19½; third prize, M. Herve, of Tours, 80 francs, 17; fourth, O. Blanc, of Nantes, 60 francs, and the honor of the one draw vs. M. Najotte, 16; fifth, M. Koralek, 35 francs, 12; F. Audap heading the non prize winners with a score of 11..... Among the ten entrants to La Strategie's eighth correspondence tourney is a lady, Mme. Dagomet.

THE MATCH, Delmar vs Lipschuetz, seems to grow more stubborn as it gets on. Our last news gave: Mr. D., 2; drawn, 3; Mr. L., 4.

THE PRESENT will be our last extra diagram, while field sports are on.

THE ANNUAL double handed racket match between the players of Oxford and Cambridge Universities was contested at the Queen's Club, West Kensington, Eng., April 1. The representatives of Cambridge, E. Ashworth and H. R. Myer, won, defeating E. L. Metcalfe and F. H. Browning four games in seven. On the following day the singles contest took place, the best of five games being played, the Cambridge champion, P. Ashworth, defeating Metcalfe in three games.

THE ACTUAL AMOUNT in cash received by the pedestrians in the recent six days' race at Pittsburg, Pa., who were entitled to a share of the spoils was as follows: Herty, $781; Moore, $489; Hughes, $286; Noremac, $196; Haworth, $118; Horan, $79. The pedestrians all express themselves well satisfied with the management of the tournament, and urge Harry Davis to assume the management of a similar event at Madison Square Garden, this city, next Fall.

THE annual race for the cross country championship of Ireland came off over the Baldoyle course, near Dublin, on March 29. The County Dublin Harriers, holders, won, with 32 points, Haddington Harriers second, 77 points; Elysian Harriers third, 95. C. W. Blundell, of the winning team, was first home, in 38m. 42s.; with F. THE lacrosse teams of the Staten Island Athletic Club and Princeton College played a match at West Brighton, S. I., April 19. The Collegians won, taking the only goal scored during the contest.

PROF. WILLIAM MILLER and Duncan C. Ross recently met in a wrestling match stated to be for $1,000 a side, at Melbourne, Aus., the former taking three falls and the money.

CHECKERS.

To Correspondents.

DR. SCHAEFER.—Think it can be arranged all right.

H. F. MCATEER.—Your kind letter received. Will endeavor to gain full particulars.

P. ROBERTS.—Have written you.

ED. KELLY, of Manitoba, is now the Canadian champion. He states that he is ready and willing at all times to defend the title, and allow liberal expenses..... New ark has many good checker players, but they have one who, if in active practice, is head and shoulders above any they can produce of the younger generation. We refer to the veteran, J. O. Fairchild. We remember about fourteen or fifteen years ago we saw many examples of his skill in The Turf, Field and Farm. We would like to see a renewal of the old times, especially in the line referred to..... Woonsocket has a checker tourney with four entrants—Wales, Gould, Pickering and Brown. A gold medal and the title of champion of Woonsocket go to the winner.

M. W. FORD'S SUSPENSION.

We herewith present the report of the Games Committee of the recent indoor championships of the Amateur Athletic Union, setting forth their reasons for the rejection of M. W. Ford's entry, and of his subsequent debarment from competition at future games held under the rules of the Union. It was the general impression among amateur athletes, whether friendly or antagonistic to Ford, that the action taken against him upon the eve of an important competitive meeting was in reality due to the existence of a feeling of personal animosity against him on the part of one or more of the officials of the A. A. U., and the report of the committee contains little that does not tend to strengthen this belief. Instead of fortifying themselves in the position they have taken by again ventilating the Springfield business, for which Ford was once tried and convicted, but afterwards was reinstated by the body that adjudged him guilty, whose action was endorsed by the Union when they admitted him to competition to the championship games held at Travers Island, the committee have certainly weakened their cause in the estimation of all intelligent and fair minded men, while, with the possible exception of the charge that he deserted the Union and competed at the championship meeting of the old National Association in consideration of something that proved of pecuniary benefit to him, there is really nothing in the allegations and insinuations contained in the report that in any way reflects upon the amateur status of the champion. It is not to be wondered at, therefore, that the majority of amateur athletes are disposed to believe that the proceedings in committee against Ford were actuated by motives which will not bear the light of investigation so well as will the charges made against him, or that they are inclined to rebel against what they consider arbitrary action. Ford says that it is his intention to institute a legal action against those who have been instrumental in having him barred from competitions in which he holds that he is fully eligible to participate, both for the purpose of vindicating himself and punishing those who have sought to injure him. Here is the report:

NEW YORK, April 11, 1890.

TO THE BOARD OF MANAGERS, AMATEUR ATHLETIC UNION:

We, the undersigned, members of the Games Committee of the indoor championship meeting to be held at Boston, April 12, rejected the entry of Malcolm W. Ford, Brooklyn Heights Athletic Club.

We consider ourselves justified in doing this under the clause of our circular which limited the entry list to members of duly recognized amateur athletic clubs, for we do not believe that the Brooklyn Heights Athletic Club is a duly recognized amateur athletic club, or that it would be eligible for membership in the A. A. U.

We believe that the clause of our circular which reserved the right to reject or strike out any entry was intended to cover the case of persons who had committed offences which, although perhaps not technical violations of the amateur definition, were of such a character as to make the offender unworthy of association with amateur athletes, and under this understanding we rejected Mr. Ford's entry. We have also other and graver reasons for our action. We believe that Mr. Ford has violated both the spirit and the letter of the amateur definition, and that his character and record make him unfit of participation in amateur athletic contests. We know that before his amateur standing had ever been publicly questioned, he frequently informed a personal friend that it was his intention at the first favorable opportunity to disguise himself, assume a false name, and compete in professional games for money prizes; we believe that at Springfield, July 5, 1886, he competed under the name of T. Williams against professional athletes for money prizes, that he won one prize of $15, and another of $10, and took the money; we believe that during his trial for this offence he repeatedly and knowingly perjured himself by denying under oath facts which were clearly proven by numerous credible witnesses; we believe that six months after his trial he hired himself to the Hudson County (N. J.) Caledonian Club, agreeing to compete in their professional games against professional athletes, July 4, 1887, for a specified sum of money; that the club issued posters announcing his participation in the games, and that he was only prevented from fulfilling his contract by the earnest entreaties of G. Goldie and W. B. Curtis; we believe that his desertion from the Amateur Athletic Union and his participation in the games of the N. A. A. A., Oct. 13, 1888, was a direct purchase and sale, the consideration being a position with a salary of $50 per month, provided by one of the supporters of the N. A. A. A. A.

We know that in attempting to explain away his delay in paying the prize lost to Mr. Jordan in their recent match he bore false witness against Mr. Eberhard Faber, President of the Staten Island Athletic Club, and openly charged Mr. Faber, in public print, with proposing to him a corrupt agreement; we believe that in his financial transactions with the Athletic Committee of the Staten Island Athletic Club he has been guilty of irregularities; we know that his participation in games held under the rules of the A. A. U. has caused much dissatisfaction and frequent complaint from associate clubs; we know that the Games Committee of the last games of the New York Athletic Club, tired of waiting for you to take steps in the matter, decided to reject Mr. Ford's entry to their games, and were dissuaded from this purpose only by the vigorous protest of a prominent member of the N. Y. A. C.; we know that at the last meeting of the A. A. U. several delegates present spoke very plainly concerning the false position in which the A. A. U. was placed by allowing Mr. Ford to compete under their rules, and we know that since the publication of our action, he has made incorrect statements and placed this committee in a false position before the public, by stating to a reporter of The Evening Sun the following words: "Members of the committee have called at my office today, and assured me that they have had no hand in the action of the committee. On the contrary, they had fought the committee on this very question, but had been outnumbered in the voting."

For these reasons we ask you to approve our action in rejecting the entry of Mr. Ford, and also suggest that you should suspend Mr. Ford from competition in all amateur athletic games until he shall disprove the above statements, establish his amateur standing and demonstrate his fitness to participate in games held under your rules.

In conclusion your committee offer the opinion that a like report would have been submitted prior to previous amateur athletic championship meetings at which Mr. Ford has competed, except for the fact that the data upon which the above report is prepared have not heretofore been fully at the disposal, so far as we are aware, of any like committee of the A. A. U. Signed

THE Titan Athletic Club held a meeting last week, at which the following resolution was adopted, after discussion of the Ford case:

Whereas, The entry of Malcolm W. Ford to compete at the indoor championship meeting, given at Boston on April 12, under the auspices of the Amateur Athletic Union, was rejected; and

Whereas, We are led to believe that this rejection was animated to gratify some private grudge; be it

Ford being debarred from competing at the games given under the rules of the Amateur Athletic Union until said Ford shall be declared ineligible by a proper tribunal, and that all athletic clubs are requested to enter a like protest.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing resolution be forwarded to the Board of Managers of the Amateur Athletic Union.

THE EASTER HANDICAP, ETC.

Our old correspondent, M. J. Finn, of Natick, Mass., who has been on a visit to England for some time past, sends us the following letter, giving the result of the Easter Handicap at Sheffield, and information concerning other matters of interest to the readers of this column:

SHEFFIELD, April 9, 1890.

Webster, of Sheffield, with 88½yds., succeeded in breaking the tape in the final heat of Ford's 220yds. handicap, given here on the 7th and 8th. His competitors were Airton, 85½yds.; Hawksley, 88yds., and Partington, 86½yds., who finished in the order named. The final heat admits of little description, as Webster won by two yards. The most noticeable feature was that the least fancied won, while the greatest fancy was last. Betting on the final ruled at 7 to 4 on Partington, 2 to 1 against Hawksley, 6 to 1 Airton and 9 to 1 Webster. This win is scarcely accounted for by previous running, as Webster is a very ugly runner, but the wind, which was directly in the face of the men, may, I think, have had much to do with the result, as the winner, being next the crowd and buildings, received great shelter. Webster, however, had been an early favorite, but when his form was seen no one could fancy him. Of the Americans who ran, Peet had been backed quite heavily two weeks ago, and saw as low a figure as 8 to 1. Donlan also had a little support on Sunday night, but none of them won a heat, and, in fact, showed up very poorly. Peet was licked by Burrows in very slow time, Nelson was caught by South at 60yds., who won as he wished, as was also the case with Donlon and Partington, while Billy Isaacs just headed Grant on the post. The only good race on the second day was when Airton beat Ashton. Earnest was present, but did not run. Amongst the spectators were Harry Hutchins, George Hecht, Dick Buttery and George Wallace, all champions in their day. Of course all the Sheffielders of note were on hand, and the crowds present on both days were very large. The next handicap is to be given by Mr. Moste, at the Sheaf House Grounds, on May 26, 27, and the distance is to be 20lyds.

It is now generally understood here that this Easter Cup is the last one that will ever be given on the Queen's Grounds, as it is soon to be cut up into house lots. Mr. Ford, however, says that he will soon have another good ground, and chances are the handicaps will alternate at Sheaf House and the new grounds. Peet will leave for home on Saturday, on the Cunarder Etruria, so he tells me. All the others remain for the next handicap, and I understand we are also to have Quirk here again at Whitsuntide.

Bill Bryan has quit foot running and is looking after the baseball team formed at Derby. By the way, they are working hard to introduce baseball all over the country, and it must be admitted that, although prospects are not bright, they have some good people interesting themselves in the cause. Newton Crane, of London, formerly U. S. Consul at Manchester, is the head of the concern, which calls itself the National Baseball League of Great Britain. Umpire Hurst, of the Western Association, who has been hereabouts for the past few months, left for home on Saturday last on the S. S. Servia.

George Littlewood and "Choppy" Warburton ran their twenty-mile race at Fallsworth yesterday. "Choppy" covered 1.285yds. in his four minutes allowance. Littlewood ran a magnificant race, passing Warburton, and taking the lead at eight and one-half miles. The old one tried to stay for a lap, but had to give up. Littlewood then cantered a half lap, and stopped to see if he would have to finish the twenty miles. Keeping on for another lap at a canter he quit, having covered nine miles and about two hundred yards in 52m. 15s. He could surely have done the ten miles better than 55m. had he been pushed, and, they say, almost repeated this at the twenty miles.

The latest arrival here in the foot racing line is Chris O'Brien, of Holyoke, Mass. He is making his headquarters at Rotheram, and is receiving a very nice mark in the novice handicaps here. I met George Ross and Greek George at Manchester on Good Friday. They are both looking very well. The Greek and Steadman are matched to wrestle in three styles sometime next week at Manchester

PROF. J. R. JUDD, the veteran athlete and trainer, continues to do a rushing business at his sporting goods emporium, Sixth Avenue and Thirty-sixth Street, this city, being kept busy supplying the wants of his patrons in various parts of the country. The Professor gives his personal attention to all departments of the business, and has an able assistant in F. C. Puffer, of the New Jersey Athletic Club, who won the 400yds. hurdle race at the recent indoor championship meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union. The fact that the work turned out by Judd always gives satisfaction accounts for the extensive patronage bestowed upon this old and reliable house.

THE INTER STATE COLLEGE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION held a meeting at Philadelphia on Saturday, April 19, at which it was decided that hereafter the manner of counting points for the championship should be 5 for first, 2 for second, and 1 for third, instead of awarding it to the college having the most winners, or, in case of a tie, winners and seconds. It is believed that the change will have a tendency to stimulate interest in the smaller colleges. It was also decided to hereafter hold the Inter State competitive meeting on the Saturday preceding the Intercollegiate Association meeting in this city.

GAMES WERE HELD by the Keyport (N. J.) Athletic Club on April 18, the winners being as follow: 100yds. run—Elmer Morris, in 12s. Standing long jump—James P. Allen, 10ft. 11in. SHEARMAN JR., post graduate of Yale College of the class of '89, at the meeting of the New Haven Athletic Club, April 18, cleared a height of 5ft. 10½in. at the running high jump, excelling all his former efforts. Shearman is now a teacher in the Shelton Avenue Public School in the City of Elms.

STRAY SPARKS FROM THE DIAMOND.

Gossip About Ball Tossers from Here, There and Everywhere.

Robert Pettit, whose case was recently settled by the Board of Arbitration, has called the attention of the Board to a clause in the national agreement regarding the reservation of players, which may cause that body to reverse the previous decision, to the effect that he belongs to the Toronto Club. The clause is as follows: "A player shall be released from reservation when the reserving club has failed to tender him, on or before April 1, a regular contract with a salary of at least $100 per month for the season next ensuing." Pettit claims that the Toronto Club failed to do so, and he asks to be released from its reservation.

The New Yorks, of the National League, were too much for the Brooklyns, of the American Association, in their game played April 15, at the Polo Grounds this city, and the latter were defeated by a score of 6 to 1. Bassett and Denny led the batting. They making seven of the twelve hits obtained by the home team. A one handed stop of a hot ground ball by Denny was a feature of the game. Welch made his first appearance with the New Yorks and pitched six innings, then R. Murphy went into the box and finished the game. McCullough pitched for the visitors.

The Ottawa Club, of the Illinois-Iowa League, is composed of the following players: Catchers, Dallas and Collier; pitchers, Smith and Briggs; Hillery, Geisa and Mills on the bases, Burquin, short, and Dawson, Wright and Boisaenty in the outfield. The Illinois-Iowa League includes the cities of Ottawa, Joliet, Aurora, Sterling and Monmouth, in Illinois, and Cedar Rapids, Dubuque and Ottumwa in Iowa. The Newarks, of the Atlantic Association, turned the tables on the Syracuse Stars, of the American Association, April 15, at Newark, N. J., by defeating the latter by a score of 14 to 4. Lyons started in to pitch for the Stars, but the Newarks knocked him out of the box in the second inning. Keffer took his place, but fared but little better, as the Newarks batted his pitching pretty freely.

The New Havens, of the Atlantic Association, had the Rochesters, of the American Association, as opponents 15, at New Haven, Ct., and the latter won by a score of 15 to 8. The home team were ahead at the close of the fifth innings, but the Rochesters went in and scored nine runs in the sixth inning, and virtually settled the game.

Sowders pitched for the Brooklyns, and the visitors only made two safe hits off him. The Lindsleys tried two pitchers—Hammond and Larkin—and both were freely batted by the Brooklyns.

The Bostons, of the National League, met with another surprise April 15, in Baltimore, when the home team defeated them again by a score of 5 to 4. Baker started in to pitch for the Baltimores, but was being batted, and German was substituted. After that the Bostons made only one hit. Clarkson pitched for the Bostons, and struck out six men.

The Newarks, of the Atlantic Association, outplayed the Bostons, of the National League, at every point of the game April 16, at Newark, N. J., and won easily by a score of 8 to 2. Miller, of the home team, pitched a very steady and effective game, and held the visitors down to seven hits. Nichols, of the Bostons, was wild in his delivery and was hit hard.

The New Yorks, of the National League, won their game from the Jersey Citys, of the Atlantic Association, April 17, in this city, in the first inning, when they scored ten runs. After that, it was only a matter of how many runs they could make and how few the visitors would get. The New Yorks finally won by a score of 18 to 2.

It took ten hotly contested innings to decide the game played April 18, at the Polo Grounds, this city, between the New Yorks, of the National League, and the Newarks, of the Atlantic Association. It was either club's victory until the last man was put out, when the New Yorks won by a score of 3 to 2. The Newarks only made two safe hits off R. Murphy.

The Crescents, of the Amateur League, were defeated by the New Yorks, of the Players' League, April 18, at Brotherhood Park, this city, by a score of 14 to 3. For six innings the amateurs made the professionals work lively, after that they took things easy.

Tommy Esterbrook, who has been training all Winter, is in excellent trim, and would make a good man for any club in either the major or minor leagues. Tommy can play in any position, except, perhaps, the pitcher's box.

THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

Opening of the Ninth Championship Season by Eastern and Western Clubs.

The American Association inaugurated its ninth championship season April 17, with games in Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Columbus. Rain in Louisville prevented the scheduled game between the St. Louis and Louisville teams. From now on until Oct. 13, when the season ends, the race will be a spirited one and will be watched with unusual interest. It must be remembered that the eight clubs that compose the American Association were brought together under the most trying circumstances, and at the expense of another organization. Then the old clubs, that remained with the association, were badly crippled by having many of their best players leave them and join the Players' League. However, this about evened matters up and enabled the new clubs to present an almost equal playing strength. The teams are pretty evenly matched and the struggle for the championship emblem should be close and interesting. The opening games show very good attendance, and with the popular price of 25 cent admission fee the American Association should have a call upon the public for a liberal share of its patronage.

Columbus vs. Toledo.

The championship season was opened April 17, at Columbus, O., between the Columbus and Toledo teams before 5,000 people. The visitors were outplayed by the home team and were easily defeated. Johnson of Columbus, led the batting with five safe hits.

On April 18 these teams played a close and exciting game, which resulted in another victory for Columbus. The Toledos lost by errors at critical times, as the batting was slightly in their favor. Capt. Werden, of the visiting team, filed a protest to President Phelps because Umpire O'Dea called Sneed out on strikes in the ninth inning.

The Rochesters scored their first victory over the Athletics April 19, in Philadelphia, by superior fielding and hitting the ball at the right time. The Athletics made more safe hits, but they failed to bunch them or make them when most needed.

The Rochesters defeated the Athletics, April 21, by bunching seven of their thirteen hits in the third inning, which, with a base on balls and an out, netted seven runs, six being earned. This virtually settled the game, although the Athletics struggled hard to reduce this lead by scoring seven runs in the fifth and sixth innings. The visitors scored two runs in the eighth, both being earned.

St. Louis vs. Louisville.

The opening of the championship season occurred April 18, at Louisville, on account of its raining on the previous day, which had been scheduled, when the visiting team outplayed their opponents and scored an easy victory before nearly 6,000 people. Up to the sixth inning the home team played finely and led the visitors, but in that inning, however, it went to pieces, and allowed St. Louis to score four runs, to which they added seven in the eighth, and virtually settled the game. Stratton pitched well, but was poorly supported. Hamburg led the batting.

It required ten innings to decide the contest between the Louisville and St. Louis team played April 19, at Louisville. The game was a tie on the ninth, but the home team went in on the tenth and scored two runs. Shinnick and Roseman did the best batting for their respective teams. Each made three safe hits.

Over eleven thousand persons were present to witness the game of April 20, and special ground rules were made. In the third inning Wolf hit the ball against the left field fence, taking two bases and sending in a run. St. Louis protested and refused to play, and Umpire Connell gave the game to Louisville by a score of 9 to 0. Afterwards an exhibition game was played, which resulted in a tie—13 to 13.

Louisville beat the St. Louis again April 21, outplaying them at all possible points. Both pitchers fared badly at the hands of their opponents, although Stivetts received the most punishment. The features of the game were the heavy batting of McCarthy, Shinnick and Phealen, and Taylor's fielding.

THE PLAYERS' LEAGUE.

Large Crowds Witness the Opening of Its First Championship Season.

The Players' League championship season has fully begun, and the prospects for a prosperous campaign are certainly very encouraging. The attendance at the opening games far exceeded anything that even the most sanguine admirers of the organization dared to expect, which goes to show that the players are popular with the public, and that they can look for a liberal share of patronage if they behave themselves, and at all times play the best game of ball they are capable of doing. There is one great evil that has existed for many years in nearly every club, large or small, in the professional ranks, and if it is allowed to work itself into the teams of the new league then it is going to do more to hamper them than anything else. It is what is known in baseball parlance as "cliques." It is no easy matter to bring a lot of "star" players together in any one team, and prevent petty jealousies from springing up among them. However, the players all know that the success of the organization depends solely upon themselves, and it is, therefore, only reasonable to expect that they will do nothing to injure it or cause its downfall. In several instances the result of the opening games, both in the East and the West, was something of a surprise. This was particularly the case in the games played in this city and at Buffalo. That the Philadelphians would give the New Yorks a tough battle was looked for, but few persons present were prepared to see the contest end as it did. The greatest surprise, however, was the game played at Buffalo. The Clevelands were the choice among most people for several reasons. First and chiefly, they were considered the strongest team. Secondly, that they had more practice, and were consequently in better playing trim than the Buffalo players were, therefore the result of their game was not looked for, and only goes to demonstrate the uncertainty of the national game. Considerable interest was centered upon the Boston-Brooklyn game, at Boston, and the public was prepared to hear of a victory for either. Both teams are remarkably strong and pretty evenly matched, and it will not be surprising should they divide their honors in their first series of games with each other. At Pittsburg, a victory for the Chicagos was looked for, but not with quite so one sided a score. During the next few weeks, the contests between the Players' League teams will be watched with unusual interest, and the guessers will be kept busy trying to name the leaders. True, Chicago, New York and Boston have been picked, but Brooklyn may fool them all yet, for Manager Ward has a very strong team, which, under his supervision, will make a fine showing this year.

New York vs. Philadelphia.

There was an immense crowd of people present at the opening game of the Players' League championship season April 19, in this city, between the above named teams. The reception accorded the players when they came upon the field and all during the game was of such a nature that it must have convinced even the most skeptical person that the players have many friends among the lovers of the national game in this city and vicinity. It was the most impartial crowd ever seen at a ball game, as no distinction was made between the teams. Each came in for its share of praise whenever the occasion merited it. At 3 o'clock the Philadelphia players, escorted by the Sixty-ninth Regiment Band, marched from the club house, at the lower end of the field, up to and around in front of the grand stand, and the storm of applause that greeted them was of the most deafening order, and could be heard many blocks away. But when the Giants came on the field, headed by the band, the enthusiasm knew no bounds. The scene beggars description. The great concourse of people seemed wild with delight, and shouted themselves hoarse in their efforts to show their approbation to the many time champions. The game was a very peculiar one in many respects, and was marked with brilliant fielding, stupid errors, heavy batting and daring base running. Pitchers Keefe and Buffington were both touched up in a manner least expected, and both showed a lack of practice. The New Yorks scored their first runs in the second inning on hits by Ewing and Slattery, an error by Wood, and singles by Whitney and Keefe, and a wild pitch by Buffington. In the fourth inning a single by Hatfield and Gore's three bagger netted another run. Two more runs were added in the sixth inning on two bases on balls, a force out, and a base hit by Richardson, and Griffin allowing the ball to pass him. In the eighth inning the New Yorks added five more runs to their credit, on doubles by Whitney and Keefe, and three baggers by Gore and O'Rourke, with Connor's base on balls. The Philadelphias scored seven runs in the second inning on singles by Pickett, Mulvey, Farrar, Buffinton and Cross and Griffin's two bagger, and errors by Hatfield, Richardson, Gore and Whitney. In the sixth inning Fogarty's single, a balk by Keefe and Richardson's error gave the visitors another run. In the ninth inning Pickett was hit with a pitched ball, and took second on Mulvey's out at first. Farrar was hit with a pitched, then Buffinton hit safely for a single, sending Pickett home and Farrar to third. Cross made a two base hit and Farrar scored and Buffinton took third. Griffin's hit was fumbled by Hatfield and Buffinton scored the tie run. Shindle made a safe hit and Cross scored the winning run.

Another victory was scored by the Philadelphias April 21. John Ewing was hit hard in the first four innings. After that he did better work, but the visitors had too great a lead for the New Yorks to win. Shindle and Milligan did the heaviest batting, the former making two home runs and a three base hit, while Milligan made a three baser and a home run. Knell was batted hard, but the visitors gave him better support in the field than J. Ewing received.

Pittsburg vs. Chicago.

The Players' League championship season was begun April 19, in Pittsburg, before one of the largest crowds that ever attended a game in that city. Over 8,000 persons witnessed the defeat of the home team by the Chicagos. The grounds were in bad condition and good fielding was out of the question. The visitors won by superior batting and in being more fortunate in placing their hits. The following floral pieces were presented by friends: Hanlon, a horseshoe; Pfeffer, a basket of flowers; Comiskey, a home plate with a mammoth ball, and Galvin, a miniature fireman.

Staley held the hard hitting Chicago team down to five safe hits April 21, and the home team won its first championship game. Baldwin, too, pitched a very fine game, but with base on balls and timely batting, the home team managed to win. Beckley's batting was a feature of the game, he making two double baggers, which were followed by safe hits.

Buffalo vs. Cleveland.

Undoubtedly the greatest surprise at any of the opening games occurred, April 19, at Buffalo, when the home team scored such a remarkable victory over the Clevelands. The visitors were outplayed at every point of the game. Gruber was very erratic in his delivery. It seemed as if he could not get the ball over the plate, and whenever he did so it would be hit all over the field. He gave sixteen men their base on balls, and was hit safely seventeen times. Haddock pitched a good game for the home team and held the visitors down to six hits.

These teams contended again April 21, and the game was marked by heavy batting. The home team started off by knocking Bakely out of the box in the first inning. Hemmings replaced him, but, after several innings, he, too, was batted all over the field. Stricker's batting and base running were the redeeming features in Cleveland's play.

Boston vs. Brooklyn.

Over 8,000 persons witnessed the game played April 19, on the Players' League grounds in Boston. It was a remarkably close and interesting contest, which had a very exciting finish. The home team took the lead in the first inning, when Stovey hit the ball over the left field fence for a home run. In the third inning Stovey reached first on Ward's error, and scored on Kelly's three base hit. In the ninth inning Nash made a hit and took third on Brouthers' single, and scored on Quinn's out at first. Up to this time the visitors had failed to get in a run. In the last of the ninth inning, when Joyce got his base on balls, a hit by Daily, a force by Van Haltren and Seery's two bagger netted two runs.

Weyhing was altogether too much for the Bostons at critical points in the game played April 21, and the Brooklyns had no trouble in scoring a victory. The home team outbatted the visitors, but the hits were not made when needed. Andrews led the Brooklyns at the bat, he making four of the eight hits they obtained. Cook's work behind the bat for the visitors was greatly admired. Seery also did some fine fielding.

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE.

The Senior Organization Begins Its Fifteenth Championship Season.

The National League's prospects upon entering its fifteenth championship season are not so bright as they have been in former years, or probably would have been had it not met so formidable a rival as the Players' League. The blow received at the start was a severe one, and it will probably be some time before it recovers from its effect. The magnates might have saved themselves this annoyance had they not been so obstinate about arranging their schedule of championship games

The weather was no better on the 17th, and the attendance was affected thereby, while the condition of the track made the task of selecting the winners more difficult still, and the bookies had the best of the game during the afternoon, not one first choice horse catching the eyes of the judges first. The card presented was an attractive one, composed of a half dozen events, for which a large entry of good horses was programmed, and as the weather was fine the attendance was doubtless large. There will be racing daily, Sunday excepted, till the 28th inst., inclusive, when a recess will be taken till Wednesday afternoon, May 7, when the meeting will be resumed, continuing till May 14. The grounds have been materially improved since last season, and the track is in excellent shape.

JOCKEY FOX has been ruled off the running turf by the executive committee of the Memphis Jockey Club, having been convicted of the charge of pulling Jem Walton in the race for the Peabody Hotel Handicap last week.

COLONEL F. E. BRACK, the English turfman and breeder of St. Gatien, the winner of the Derby in 1884, recently committed suicide by shooting.

ATHLTEIC.

Changes in Football Rules.

The advisory committee of Yale College recently held a meeting, at which the following changes in the football playing rules were adopted, and sent to the Intercollegiate Association, to be considered and acted upon at the meeting in May:

Rule 8—"If the catcher, after making his mark, be deliberately thrown to the ground by an opponent, he shall be given five yards, unless this carries the ball across the goal line."

Rule 13—"Nor shall the disqualified or injured player return to further participation in the game."

Rule 14—Read for Oct. 15, "third Saturday in October."

Rule 17—Add after "shoes," "or any metal substance upon his person."

Rule 24—Add section (C), "If a player, when off side, touches the ball inside the opponents' five yard line, the ball shall go as a touchback to the opponents."

Rule 34—"If a fair catch be not made, the ball shall go to the opponents at the spot where it first strikes the ground."

The rule regarding "batting the ball" was amended to read "batted in any direction."

A RUN of five miles and a half was indulged in by the Princeton College Hare and Hounds on Saturday afternoon, April 19. The hares were Aikman and Atkinson, the former of whom finished the course in advance, his time being 56m. 50s. J. W. Betts was the first of the pack to finish, his time being 1h. 6m.

THE annual football match between the representative teams of Ireland and Scotland took place at Belfast, Ire, March 29, the Scots coming off victorious by a score of four goals to one.

JOHN CONNERS defeated Joseph Inness in a wrestling match at Springfield, Ill., April 14.

THE CROSS COUNTRY CHAMPIONSHIP.—The great athletic event of the current week is the championship run of the National Cross Country Association, which comes off at Morris Park on Saturday, April 26. All the leading teams of the East have entered, have been practising assiduously, are now in excellent condition to make a strong fight for the honors, and that the struggle will be of the severest description seems certain. The public are interested in the affair, and with pleasant weather and good going a most interesting contest will be witnessed, and the event will prove successful in every respect.

THE ACORN ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION, of Brooklyn, will hold a series of members' games during the season of 1890, three prizes to be given to the competitors scoring the highest number of points. There will also be a series of handicap cross country runs, with a prize to the winner (to be won thrice) and a prize to the contestant making the best average time. The club also offer prizes valued at $15 and $10 respectively to the two members bringing into the fold the most recruits during the year.

THE third cross country contest for the Kilpatrick Bronze took place at Engl wood, N. J., on Saturday evening, April 19. The tract of ground raced over was very trying, and of those who started only two kept on the go throughout the length of the course, and the result was a dead heat between T. Avery Collett, scratch, and J. Adelsdorfer, who had a start of thirty seconds. The dead heat will be run off over the same course on the afternoon of the 24th inst.

THE Midland Counties Amateur Athletic Association of England, at a meeting held at Birmingham, inquired into the suspicious running of W. H. Morton at the recent race for the national 'cross country championship. It was alleged that Morton allowed Parry to win the race on sufferance, but after devoting about three hours to hearing evidence, etc., the subject was adjourned for further consideration.

THE SECOND of a series of road runs for a silver cup, which has to be won twice before it can be permanently held, took place at West Brighton, S. I., under the auspices of the Corinthian Athletic Club, April 19. It was won by W. I. Rodgers, Acorn A. C., 30s. start, in 17m. 17s., the distance being about three miles. J. G. Raymond, Corinthian A. C., scratch, was second, and A. C. Ford third.

AN athletic club composed of Irishmen was organized in the Fifth Ward, this city, on Sunday, April 20, with fifty-two members and the following officers: President, Thomas Lonergan; vice president, Joseph Bradley; financial secretary, Edward Condon; recording secretary, Richard Mahoney; corresponding secretary, Michael O'Sullivan; treasurer, Patrick Curtis.

THE TEN mile race for the amateur championship of Scotland was run at the Powderhall Grounds, Edinburgh, on April 24, before a handful of spectators, although the weather was superb and the track excellent. Hannah won in 55m. 39⅘s., by six hundred yards from Hunter, who stopped to take off one of his shoes.

THE annual football match between teams representing England and Scotland was played at Hampden Park, Glasgow, Scotland, April 5, and was witnessed by a vast gathering. The result of a spirited contest was a draw, each side securing one goal.

JACK CARKEEK has canceled his engagement with Forepaugh's Circus, he concluding that $150 a week was not enough for two performances a day, wrestling all comers.

SHOW NEWS.

AMONG THE PLAYERS EVERYWHERE.

— Notice of a suit for divorce was served on J. K. Emmet on Saturday afternoon, April 19, while he was playing at Hammerstein's Harlem Opera House. In the complaint, which was drawn by a legal firm at Albany, the home of the Emmet family, Mrs. Eleanor E. Emmet, the comedian's wife, declares that she was married to Joseph K. Emmet in July, 1864, at St. Louis, Mo., and has lived with him as his wife until the beginning of the present suit. Infidelity to his marriage vows more than once is charged against the actor, but the specific allegations name Maud White, leading lady of Mr. Emmet's company, as the corespondent. Besides these indiscretions Mr. Emmet is accused of misconduct with other women in Philadelphia and elsewhere. The profession at large will read this news with regret, if not with surprise. Mr. Emmet was under the spell of his evil genius all last week, though he managed to get through his engagement at Harlem. The papers were served on him at the close of the matinee 19. At night Miss White was ejected from the theatre by J. K. Emmet Jr., his father's manager. She resisted, and made a bitter scene between son and father. The latter consented to go to the Manhattan Hospital for treatment, and passed Sunday, 20, there. He denies that his marital conduct has been other than proper, declares that he admires Miss White only as an artist, and asserts that he still loves his wife tenderly. Mr. Emmet's season had only two weeks longer to run, and he was booked to play at Hoboken 21-26. Miss White on 20 declared that she had been made the victim of an outrage, and that she would demand the right to appear with the company until the end of their tour. She hinted that she would legally proceed against J. K. Emmet Jr. The whole affair has caused a disagreeable sensation in metropolitan theatrical circles. This week's dates of the company were canceled on 21, and Jacobs' Hoboken Theatre was closed on that date and 22. The other canceled dates are Glens Falls 23 and Albany 24-26. Mr. Emmet had been put in condition to play, but he refused, on the ground that his troubles had made it impossible for him to appear. He will "make good," as usual, to the disappointed managers, and it is not unlikely he may fill next week's dates. It is stated that an effort is to be made to reconcile the star and his wife.

— It is George C. Francis, and not G. C. France, as the types wrongly made it appear last week, who has been engaged as business manager of C. D. McCall's "Master and Man" Co.

— The Gates-Tenny Co., which opens its season at Saratoga, N. Y., next September, will include Harry C. Arnold, T. Francis Griffin, D. Osmond Gordon, Lulu Espey, Mrs. E. Owen Flint, S. M. Gates, W. H. F. Tenny, Charles Warren Anson, Harriette King, A. D. Cameron and Little Maude Flint.

— Sawtelle's Comedy Co. report excellent business through Northern New York.

— L. M. Boyer has secured the Odd Fellows' Hall, at Pittsburg, Pa., and, in conjunction with the owner, H. A. Thomas, has converted the house into a theatre, to be known as the Odd Fellows' Opera House, where Manager Boyer intends running a first class stock company the season 'round, the first performance to be given May 5. The house has a seating capacity of over 1,500, and is thoroughly fitted up with all modern improvements. Manager Boyer will also direct the tour of "Her Greed for Gold" Co. next season.

— Manager Eugene Tompkins has engaged William Redmund, Charles Coote, Frank Losee, Harry Courtaine, William B. Chase, C. B. Waite, D. J. Sullivan, J. R. Furlong, Sydney Armstrong, Alice Fisher, Marion Elmore and others for his "Silver Falls" Co., which opens May 5 at his Boston Theatre, in the first American performance of that drama. It is by George R. Sims and Henry Pettitt, and was originally acted in England over a year ago.

— Marie Wainwright's present season will close May 3 at Chicago.

— Josie Crocker has secured the American right to the English comedy, "Roberta," from the author, Walter Woodbridge. Her company will go out next season with new printing and special scenery, and will play first class houses only.

— The following members of the Jefferson-Florence Co. have been reengaged for next season: Viola Allen, Frederick Paulding and George W. Denham.

— Apropos of Chas. MacCeachy's recent method of advertising "Old Jed Prouty" through Maine, by distributing maps of that State, showing in prominent colors the route of Richard Golden's Co., Frank C. Griffith, acting manager for Mrs. Langtry, writes us from London that he adopted that unique idea over seven years ago, when he was directing the tour of Eugene Tompkins' "World" Co. through the Northeast. The maps he used were round in shape, and contained all the New England States, together with the correct longitudinal lines and other interesting hemispherical subjects. The route of the company was distinctly traced by bright red lines running in every direction, while the cities booked were marked by heavy dots, with their respective names prominently printed. The lithographic maps attracted attention everywhere, and over 100,000 were used during the tour of the company. Manager Griffith reports splendid business for his star, and says Mrs. Langtry's English production of "As You Like It" has proved a very notable, as well as a successful, one. "Esther Sandraz" will in all probability be her succeeding bill.

— James B. Mackie, a comedian who has become very popular as Grimes in "A Bunch of Keys," is gathering around him for next season some of the best fun makers in the profession. Louise Sanford, a charming and vivacious soubrette, formerly familiar to all playgoers as Teddy in "A Bunch of Keys," and now supporting Richard Golden in "Old Jed Prouty," will fill the chief female role—that of a tomboy on the Teddy Keys order. Mr. Mackie will himself have an excellent foil in the well known character comedian, Chas. Burke, and the other members of the company will include people equally as good in their respective lines. Manager Mackie is just now negotiating with the Clipper Quartet, as it is his intention to have a double quartet—one of each sex—for "Grimes' Cellar Door." Val. Dresher is to be the advance representative of the company.

— A note dated "Denver, Col., April 20," and signed by Ida Maussey, reaches us on the 21st—a remarkably quick journey, if it was really accomplished—and informs, or purports to inform, us that Miss Maussey some time ago procured an absolute divorce in the Illinois courts, from Andy Morris.

— Haverhill Lodge, No. 165, B. P. O. E., was instituted at Haverhill, Mass., April 16. The lodge starts off with seventy-five members. A large delegation from Lawrence, Boston and Providence were present. The following constitute the officers elected: E. R., W. H. Moody; E. L. K., E. B. George; E. L. K., Dr. G. C. Clement; E. L. K., Burt C. Whittier; sec., E. B. Fuller; treas., L. Wilder Chase. Trustees—J. H. Thomas, Isaac B. Thomas and F. A. Fitts.

— Fred Wilson writes that he is hard at work on a new musical Irish comedy. His daughter, Ella, is rewriting her play, "Two to One," and both are sanguine of success next season.

— A. H. Knoll, of Knoll and McNeil, is one of the special cards of the Alba Heywood Concert Co.

— Harry F. Stone, the veteran actor and manager, and a pioneer of theatricals in nearly all the provincial towns of the four continents, informs us that his company for his "Star of the Sea" Theatre, at St. John's, Newfoundland, will be one of the strongest ever presented to that locality.

— Celie Ellis has been engaged by Manager Junius Howe for the Summer season of comic opera at Harris' Academy of Music, Baltimore, beginning May 19. Pauline Hall, Frank David and Jennie Winston will also be members of the company. "The Black Hussar" will be the first opera produced, with Pauline Hall and Celie Ellis as Minna and Rosetta, and Frank David as Hackenback, to be followed by "Falka," with Miss Ellis in the title role, and "Fatinitza," in which Miss Winston will make her first appearance with the company.

— The roster of Alice C. Keane's Co., producing her Western drama, "Fair Play," includes Alice C. Keane, J. H. Rennie, Chas. Ambroise, J. W. Maylin, Chas. Fisher, Jerry Hart, J. P. Carroll, E. L. Walton, Mrs. Peters, Mary Davis, Lulu May, James K. Keane, manager, and E. K. Graham, advance representative.

— John J. McNally, of The Boston Herald, has written a new farce comedy, called "A Straight Tip," which deals with sporting matters. Managers William Harris and C. J. Rich heard it read recently, and when the author had concluded reading the second act they at once secured it by paying a handsome sum down and agreeing to give a royalty and a percentage on the gross. They will organize a first class company for the piece, and produce it early next season at the Hollis Street Theatre, Boston.

— W. J. Chappelle, business manager of Elmer E. Vance's "The Limited Mail" Co., reports unusual success in booking his attraction for next season. No less than seventeen week stands have already been filled, and all in first class houses.

— Schwartz & Froom's Summer season with Vincent's comedy, "Running Wild'" opens May 5, at Hoosick Falls, N. Y., and continues until end of July. The management have all the principal Eastern cities booked at most advantageous terms, and everything promises a very satisfactory season. Gypsy Ward, late of Estelle Clayton's Co., has been engaged for the leading soubrette part of Trixey. Mr. Vincent has entirely rewritten the comedy since John Wild starred in it, and, with the excellent company that Swartz & Froom have engaged, the piece is expected to prove a success.

— Marie Hubert Frohman's Co. will play for the benefit of Fred A. J. Dunwick, Esteemed Leading Knight of Glens Falls, N. Y. Lodge, No. 81, B. P. O. E., May 10.

— Chas. W. Young, who for the past seven seasons has been so successful with the Murray and Murphy Co., is back in this city, having recently closed with that troupe. Mr. Young is a clever actor, and has already received fine offers for next season. After a short stay here, he will go to Mt. Clemens, Mich., for the Summer.

— W. A. Brady will produce Dore Davidson and Ramie Austen's drama, "Guilty Without Crime," during the fourth week of his coming engagement at San Francisco, having leased the play for one week.

— John Radish, of the Marie Wainwright Co., an a member of Providence Lodge, Theatrical Mechanics, is being cared for through a severe illness, at Denver, by members of Denver Lodge.

— James B. Macks is at his home, Providence, suffering from a severe injury contracted by a fall on the sidewalk, in this city, last week.

— The Eugene Fredericks Co. played "The Lone Star," a border drama, for the first time, at Bristol, R. I., April 21.

VAUDEVILLES AND THE MINSTRELS.

THE LA REANS—Harry and Birdie—left the Kiowa Medicine Co. and joined Dr. Tremaine's Show at Newark Valley, N. Y., April 14.

THE SHEPPARD SISTERS—Mamie and Jennie—opened at the Olympic Theatre, Chicago, April 21.

ED. W. PROUTY and his orchestra closed their season at the St. James Hotel, Jacksonville, Fla., April 5. Prof. Prouty is now leading the orchestra with Bartholomew's Equine Paradox.

ALI ZADA, the Oriental Necromancer, is the title by which Logrema, the magician, will henceforth be known. He appeared at Koster & Bial's, this city, April 21, and is credited with a hit. His new act is picturesque and original.

MANAGER JAS. GEARY is very desirous of hearing from Prof. William Talbott.

SAGAMORE CASINO, this city, has Lizzie Haywood, Grace Nugent, Kate Zanfretta, Thos. T. Carter, Florence Palmer and Frank Rice as the bill th's week.

NELLIE LAWSON is said to be scoring a success in her new black face song and dance specialty, "Fresh from the South." She was tendered an ovation last week at Newburg, N. Y., in commemoration of her birthday. Among the handsome presents received was an elegant gold medal, presented on behalf of the Volunteer Fire Department of that place.

GEORGE SUN took a benefit at the Hot Springs, Ark., Opera House, April 14, at which a number of prominent specialists appeared. There was a misunderstanding between Mr. Sun and Manager Harry Hinkson, of the Hot Springs Casino, in which the former claimed that he had not been fairly treated; but, as the matter is largely a personal one, we deem it best not to open a controversy that would probably benefit neither party concerned. Mr. Sun is still ill, but he writes in a hopeful vein.

A NOTE, signed Lizzie Oakman, informs us that J. Arthur Doty, the female impersonator, died at Detroit, Mich., April 13. We await the particulars.

GUY BROS.' MINSTRELS report continued good business through Virginia.

D. W. MCCABE, of McCabe & Young's Minstrels, has entered suit against the Inter State Hotel, at Ft. Scott, Kan., for $5,000 for refusing to serve him with meals. The minstrels close their regular season at Hutchinson, April 26, and open their Summer season a week later at Garden City.

DEATHS IN THE PROFESSION.

HANNAH HOLDSWORTH, wife of Samuel Holdsworth died of pneumonia April 5, at Whatcom, Wash., after a brief illness. Mr. and Mrs. Holdsworth were married in this city in 1871. During the early part of her married life, Hannah Holdsworth did not follow the stage, her first appearance being at the Brittania Music Hall, Glasgow, Scot., in April, 1878, doing operatic sketches with her husband, she introducing the cornet, which instrument she played with merit. After performing in all the leading music halls of Great Britain, and in the Christmas pantomimes of the Pavilion Theatre, London, for four consecutive seasons, they returned to this city in March, 1886, opening at Miner's Theatre. After touring the Eastern circuits for considerable time, and travelling with different road shows, they struck West. While playing at the Wigwam, San Francisco, they were engaged by J. C. Stewart to open at Jacobs & Proctor's New Theatre, Brooklyn, N. Y., in "The Two Johns," Hannah playing Mrs. Peter Johns and Sam the Sheriff, doubling in other parts, they introducing their specialties. After ending the season at Louisville, Ky., they again went West to tour John Cort's circuit, playing twenty six consecutive weeks, arriving at Whatcom, Wash., and opening at Roscoe's Casino Theatre. That place being quite pretty, and having prospects of a great future, they concluded to settle down there and try their luck in business. They built a large house, which they furnished handsomely, and were prospering nicely, Sam having retired from the stage. Both were looking forward to a quiet and happy future.

MRS. AMELIA MERCER, a veteran English actress, aged between seventy-five and eighty, died March 31, at London, Eng. This old lady had for several years been entirely supported by the Dramatic and Musical Sick Fund, which defrays the expenses of her funeral in their ground, "The Actors' Acre," at Woking Cemetery. The case of Miss Mercer was brought to the notice of the Fund at a time when she was in extreme distress. The brokers were in possession of her small effects, and starvation stared her in the face. From all future difficulties the committee at once determined to relieve her. They placed the matter before the Actors' Benevolent Fund, but, unfortunately, their rules were so stringent, she having left the stage some twenty years, they could not assist. The rules of the Dramatic and Musical Fund being more elastic, the poor old lady had been most carefully protected to the end. Miss Mercer's career before the very sad accident occurred which deprived her of any further opportunity of appearing before the public—a fall that dislocated her spine—had been a most prosperous one. Both in London and the provinces, in the '30s and '40s, she played lead and seconds with such artists as Sheridan Knowles, Vandenhoff, Cooke, Macready, G. V. Brooke, Henry Betty, Webster R. Younge, Alfred Wigan, etc., and with, in the casts, Helen Faucit, Coleman Pope, Ellen Tree, etc.; and to show the great versatility of Miss Mercer's talents we may mention that she sang, played the guitar, and danced in many productions in the company of the great Braham, Stuart King, Harry Bedford, Henry Phillips, Mrs. Waylett, Miss P. Horton, etc. Such names will bring, no doubt, many pleasant memories to those who still survive.

THE cable announces the death, at Cheltenham, Eng., April 17, of John Barnett, the venerable composer and dramatist, and father of Eugene Barnett. John Barnett was one of the most prolific of composers in his day, and is credited with an important participation in the restoration of the English opera when its existence was threatened by the balladists. He was born July 1, 1802, and developed a precocious talent for music and composition. At eleven he was apprenticed to a celebrated musical director of his time, and sang as a boy alto on the stage of the Lyceum, London. As a child he wrote two masses. In 1825 he wrote his first musical farce, "Before Breakfast," for the Lyceum, and "Monsieur Mallet," "Country Quarters," "Two Seconds," "The Soldier's Widow," "Married Lovers," "Charles XII" and other dramatic works followed in rapid succession. His oratorio, "The Omnipresence of the Deity," was produced in 1829, and two years later he brought out at Sadler's Wells "The Pet of the Petticoats." His "Lyrical Illustrations of the

HARRY AND MILDRED

ROUCLERE

PHENOMENAL MIND READERS AND JUGGLERS!

TWO DISTINCT AND DIFFERENT SPECIALTIES!

Return dates everywhere. Managers say "Your acts are the strongest we have ever played." An unsolicited testimonial from MANAGER WHALLEN, of Buckingham Theatre, Louisville, Ky.:

TO THE PROFESSION AND MANAGERS.—HARRY AND MILDRED ROUCLERE have just closed their second engagement with me this season, and it is with pleasure I attest my approbation of their worth and merit. They have certainly captured this city, and their acts are the talk of Louisville. The Juggling is wonderful, both in execution and finish. In their Mind Reading they are certainly at the head. I have played nearly all the recognized performers in this line, and can conscientously say, without fear of contradiction, that MR. ROUCLERE AND WIFE DO THE BEST ACT OF ITS KIND IN AMERICA. They make what is usually a dull and tiresome act a bright specialty full of life, and one that creates more talk and comment from our patrons than anything we have ever played. A date is always open for you at the Buckingham. Respectfully yours, J. H. WHALLEN, People's Theatre, Paterson, N. J., week April 21. Responsible managers, address as above.

FRANK UFFNER'S LATEST.

TO MANAGERS:

Since the Death of LUCIA ZARATE, THE MIDGET,

I have been busy in searching for an attraction that would equal her in phenomenal oddity and drawing power. I am pleased to announce that I have found it in the family of E. T. PAGE, of Ingersoll, Texas. The head of the family is an English gentleman, the wife is a woman of not uncommon appearance, and is a native of Texas. In September, 1887, twins blessed their union. In December, 1888, triplets were born to them. In January of the present year Mrs. Page became the mother of four babes at one birth. Of all these children only the triplets died. I have contracted with MR. AND MRS. PAGE for the exhibition of the family—the parents, the twins, the quadruplets and the two nurses, whose services have been found necessary. My first date is at Denver, Col., in Sackett & Lawler's Wonderland, for two weeks, beginning April 7. Thereafter, I shall be at Lincoln, Neb., and St. Joseph, Mo., for one week in each place, and at Omaha, Neb., for two weeks. The quadruplets, to whom I call particular attention, are wonderful enough, solely from the simultaneity of their birth, to attract the attention and excite the interest of all men and women everywhere. Taking into consideration the fact that they are so similar in weight, in the blondeness of hair and blueness of eye, and in their sex, that their own mother finds it difficult to tell the one from the other, their value as objects of interest appears greatly enhanced. Considering the additional fact that Faith, Hope, Charity and Patience Page are perfect in health and formation, that they are pretty and happy children, possessing the full measure of infantile intelligence, that never before in the history of the world have quadruplets of one sex been born—considering all these facts, I have no hesitancy in pronouncing the Page Quadruplets the greatest curiosity I have ever handled, and the most attractive freak of nature I have ever seen. That they will prove to be a magnet of greater strength than were even Lucia Zarate and General Mite is a sweeping assertion, but one upon which I will stake my reputation as an experienced showman, of mature judgment.

I am prepared to substantiate to the letter every assertion I have made respecting the birth of these children. Their advent into the world was heralded throughout Texas, and all the residents of Ingersoll are familiar with all the facts in the case. As to the drawing power of this remarkable family, I request attention to the attendance at the museums where I shall be on the dates given above.

O'Connor in Australia.

We take the following regarding the treatment which William O'Connor has met with since arriving in Australia from The Sydney Bulletin: "In the ordinary course of events the arrival of American sculler O'Connor should make things hum on colonial waters, but we are afraid O'Connor has a bad time in front of him before getting on a match for the championship. With the farce of a race for the title on between Kemp and Matterson, O'Connor is blocked, unless he makes a match with Stansbury; and should the American beat the latter, he is no nearer the goal of his ambition, although he will, without doubt, have beaten the best man in the Australias, for it is an open secret that Stansbury can row over his 'stable companion,' Kemp, in their practice. O'Connor has come a long way to meet our best men, and it seems a pity, and it will be a scandalous reproach to Australia, should there be any juggling to keep him out of a match. It is well known that the meeting between Kemp and Matterson was merely made by their respective backers as a stop gap in the event of the Yankee popping up serenely and challenging Kemp, when, if the former had won, he might have at once cleared out, without giving Stansbury a chance of retaining the title in Australia."

The Yarana Wont Come.

Following is the reply sent by the owner of the English cutter Yarana, which was so successful across the Atlantic last year, to the challenge which the owners of our crack seventy-footers authorized Stephen Peabody to make:

LONDON, March 28, 1890.

DEAR SIR: I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 14th inst. with enclosure, and in reply beg to thank the owners of the boats named fo their invitation, but cannot see my way to giving up my season's sailing at home for the sake of three or four races on your side. As all our races, some forty in the season, are now open to your boats, I should excessively like to meet them over here, and if they liked would also be very glad to make a match for, say, £100 or £200 a side, with either of the four boats they select. I have the honor to be, dear sir, yours truly, PAUL A. RALLI.
To Stephen Peabody, Esq.

Middle States Regatta Association.

The regatta committee of this new association held a meeting at the Atalanta Boat Club rooms, this city, April 16, and decided that the opening regatta should be held on the Passaic River, at Newark, N. J., on Aug. 7. The programme will be as follows: Eight oared shells, senior, for The Herald Cup; four oared shells, senior and junior; double sculls, senior; single sculls, senior and junior; intermediate sculls, single juniors' scullers' race, four oared and double scull gig races. It is probable that an eight oared shell junior race will be added.

THE HARVARD FRESHMEN have accepted the challenge issued to them by the freshmen of Columbia College for a two mile straightaway race on the Thames River, at New London, Ct., during the coming Summer. This action by the lads in crimson is due to the tardiness of the men of Yale in deciding whether to row them a race or not this year. If the latter manifest a desire to do so, it is probable that there will be a contest between the crews of the three colleges.

THE ATALANTA BOAT CLUB, of this city, have accepted the challenge issued by the Bradford Boat Club, of Boston, Mass., to row a match eight oared shell race, a mile and a half, straightaway, and have named June 14 as the date and the Passaic River, at Newark, N. J., as the location.

THE Don Amateur Rowing Club, of Toronto, Ont., recently elected the following officers: President, F. Lloyd; first vice president, W. J. Smith; second vice president, A. Boyd; secretary, Albert S. Smith; treasurer, F. Manthie; captain, J. Hogarth.

THE new officers of the new Plymouth (Mass.) Yacht Club are: Commodore, Nathaniel Morton; vice commodore, Thomas N. Eldridge; secretary, A. W. Shepherd; treasurer, George E. Benson.

OVER twelve thousand dollars had been subscribed to the fund for the big regatta at Duluth, Minn., up to April 20, and that the entire amount necessary to carry out the project to a successful issue would be shortly forthcoming was a certainty. The event will take place in July, lasting about a week.

THE new officers of the Nereus Rowing Club, of Flushing, L. I., are as follow: President, James Breath; vice president, Walter H. Clarke; secretary, John W. Wood; treasurer, Percy W. Baldwin; captain, James E. Hilger; lieutenant, H. H. Lawrence.

THE Sunday Call, of Newark, N. J., has presented a silver cup as a prize to be rowed for by senior four oared shell crews at the regatta of the Middle States Regatta Association. The offer has been accepted with thanks.

THE yacht Annie C., the property of City Attorney Robert Hudspeth, of Jersey City, was burned on April 21. The boat was undergoing repairs in a barn, which was destroyed by fire. The boat was valued at $500.

THE Marine and Field Club, of Bath Beach, L. I., will hold their annual canoe regatta in Gravesend Bay on the afternoon of June 7. The programme will include five races, and the entries will close on June 2.

GEORGE J. PERKINS defeated George Norvell in a scullers' race over the Tyne Championship course, in England, for $500 a side, on April 5. He won very easily, by three lengths, in 23m. 23s.

THE Ianthe Canoe Club, of Newark, N. J., recently elected W. J. Stuart captain, R. Fredericks mate, R. Hobart purser, and Joseph Stewart measurer.

THE Cornell crews have been selected by Charles E. Courtney, the trainer, and are as follow: University—Osgood, Benedict, Wolf, Hill, Marston, Hagerman, Upton and Dole. Benedict and Dole were in last year's crew, and the latter will again occupy the stroke thwart, while Benedict will row No. 6 and captain the crew. Freshman—Symonds, Kelley, Fowler, Baldwin, Young, Barker, Hadden and Wetherbee. Barker will probably occupy the stroke seat, Kelley being the captain. Courtney is satisfied that the 'Varsity eight will be fully as strong a crew as that which represented the college last season.

JAMIESON'S NEW YACHT, the Iverna, was launched at Fay's yard, Southampton, Eng., on April 19. The owner states that the boat was not built for the purpose of securing a challenger for the America Cup, yet the impression across the water is that, in case she proves in her trials to be speedy enough to have a chance to win the much coveted trophy, the Iverna will be seen in American waters next season.

A CABLEGRAM, dated April 19, states that plans have been prepared by Herbert W. Brass, a naval architect of Herne Bay, in Kent, Eng., and have been accepted by a yachtsman who intends to build and equip the vessel for a contest for the America Cup next year. She will be welcomed by American yachtsmen.

BILLIARDS.

The Atalanta's Tourney.

At the rooms of the Atalanta Boat Club, this city, on the night of April 14, the concluding games in the long drawn out pool tournament of the organization were decided. Doscher and Heath were the first competitors to cross cues, but the president of the Middle States Regatta Association ran away from his opponent, finishing the game with this score: Heath, 6; Doscher, 25. The final game of the tourney was then played between Doscher and Hagenmeyer, who were a tie for first place. This game was fifty points, and was a good contest. Doscher excelled in combination play, while Hagenmeyer did good all around work. The score was: Doscher, 50; Hagenmeyer, 44. The final score of the tourney is appended:

	Won.	Lost.		Won.	Lost.
W. L. Doscher	11	2	G. W. Bohde	5	5
J. C. Hagenmeyer	10	3	J. D. Fairchild	5	5
G. B. Heath	7	4	J. Robinson	4	4
B. F. Barnes	6	5	J. Young	3	8
T. Sheehan	6	4	W. F. Mohr	2	5
S. B. Mosher	5	5	R. Voto	2	10

The Manhattan A. C. Champion.

The concluding game of this interesting tourney was played on the night of April 14, at the rooms of the Manhattan Athletic Club. A. C. Palmer had C. H. Steinway for an opponent, and the former player had a walkover. Lieutenant Eugene Van Schaick was the referee and Tom McKwen, ex-champion walker, the scorer. Palmer's total was 200, Steinway's 116; winner's average, 3½; loser's, 1.21-32; Palmer's best run, 16; Steinway's, 6. Palmer wins the diamond prize emblematic of the club championship and the Stephen W. Roach special prize, a set of three regulation billiard balls, in an elegant case, for the best average in the tourney. The record of the tourney is appended: Palmer, won 3, lost 0; Steinway, 2, 1; Appleby, 1, 2; Roach, 0, 3.

Maggioli vs. Ives.

Francois Maggioli defeated Frank Ives in a match at Chicago, Ill., on April 16, by a score of 500 to 440, at 14 inch balk line. A dispatch states that the game was a brilliant one, not only because of good billiards, but because Ives was conceded the winner before the contest, and a pile of money had been wagered at odds of 3 to 1 against the winner. Maggioli showed nerve, while Ives became rattled, but not until defeat came very near. The score:

MAGGIOLI—14, 2, 0, 29, 0, 19, 4, 26, 35, 121, 7, 0, 1, 1, 0, 31, 0, 0, 0, 0, 1, 0, 6, 80, 52, 2, 0, 18, 4, 0, 34, 8. Total, 500.
IVES—8, 6, 6, 0, 0, 0, 0, 37, 40, 37, 73, 18, 38, 5, 0, 1, 0, 1, 40, 29, 0, 22, 3, 42, 0, 0, 45, 5, 0, 5, 7, 0, 0, 2. Total, 440.
Averages—Maggioli, 15.5-33; Ives, 13⅔. High runs—Maggioli, 121; Ives, 73. Referee, Henry Rhines. Marker, Charles Matthews.

The Racquet Club Tourney.

It is stated in billiard circles that Townsend, the amateur expert, will not compete in the coming Racquet Club tourney. Oddie, the champion, is rapidly getting into trim for the contests. If Oddie wins this tourney, the handsome emblem will be his own property. He agrees with the assertion of leading amateurs that this will be the last straight rail tourney for the amateur championship, and thinks that the eight inch balk line game will be adopted. The entries for the coming tourney next month are not as yet announced.

THE amateur handicap billiard tourney at Maurice & John's, 85 Nassau Street, this city, is drawing to a successful close. The full results will be given in this column.

J. The club which is represented on the occasion by the largest number of riders will receive a prize. Four hundred wheelmen are expected to participate.

WILLIAM H. METTKER and Walter J. Masterson, members of the Brooklyn Bicycle Club, are entitled to the credit of having made the first reported century run this year. They rode from Brooklyn to Sayville, L. I., drank the health of Landlord A. C. Rhodes at that place, and then rode back again, afterwards covering additional territory, sufficient to bring their mileage up to 101 miles, in the city limits.

TRIGGER.

THE chief event at the clay pigeon shoot of the gunning contingent of the New Jersey Athletic Club, April 19, was the contest for the club's championship gold medal. Each contestant shot at twenty birds, and the trophy was won by Major J. M. Taylor for the fourth time, he breaking seventeen blue rocks. C. A. Pope was second, with twelve. The winners of the minor events were E. L. Vredenburgh, Major Taylor (each taking two) and George S. Verden. The weather was fine, although the wind was rather high and chilly.

A MATCH shoot at live pigeons, twenty-five each, under Hurlingham rules, between A. James, of the North End G. C., and J. Livad, of the Philadelphia Sportsmen's Club, took place at Riverside, near the Quaker City, on April 11, James winning by a score of 22 to 20. There was a goodly crowd of wing shots present to see the contest and speculate on the result.

A RIFLE SHOOTING contest for the championship of Queens County took place at the grounds of the Queens Athletic Club, Queens, L. I., on Saturday afternoon, April 12, the result being as follows: Lloyd, 73; Wood, 65; Kissam, 64; Wacheron, 62; Davis, 61; Taylor, 60; Pfeiffer, 60; Vogel, 58; Connor, 56; Kelsey, 54; J. Coombes, 45; Wiske, 40; Waters, 22.

THE annual convention and tournament of the New York State Sportsmen's Association for the Protection of Fish and Game will be held at Lyons, N. Y., June 9 to 13.

ARTICLES of incorporation were filed April 9, of the Highland Park Gun Club, of Des Moines, Ia. The capital stock is placed at $10,000, and the officers are as follow: President, C. W. Budd; vice president, O. Perkins; secretary, William Burnett; treasurer, A. C. Miller.

THE Princeton College Gun Club held a tournament on Saturday, April 12, the following scores being made, each contestant shooting at fifty birds: John E. Gould, '92, first, 47; Prof. A. H. Phillips second, 40; Arthur G. Moses third, 39.

THE RING.

FATAL FIGHT.—According to a dispatch from London, Eng., a fight took place on April 7 at a place in Wales called Mountain Ash, between Cornelius Collins and John Hopkins. Hopkins was so badly injured that he died on Tuesday, and Collins was arrested on a charge of murder. Several young men were also arrested at Merthyr-Tydvil for complicity in the fight, and committed to take their trial for manslaughter.

JIM GILLESPIE and George Hall, middleweights, milled at a point near Massillon, O., on April 13, for a purse of $100, under Queensberry rules, the men wearing hard gloves. The battle was short, if not sweet, Hall being knocked silly in the first round.

BEZINAH WINS A FIGHT.—Louis Bezinah, who came into notoriety through a setto with faial result at Dallas, Texas, some months ago, and Frank, alias "Dutch," Neil, a St. Louis lightweight, fought ten rounds for a purse in a back room of the London Theatre, at St. Louis, on April 11. Neil weighed over 150lb, and was seconded by Tom Kelly. Mike Cleary was behind Bezinah. The men fought with three ounce gloves, and Bezinah won, though Neil gave him a hard fight for five rounds.

GEORGE LA BLANCHE, the Marine, and Mike Lucie were to have given an exhibition at the Leadville, Col., Theatre on Sunday afternoon, April 13, and had accepted the terms offered by Mr. Loob, who had them billed. La Blanche was to receive 65 per cent. of the door receipts. La Blanche, Lucie and their manager, Mr. Schlessinger, arrived direct from 'Frisco on Sunday morning, and everything had been arranged for their appearance; but a few minutes before the time for the performance to begin, and when over $100 had been taken in at the door, and the prospect for a large audience was good, they complained that the receipts were not large enough, and refused to go on. Neither argument nor remonstrance availed, and they left the theatre. Mr. Loeb returned the money, some $100, which had been taken in, and the audience left in disgust—not even remaining to see the usual matinee performance, thus causing Manager Loeb considerable loss. Other managers should make a note of these facts before engaging the party.

DIXON AND WALLACE.—A match between George Dixon, the colored lightweight of Boston, Mass., and Nunc Wallace, the British crack, is as good as arranged. The former's manager and backer has received a cablegram signed by the Pelican Club, of London, offering a purse of $2,500, of which $500 to the loser, with $500 for Dixon's expenses, which proved acceptable, and the dusky boxer and his backer will sail for Liverpool about May 1. They are to fight at 114lb, on June 22.

CHARLEY FITZGERALD, of St. Louis, Mo., and Charley Welch, of Buffalo, N. Y., met at Liederkranz Hall, Louisville, Ky., on the evening of April 15, to fight fifteen rounds with medium sized gloves, under Queensberry rules, for a stated $250. Welch forced the fighting from the start and finished his antagonist in the eleventh round.

JOE GOODHEART and Bill Starkey met near Flushing, L. I., on the afternoon of Sunday, April 20, and fought sixteen rounds with gloves, when the noise was so great that the referee, Martin Dempsey, in order to avoid a visit from the guardians of the peace, stopped the fight and declared it a draw.

JOE AND JACK MCAULIFFE and Billy Madden are due in this city on May 5, and Con McAuliffe has secured the Fifth Avenue Casino, Brooklyn, for an exhibition on that date. He has also secured Jack Fallon as an antagonist for Joe on that occasion. The trio have been very successful during their trip from the Pacific Slope.

JOHN DALY knocked out Burke, of Pittsburg, Pa., in the tenth round of a fight with three ounce gloves, at Hot Springs, Ark., April 19. The winner is a brother of Dan Daly, of St. Louis. The stakes were $100 a side, added to which was a purse of $250.

ANDY BOWEN and Billy Myer are steadily training for their fight with thin gloves, for a purse of $3,000, which is to take place at New Orleans, La., on May 7. The former will be seconded by Harry Gilmore and Tommy Danforth. O. H. Schonhausen is his backer.

JIMMY KELLY and Jerry Murphy, the lightweight boxing team, well known and liked throughout the States and the United Kingdom, are re-engaged with Brady's "After Dark" company.
